Captives.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN THE CHAMPAGNE, July 18 (United Press).—After killing or capturing the crews of four machine guns and raking a German-filled trench with his automatic rifle until the survivors surrendered, Sergt. J. F. Brown walked into American Headquarters late yesterday with 159 prisoners.

"I am sorry, sir, that I was unable to bring in all I had," he said in reporting, "but four of the wounded died on me."

Brown, separated from his platoon...

Sergeant Brown was hard to satisfy

Four machine-gun crews to his credit was a pretty fair record for one day's work. But why leave a perfectly good trench half filled with Germans? Brown didn't.

The hail of machine-gun bullets could not stop him. He was not thinking of them. Shrapnel was bursting all around him. He did not heed. His rifle was so hot he couldn't touch it, so he laid it in the hollow of his arm and kept on firing; the Germans kept on yelling "Kamerad!" and throwing down their guns. Brown forgot danger and death, he forgot that he was alone against a hundred and fifty Germans. He forgot everything but his job—Victory. And he walked proudly into camp with one hundred and fifty-nine prisoners.

We've got a big job over here, too. We must provide guns and shells and food and clothing for men with the spirit of Sergeant Brown—to send them forward to Victory. Let's do our job as he did his—fearlessly, persistently and quickly. Brown didn't wait to do his duty—why should you?
