NO PAY FOR PLAYING INDIAN

Walter Davis Unable to Collect His Salary.

HE ACTED A DOUBLE PART

While Waiting to Receive Money for Appearing at the Academy He Imbued Too Freely of Fire Water and Was Arrested—Flynn's Compassion for Prisoners in the Dock.

In the witness room this morning among a gathering of people of his own race, was Sammie Banks, there to testify for George Green, an inmate of the dock. He had three white mice, which he exhibited to the amusement of the others.

"Stop," commanded Flynn, "on the spot where are you going?" Sammie said he was a witness and wanted to be on hand when his case was called.

COMPASSION FOR THE PRISONERS. "It would keep them gissing, whether they had 'em or not," concluded Flynn.

Policeman Lord arrested Sunday morning Norris Jurek for calling New York "Loo" and himself was not responsible for the arrest.

After Policeman Harrison, of the George town precinct, arrested Minnie Thomas, colored, Saturday night, for a trivial infraction of the law and kept her away from her family until today, his conscience impelled him to say a good word for her this morning.

NEEDLESS ARRESTS. She said on Saturday night she saw her husband enter a saloon with a woman. "He had just been paid," sobbed Minnie, "and I wanted some money for home, so I called for him, and de woman come out and cussed me."

Walter Davis "supped" last week at the Academy of Music for the "Northern Lights" Company, and $4 was due him Saturday night for playing the dual parts of a soldier and Indian.

While waiting to be paid he palinated the nobler side in the matter of consuming fire water, and got as crazy drunk as a Sioux full of red ink, their favorite tipple in the absence of alcohol.

Policeman Warren arrested him, and, in spite of his protests that if carried to the station house he would lose his wages, he was returned in a cell at No. 1, where he spent a melancholy Sunday.

After Warren testified in the police court this morning Walter, who has histrionic dreams of conquests behind the footlights, tearfully dwelt on the loss of the $4, which, like some clods that pass in the night, may never come back to him.

GLORY HIS ONLY COMPENSATION. "I might have been full," he said, "but I did not drink much, only two glasses of liquor." Warren smiled, and the judge looked incredulous.

The judge read a little in his chair, the story is such an old with him. Walter wiped from one of his blue eyes a tear, not a stage one, but a real fourteen karat saline drop, as he said:

"I begged and pleaded with the officer to let me draw my pay at the Academy, where I have been working. I almost got on my knees to him, but he wouldn't listen to me, and now it is too late, the company's gone."

DETECTIVE AMONG THEM

Virginia Law Officer Visited Jackson City Resort.

EVIDENCE FOR GOVERNOR

Capture of Will Lucas, a Notorious Sweat-Cloth Worker, by Policeman Baur—"Crappy" Green Had Games in Progress in the Underground. Citizens Continue Their Crusade.

A Richmond detective spent several hours yesterday in Jackson City, among the city candle-light hours he visited the houses on the Virginia side, above Georgetown. His presence in this vicinity was reported last night to the Fourth precinct police, and Kimball for sentencing him to the workhouse, and spent a long term in jail for contempt. Since that time he has kept straight until Saturday night, when Policeman Carson found him drunk in front of the Thysen House, on Seventh street.

SWORE TO DRINK NO MORE.

"I intended to keep him at the station until he got sober, and then release him," said Carson, "but he became so abusive and profane I put this charge against him. But I don't think," added Carson, determined to be merciful, "he knew exactly what he was doing. When we got him to the station he was in such a condition that two doctors had to work on him."

SPREAD HIS CLOTH.

Yesterday he spread his 1 to 6 rubber "sweat" cloth in the alley and was soon surrounded by men, women and children, who placed their pennies, nickels and dimes on the fiddle-numbered oil cloth. The game was at its height when some one yelled "police," as Patrolman Frank Baur rushed up the alley.

Gambler Lucas took to his heels, leaving his "sweat" outfit on the ground, but as Policeman Baur was a superior sprinter, the middle-of-the-road blackleg was soon overhauled. His outfit was also captured and will be used as evidence against the prisoner. It consists of the oilcloth strip containing numbers from one to six, three dice and a tin pepperbox, with its bottom muffled, which was used as a dice-box or thrower.

Reag. Baley says Lucas is a bad egg. He has not been long out of the penitentiary, and during the gambling yesterday a number of his patrons were boys from twelve to fifteen years of age. He was locked up at No. 4 station, charged with disorderly assembly, as there is no law in the District to punish outdoor gambling. Sweet workers, crap shooters, and others of that ilk, who operate on the streets, alleys or lots, have to be charged under the disorderly law.

CRAP IN FULL BLAST.

The police also learned that the notorious Tom Green, alias "Crappy," had several games of crap in full blast yesterday in the underground on the flats. Since the Citizens' Association of Alexandria county has commenced its crusade the gamblers do their work with caution.

About the only open gambling in operation yesterday was at "Lucky Hollow," where several games of crap were in progress and a "con" man held forth with his shell game. The work of the Citizens' Protective Association is being felt in a marked manner across the Long Bridge, and disorder and gambling there is now at a minimum. The police on duty at the Washington end of the bridge report that fewer drunken men and disorderly characters came over to this city yesterday than on any Sunday during the past year. They say that only a select few are admitted to the Jackson City saloons through the rear entrances, and those who get in must give the sign besides being known to the proprietors of the bar rooms.

The principal disorder across the river yesterday was created by four dissolute women from this city. They were intoxicated and drove over to Jackson City in a hack. Each of the women was provided with a pint flask of whiskey, and after indulging in a series of dances which would put Egyptian girls to shame they were driven to Swallow Hill, near Four Mile Run, where they continued their orgies until driven away by a colored constable. They started in the direction of Alexandria, where they were probably arrested.

Fatal Collision in the Fog. Meadville, Pa., Sept. 21.—A collision in the fog early this morning between freight engines on the Erie railroad, in this city, resulted in the death of Milton E. Garland and Edward Harris, both of Egglewood, Ill., who were riding on one of the engines. They were each about twenty years old, and apparently on their way home from an unsuccessful search for work.

Presidential Candidate in the Pulpit. Chicago, Sept. 21.—Joshua Levering, Prohibition candidate for the Presidency, occupied the pulpit of the First Baptist Church, last night. He took the text from psalm xciv:16—"Who will rise up for me against the evil doer, and who will stand up for me against the workers of iniquity?"
