BASEBALL NOTES. Latham made four bad errors. "Spider" Wilson is a hard-hitting pitcher.

Orth was knocked out of the box in Cleveland. Long accepted eleven chances without an error.

Colonel O'Brien has resumed work at second base. New York was too much for Connie Mack's aggregation.

Bonner had ten chances at Wilkesbarre and accepted all of them. "Eddie" Burke appears to be playing an excellent game for Cincinnati.

Boyle continues to field in great style and his hitting is as good as any Oriole. Just now Detroit is turning out more people than Cleveland, Louisville or St. Louis.

The New York Telegram says Joyce's walk reminds one of a man laying out a plan of lots. Dahlen continues his marvelous work in the field. Yesterday he accepted thirteen out of fourteen chances.

The Louisville had their eyes on the ball yesterday. They made a total of seventeen hits and the Brooklyn outfielders captured eleven flies.

Arthur Irwin is said to have had nothing to do with the taking off of the New York pair of Fred Pfeffer. And Irwin has absolute control of the team.

Anson wants to be a delegate to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in July. The old man is probably piqued by "Mike" Griffin's political achievements.

McGuire is a slow runner, but he cannot help it. He was born in Cleveland, and played his first game in Philadelphia. New York Telegram.

Umpire Weldman believes in returning good for evil. In the box, he is almost invariably hit hard, but the Orioles come to the rescue, and help him out.

McCluskey, just before he stepped down and out, offered a wager that the Colonels would not win in twelve places. McCluskey was evidently laboring under the mistaken impression that the league is composed of thirteen clubs.

The action of a pitcher, while in the act of delivering the ball, has much to do with the support given him by the fielders.

Gossip of the Wheelmen. Friendly Test Case to Settle Cyclers' Rights in Brooklyn. BICYCLING TO THE HOUSE TOP.

Londoners Carrying on a Dispute as to Who Invented the Safety—That Honor Belongs to a Scotchman—To Cover 6,000 Miles in Sixty Days, Philosophy of the Wheel.

The chief counsel states that his opposition is based not alone on the merits of the present case, for which he has no desire to use the main drive on this road, but because the assent of the L. A. W. to the present order could be used as a precedent in similar cases hereafter.

Cyclists in Paris are now enjoying the novel pleasure of riding to the top of a building eighty feet high. The track consists of a speciality of construction by very small degrees. It is easy for a bicyclist to make the ascent over so smooth a floor.

The building has sixteen stories, and is 108 feet in diameter in one direction, and 112 in another. It is a light construction of iron and brick, but has been strengthened. The central lantern in the roof is eighty feet above the floor. The total length of the track, counting the ascent and descent, is over 3,000 feet.

New two Londoners are carrying on a war in the English cycling papers as to the original invention of the safety bicycle. They both claim the honor, but as a matter of fact it belongs to neither of them, as it has been conclusively proved that Kirkpatrick Macmillan, a Scotchman, came as near to the present safety as did either of them, and forty years before them.

Henry Bate is the latest claimant for the honor. He says that his patent bears date of October 2, 1876. Mr. Lawson's is the other party to the dispute. He claims that his patent bears date of June 27, 1876. Bate claims that Lawson's invention bears no resemblance to the present safety. It was no gear wheels, but resembles in appearance the obsolete high machine. The rider sits with his back to the high wheel, which he works with the up-and-down motion through connecting rods and cranks.

The hub of a wheel is important. It is the wheel holds the spokes, and, thanks to an ingenious arrangement of the bearings, the wheel turns easily and almost without loss of power. It is essential that the hub should be carefully watched to keep the parts in good condition.

It is not sufficient to oil it regularly and adjust the bearings—that is, to keep them tight, so there will be no play, but to clean them often and carefully. Moreover, the wheel will not be satisfactory in practice unless the central part, or hub, is in proper condition. A study of this part of the machine should be made upon the different parts mentioned. Among the principal parts are the axle, cones, tails and hub.

A. A. Hansen of Minneapolis is training for the purpose of covering 6,000 miles in sixty days. A century a day and two months is no inconsiderable task, and his work will be watched with much interest. Hansen holds the mileage medal of the Century Road Club of America, having covered 21,653 miles on the road in 1894.

It is said that the wheelmen of Minneapolis, backed by several of the city's commercial organizations, will endeavor to secure the 1897 national meet. It is hardly probable, however, that another meet will be held in the West before one is given in the East, and it is said that the wheelmen of New York will endeavor to secure the 1897 event.

GOOD DIGESTION Means Long Life, Good Health, A Clear Head and A Bright Eye.

The New Discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, Gives Good Digestion to Everybody.

Many people suffer from dyspepsia and do not know it. They feel mean, out of sorts, peevish, do not sleep well, do not have a good, keen appetite, do not have the inclination and energy for physical or mental work they once had, but at the same time do not feel any particular pain or distress in the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will certainly set your stomach and digestive organs right; they can't help but do it because they nourish the body by digesting the food eaten, and rest the stomach. You get nourishment and rest at one and the same time, and that is all the worn out dyspeptic needs to build him up and give new life to every organ and an added zest to every pleasure.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a God send to the army of men and women with weak stomachs, weak nerves and justly merit the character of being one of the most worthy medical discoveries of the time.
