Food and Household Goods Storage Warehouses—21st St., near M.

Another new idea in Dining Room Extension Tables! It's a good idea—a most commendable arrangement. So, of course, we have it.

It does away with the usual cumbersome box of leaves. A child can operate it. The leaves are easy of access, being always underneath the top of table, so arranged on metal levers as to be readily raised into position.

There are half a dozen different styles, at prices beginning at $14.00.

My stock of Jewelry is the best selected in the city. The New Fall Styles are unique and beautiful—precious gems in settings which show them to the greatest advantage—Gold and Silverware of wondrous design and perfect workmanship.

SLASHED HIS OWN THROAT

William Harness Makes a Desperate Attempt at Suicide.

POOR HEALTH THE CAUSE

He Locked Himself in the Bathroom and Drew a Razor Across His Neck—Became Angered at His Wife's Tenderness and Solitude—Despondent Over Sickness.

Mr. William Harness, a city drummer, in the employ of Mr. George W. Offutt, wholesale grocer, on M street, near Thirty-second, attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a razor about 9 o'clock this morning at his home, No. 3005 G street northwest.

He now lies with an ugly gash across his throat, extending almost from ear to ear, and with the chances for his recovery about equal with those against it.

What could have induced Mr. Harness to do the deed is not known, but it is supposed there was a possible derangement of the mind, brought about by a recent illness.

Mr. Harness has been in the employ of Mr. Offutt for over nine years. When he reached the store last Thursday morning he complained of being sick and went to his home. He was confined to the house until yesterday. His employer called upon him then and he said he was feeling better and would report for duty this morning.

HE DROVE HOME. Mr. Harness walked down to the store about 6 o'clock this morning and went to a livery stable around the corner and got the horse and buggy which he used in visiting his customers.

It is said that Mr. Harness became angered at this and ran into the bathroom and locked the door behind him. His right eye was immediately run out of the house and around the corner to an outside door opening from the bathroom.

FOUND HIM BLEEDING. When she reached the door she found her husband on the floor with the blood gushing from the ugly wound across the throat.

She immediately sent a passing boy to the police station, and Sgt. Haney and Policeman Harrison appeared on the scene shortly afterward.

They sent for Dr. Reginald Munson, of No. 3101 P street, who responded and stopped the flow of blood that had caused Mr. Harness to lapse into unconsciousness. Luckily, the jugular vein was missed, the deepest cut being on the front of the throat.

So determined was Mr. Harness' intention to commit suicide that he fought the physician when the needle used to sew up the wounds brought him to a state of consciousness.

He pulled away the stitches as the doctor made them, and the officers were compelled to hold his hands. After being placed in bed, he became calmer and permitted the bandages to remain in place.

RIOT AT PHILADELPHIA

Wagons Assaulted Who Attempt to Pass Through Labor's Parade.

Policemen Become Censors and Decide That Red Flags and Certain Motions Are Too Radical.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—A riot occurred here this morning in connection with the national Labor Day celebration.

As 350 Knights of Labor, who are employed in clothing factories, were marching up Fifth street on their way to join the labor parade, and when they had reached Market street, John Proole, the driver of a heavy wagon, attempted to drive through the line.

Several of the knights seized the horse's head, and Proole, becoming angry, jumped to the ground to free the animal. As he did so a score of the paraders surrounded him and a fight began. A number of other drivers who were in the vicinity went to Proole's aid, and in a short time about two hundred men were pummeling one another with every available weapon.

The riot lasted for twenty minutes and battered heads were numerous. A platoon of police, with drawn clubs, finally succeeded in dispersing the crowd. M. Fox, one of the paraders, received a serious scalp wound and was taken to the hospital.

Proole, who is alleged to have struck Fox with an iron bar, was arrested and held without bail for a hearing to-morrow, there being a doubt as to the extent of Fox's injuries.

At the Labor Lyceum, the Mecca toward which the steps of the 4,000 labor paraders were turned, a squad of policemen was on hand to preserve order. In the ranks of the Socialist-Labor party, which turned out 300 members, were a number of banners, and two of the paraders were women.

One of the latter, Miss Lena Behn, wore a bright red dress and a badge of the same color, and carried a banner upon which was inscribed: "The Powers That Be Fear the Red Flag" and "Socialist Ideas Are Progressive, Nevertheless."

This was too radical for the police, and Sgt. Walsh demanded that the banner be withdrawn. This was done quietly, and no trouble resulted.

SHOT A MELON THIEF. Farmer Carr, afterwards Claims It Was Done in Self-Defense. New York, Sept. 2.—A special from Washington, Ind., says: A. L. Carr, a farmer, has a melon patch which he guards too vigilantly. Two weeks ago he shot Charley Smith, a boy tramp, who was stealing melons, and Smith is now being jugged up at the police station.

Experts Do Not Know. It is not yet fully known why the earthquake shock which visited the East Sunday night made itself felt in Washington. If it did it was only perceptible at the Naval Observatory where instruments for the recording of seismic disturbances will reveal the same when the photographic plate is developed, which will not be until to-morrow.

Their Commissions Signed. The President has signed the commissions of the following postmasters: Joseph S. Hunt, postmaster at Oxford, N. C.; Oscar D. Baker, Uvalde, Tex.; and John P. Herby, Jr., Musson, Mass.

down Seventh street on the way to their rendezvous one of the members was knocked down and slightly injured by a street car.

The Treasury plateau and sidewalk corner and the avenue were packed, as well as the Treasury windows and Fifteenth street entrance.

The rooms of the United Press were gaily decorated with the national colors. At the corner of Fifteenth street and New York avenue, opposite the Treasury, the crowd was immense, and the general opinion expressed that the gathering, exceeded that of any previous occasion.

When the head of the parade reached the corner of Fifteenth street and it was continued through the south side of the Treasury much to the disappointment of those along Fifteenth street. A rush was made for the south entrance to the White House from which the procession would emerge into the Avenue. There was a great deal of pushing and shoving, and several light injuries.

A delay was caused to the procession on the Avenue, near Nineteenth street, by the float of the District Assembly No. 66, K. of L., consisting of a truck, in which were eight wires. Boys were sent up trees to hold up the wires, but nothing could be accomplished until Mr. Kraft, the baker, kindly loaned one of his bakers' poles and one of his men, who raised the wires.

The members of Truck "B," of the fire department, aligned themselves at the corner of Nineteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, and cheered the boys as they passed.

One of the pyramids on the float of Columbia Typographical Union caught on the electric wires at Nineteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and was broken off.

Walter Nicholson, P. Quinn and N. Reed occupied a float of the Stonecutters' organization. John McMahon, of Assembly 1173, carried a handsome flag at the head of the Cement Workers' column.

The John B. Henderson Drum Corps, leading the Post employees, made a splendid display and blew their horns as veterans do. The John B. Henderson drum, in new uniform, supplied the music for the International Printing Pressmen's Union.

Joseph Crider, Harry Parker, and Perry Quantrell manned the painters' float. Prof. Hansen's band headed the bakers' line.

The bakers' driver's list of valiant assistants embraced the names of William Christian, G. E. Altman, G. Nairn, Frank Hayes, and Johnny Shugrue.

Eddie Taylor, five years old, officiated as the tailors' mascot. The Ladies Aid float marched back to the Times office after the parade and serenaded the office. At the conclusion of a well-rendered selection the band gave a rousing cheer for the paper.

MANY UNIQUE FLOATS.

Various Trades Aptly Illustrated by Handsomely Arranged Pieces. A feature of the parade this year, which excelled all other parades on Labor Day, were the floats and emblematic pieces.

The float of the International Typographical Union No. 101 was a reproduction of the form of construction and order of architecture of the home for disabled printers, founded by the late George W. Childs and located at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The idea of building such a home for aged and decrepit members of the craft was conceived at the Buffalo, N. Y., convention of the International Typographical Union, held in 1887.

The painters had a handsome float, showing scaffolding, ladders, hooks and ropes, with a man about the work, ready to begin his day's work.

OBSERVED BY A NATION

Everywhere the Day Was Celebrated in Grand Style.

PARADE IN PHILADELPHIA

Letter Carriers Attending the National Convention Make a Great Showing—Marched Hand in Line. State Celebration to Be Held Saturday—Exercises at Other Cities.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—The National Labor Day was generally celebrated in Philadelphia, although the State Labor Day does not come until next Saturday.

Originally the day was universally observed on the first Monday in September, but in 1893, when the bill in the Pennsylvania legislature became a law providing for a Saturday holiday, it carried with it a change in the time fixed for celebrating Labor Day.

The big event in this city was the parade, late this afternoon, of the letter carriers of Philadelphia and neighboring cities, and the informal opening this evening of the convention of the National Letter Carriers' Association.

The letter carriers' parade included not less than 4,000 men. The reviewing stand for Postmaster General Wilson and other prominent citizens of this and other cities was at the Union League.

MARINE BAND. The United States Marine Band, which was detailed from Washington for the purpose, was at the head of the Letter Carriers' parade. In the procession were delegations from Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, The United States Marine Band, New Orleans, Chester, Pa.; Newark, N. J.; Albany, N. Y.; Passaic, N. J.; and New Brunswick, N. J.

Postmaster General Wilson arrived shortly after noon to-day under the escort of Postmaster Carlisle, of Baltimore, and the letter carriers of that city, 275 strong, marshaled by Charles A. Nolan.

Among the other prominent postoffice officials who viewed the parade from the balcony of the Union League were First Assistant Postmaster General Frank H. Jones, Sup't. Machon, of the free-delivery office, and the department of public works, marshaled by Charles A. Nolan.

THE CONVENTION. The convention, which will continue throughout the week, will practically begin this evening, when a public reception will be given the delegates at the Academy of Music. The convention proper will be held to-morrow morning in the Philadelphia Bourse building.

The fight for the convention in 1896 will be a spirited one. Already eight cities are in the field as aspirants for the honor, and the delegates representing those cities are on the ground, either by other means as they arrive and laying their lines to capture the convention.

The cities that have so far put forth a claim for the next convention are Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, N. Y.; Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Detroit, New Orleans, Dallas, Tex., and Atlanta, Ga. The most determined struggle is likely to be made on the part of the Buffalo and Grand Rapids delegates. John L. Burdette, a member of the executive board, and M. M. Smith are here in the interests of Buffalo.

NEW YORK'S WAY.

No Large Parade, But Every One Enjoyed Himself as He Wished.

New York, Sept. 2.—This is the first Labor Day that has not witnessed a general parade of all the trades in this city and its vicinity. This fact is considered significant in labor circles of the general constituency of the best of New York working people. With but few exceptions there are no questions to be agitated, and no victories to be celebrated.

The holiday was generally observed throughout the city. Many of the largest houses closed for the day, and a few who opened this morning closed at noon. Most of the state and Federal officers of the city have also observed the day. All those in the postoffice who could be spared have received a holiday. The sheriff's office and the department of public works opened this morning, but closed early in the day.

An important parade was that of the 1,400 letter carriers of the city. It was decided some time ago that the New York letter carriers should spend the day in Philadelphia and swell the parade of letter carriers in that city.

The labor organizations which have been engaged in the recent strikes on the east side were the only ones to celebrate the day after the manner of previous years. The members of the Knights of Labor clothing trades, including fully 10,000 men and women, formed in line early this morning at their headquarters at Liberty Hall, 257 East Houston street.

The line of march from Liberty Hall marched first to Cannon street, thence to Livingston street, to Attorney street, to Ludlow street, to Houston street, First avenue, to Third street, to Bowery, to Fourth avenue, to Eighth street, to Broadway, to Union square.

The leaders had arranged a mass meeting at Union square for the purpose of denouncing what they termed as the prosecution of Eugene V. Debs.

Among those down for addresses were Michael Bishop, general worthy foreman of the Knights of Labor; Patrick Murphy, secretary, of William C. Browne, master workman of the District Assembly, No. 49, of the largest of these excursions is that of the Central Labor Union. Fully 10,000 persons, representing some fifty different unions, gathered out this morning to celebrate the day.

The anarchists of this city started out early to attend their picnic at Mantel's Park, Staten Island. Herr John Most and Herr Claus Numeran addressed the crowd, and engaged upon the significance of Labor Day to American workers.

CHICAGO'S DEMONSTRATION.

Rival Parades Fill the Streets With Thousands of People. Chicago, Sept. 2.—Discussion marked the celebration of Labor Day, 1895, in Chicago, and two rival organizations of labor were purchased by the city. Starting from Market and Randolph streets, they marched north to Lincoln Park, thence to Ogden grove, where they will conclude the day with a picnic.

Congressman McCann, Col. W. P. Reed, Mayor Pingree, of Detroit, and Joseph C. Bilecy, of Pennsylvania, witnessed the gathering.

The Bricklayers' Union, one of the strongest, refused to participate in either parade, but held a demonstration at Blue Island.

WAGES RAISED.

Pleasant Feature of the Day at Utica, New York. Utica, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Labor Day was observed here by the usual parade of the members of the various unions.

A pleasant feature of the day is the announcement that the wages of the employees of the Globe Woolen Mills have been substantially advanced. An unpleasant system of firing has been done away with and an advance of 7 1/2 per cent, has been granted the weavers.

PARADE AT ST. LOUIS.

Forty Thousand Men in Line at That Place To-day. St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 2.—Beautiful weather contributed to the success of the Labor Day celebration here to-day. All the banks, exchanges, and city offices were closed, and many retail stores gave their clerks a holiday.

The labor organizations united in a parade of the principal streets at noon, and afterward assembled at Concordia Park where the remainder of the day was spent in amusements of various kinds. Nearly 40,000 were in line.

The day was also appropriately celebrated in East St. Louis, where, after a parade of nearly 1,500 labor organizations, accompanied by many decorated floats, a picnic was held at Gross Park, during which speeches were delivered by Mayor Bader, Hon. Jehu Baker, and others.

Pittsburgh's New Pitcher. Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 2.—The managers of the Pittsburgh baseball club have finally closed the deal whereby Pitcher Hastings of Kansas City becomes a member of the local club after the close of the Western League season, September 23. The consideration in the transaction is said to be $2,000. Hastings will likely participate in the St. Louis game.

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY. It is Extended in an Assault and a Mail Robbing Case. In the case of David S. Stalaker, convicted in the circuit court of West Virginia of robbing the United States mails, and sentenced in April last to two years' imprisonment in the West Virginia penitentiary, the sentence is commuted to one year's imprisonment, with an allowance for good behavior.

King's Palace, 812-814 Seventh St., 715 Market Space. AN EPISCOPAL BREEZE. Catholic See of Lincoln is Again Stirred Up. Omaha, Neb., Sept. 2.—After two months of profound calm, the Roman Catholic See of Lincoln is again stirred by an Episcopal breeze. In the latter part of June Bishop Boncompagni issued an order suspending and deposing Fathers Fitzgerald and Murphy, stationed at South Auburn and Tecumseh, respectively, the order to take effect July 15. This was a document of much significance, inasmuch as Bishop Boncompagni stated that his acts were subject to the approval of the college of the propaganda at Rome. For some unknown reason the order of deposition was not enforced. It is said to have been annulled by Mgr. Sattoli, the apostolic delegate, without waiting for the consent of the propoganda. The priests continued peacefully in the performance of their duties until last Friday, when an Episcopal messenger attempted to serve them notification to appear for trial before the bishop. The priests refused to receive the document and the messenger departed without accomplishing his object. The priests say they will not stand trial on any charges based on their conduct in filing charges against the bishop, as canon law forbids the renewal of cases already decided. Fathers Murphy and Fitzgerald recently received autograph letters from Mgr. Sattoli assuring them of his friendship.
