SIGNING THE SETTLEMENT

Marlborough to Receive His Share of Vanderbilt's Millions To-day.

Several Marriages Are Announced to Occur This Evening—Whereabouts of Well-Known People.

It is expected to-day that the marriage settlement will be signed by Miss Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough. The hour and place of meeting have not been announced, but it is quite probable that all those interested will gather in Mr. Vanderbilt's office in the Grand Central station.

Three lawyers, representing the Duke of Marlborough, W. K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. M. Vanderbilt, met at a downtown law office yesterday to arrange the details of the settlements. R. Harding Milward represented the duke, Col. William Jay was there in Mrs. Vanderbilt's interests, while William K. Vanderbilt was represented by Mr. Underwood.

None of the lawyers would disclose the terms of the settlements. After the meeting was over, however, it was learned that the statement printed that Miss Vanderbilt's marriage portion from her father would be $10,000,000 is not true. One whose knowledge of the matter gives authority to any statement he might make about it said:

"It is not possible for me to tell you just what the settlements are, but if you state that Miss Vanderbilt's dowry will not be much above $5,000,000 the statement will be near the truth. The income from the dowry the future Duchess of Marlborough will have the free use of. The principal will be held in trust for her children by this marriage. There was not the slightest hitch in coming to an agreement, and the settlements were signed yesterday. She gets the maximum revenue from the Marlborough estate, the largest revenue ever received by a Duchess of Marlborough."

All the jewels that the Duke of Marlborough has given to Miss Vanderbilt, with the exception of her engagement ring, are new. None of the Marlborough jewels are in the possession of the present duke. Many years ago a Duchess of Marlborough, at her death, left them to her daughters. Most of the jewels are now in the possession of Lady Spencer.

Miss Vanderbilt's engagement ring contains a ruby, which belonged long ago to an Indian Maharaj. Another superb present from the duke to Miss Vanderbilt is a diamond necklace made in London. The giraffe is of solid gold, encrusted with diamonds, and here and there a splendid ruby.

The rumor that none of the Vanderbilt family, except the future Duchess, has been invited to the wedding has been confirmed. It may also be stated that the relations between Mr. Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough are most cordial. A friend of both said that after Miss Vanderbilt has become the Duchess of Marlborough she will receive a warmer welcome at Blenheim than William K. Vanderbilt.

The much-talked-of bridal bouquet, made from flowers in the conservatory at Blenheim, has reached New York on the Lucania. Mr. Milward, the Duke of Marlborough's solicitor, had the bouquet passed through the customs house, and then sent it to an uptown florist's. The duty levied was $5, the valuation being placed at $50.

The bouquet is composed almost entirely of white and delicate pink orchids and roses. It is nearly five feet across the top. The flowers of which it is made are all fresh, and as they had just been cut, it may be decided to break up the bouquet, making from it those for the bride and the bridesmaid.

Newport, R. I., Nov. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will not attend the wedding of their niece to the Duke of Marlborough, but will remain at the hotel until the latter part of the month.

There is a young woman in the west end who has returned to town with a new ancestor—at least, an old ancestor, but new in the sense of having been recently discovered. He is a distinguished gentleman, with ruffles and a queue, fairly well pointed and admirably framed. He hangs with all the other ancestors of this young woman—no dots on ancestors, by the way—in the handsome library of her father's house.

It is a comparatively recent find, this settling together of her progenitors. Shortly after she came to Washington and launched her bark on the social sea she decided that a crest and some ancestors were what she lacked to insure complete success.

The crest was a very easy matter. The ancestors were rather difficult to find. The ambitious young person, and every summer since she arrived at this conclusion she has spent her holidays in New England garrets, and the result does her credit. It would be difficult to find a more distinguished-looking set of ancestors than those which have developed from the walls of this popular house. Among them is a Copely.

This resourceful young person is quite at her best when she is explaining to her guests all about these interesting gentlemen, whose names adorn the beautifully executed family tree which hangs in the north corner over the bookcase. The one in the red coat was a Tory and alienated the affections of his family by fighting against the colonies. The very distinguished looking young man over the mantel was killed at the battle of Bemis Heights and his young wife died of grief shortly afterward. The solemn gentleman, who looks as if he had spent his entire life saying "praises and prayers," was a clergyman. In fact, these very creditable ancestors graced every profession, and any time you want to be equal to the North, the parlors returned from the North, the parlors were artistically decorated with giant decoration with ferns, fruits, and cut flowers, on which dainty refreshments were spread.

Among the young guests present who wore the button badge and ribbon were Miss Grace Dent, Misses Bena and Mittle Williams, Miss Dottie Spicer, Miss Lullie Dent, and Masters Lou Spencer, Teddie Milton, Charlie Spicer, Eddie Bradford, Tommy Hoskins, and John Bent.

Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Danton, of New Hampshire avenue, will remove shortly from their present apartments to their new home on Capitol Hill.

Capt. W. W. Mills was tendered a surprise party Friday evening by the members of Liberty Lodge, No. 8, I. O. G. T., in honor of his birthday, at his home, on Maryland avenue northeast.

Among his many friends present were Mr. and Mrs. Scribner, Mr. and Mrs. Teddie, Mr. and Mrs. B. Bond, Mr. and Mrs. Gertrude, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pennington, Mr. J. B. Simmons, Mr. W. H. Pennington, Mr. W. H. Ledy, and Mr. C. T. Gilliat.

Mr. H. C. McDonald has returned from his country here. The present minister is now in Rome and is constantly absent in Europe, being accredited to several other countries.

It is generally understood that Senor Regio will succeed Mr. Murdado as minister to the United States; some say "before the year is out" others, "inside of two years." It would be a most acceptable coincidence should the wedded happiness of this very popular diplomat and his attainment to the highest rank possible in his chosen career occur simultaneously.

Mrs. Stephen Howland Brown, of New York, who has been stopping at the Sherburne several days, is one of the most charming women in the North, and a conspicuous leader of the Staten Island smart set, having been for some time president of its ladies' club. She is the daughter of the late Arthur Sharley, the famous marine artist, whose work is well known here. Mrs. Brown is an

Mr. James A. Hendley, Mr. Le Roy Gough and a party of friends have just returned from Princeton, N. J., where they went to attend the football game.

Miss Belle E. Garrett, of the Bladenburg road, is visiting Miss Sadie L. Warren, of Capitol Hill.

Miss Victoria Lanstale, of East Washington, will hold an informal reception tonight, from 7 to 11, to introduce to her friends her classmate, Miss Jennie E. Hastings, of Wyoming, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Trusdale, of Georgetown, will leave this afternoon for a brief visit to friends in southern Georgia.

Miss E. B. Rawles, daughter of Maj. J. B. Rawles, of Washington Barracks, has gone to Omaha to attend the wedding and to be the maid of honor of her friend, Miss Gertrude Chambers, of that place, who will marry Mr. Guy Parke, of Decatur, Ill., on the 27th of this month.

For Woman's Eye.

The first woman doctor in Vienna, Austria, Georgine von Roth, has been admitted to practice. Some months ago the doctor of the Imperial School for Officers' Daughters, who had been advised to leave, committed suicide, and among the many competitors for the post was Dr. Georgine von Roth. She had received her degree at Bonn, and was a member of the faculty of the appointment. She is the daughter of the Countess Palffy.

Woman has forced her way into the orchestra seats of the grand opera, which heretofore only man could occupy. She must appear in full dress, however, and bonnets and all other forms of covering for the head must be left outside.

Of late Queen Victoria has absolutely refused to obey the orders of her physician. She still believes that she possesses at least the divine right to defy a doctor.

The dowager Empress of China is said to be very much subdued of late. She was formerly an arrogant, aggressive woman, who believed that she was the center upon which the universe turned. Recent events have had a strong influence upon her and she has aged very rapidly. Her dottering ways have disappeared, and she listens humbly to the wisest advice from people who will consent to face her.

Patti's farewell concert this season are, as usual, much adieu about nothing.

England has sent 672 women missionaries to China within the past five years. Thirty-six left in a body recently for work in China and India. The proportion of women who take this glorious and self-denying work to themselves is far greater than that of men.

Miss Elsie Stanley Hall, an English girl who was born in Australia, has been awarded the German Mendelssohn scholarship at the Leipzig Conservatory. A large number of German musical students were her competitors. The scholarship is worth $375 a year.

Only one woman in ten in Massachusetts had availed themselves of the privilege of registering to vote this year—about 26,000 in all.
