FATHER HANEKER IS DEAD.

Death of a Former Washington Pastor. White at them.

The death of Rev. August Haneke, who for some time was assistant pastor of St. Mary's German Catholic Church in this city, is announced. Father Haneke had many friends in Washington who will mourn his loss.

He died while on his way to Europe on the German steamer Munchen. His death occurred on May 27, shortly before noon, and he had been in an unconscious state for nearly twenty-four hours. He left Baltimore for his trip across the water on May 18, and it was his intention to make the round trip without going ashore, for the benefit of his health. He had made one trip previously during the present year. When the steamer reached the other side the body was taken to Bremerhaven, where it was interred in the Cathedral.

Father Haneke was the eldest son of the late Theodore Haneke of Baltimore. He was born on September 9, 1844, at the corner of Hamburg Street and Peach Alley, in that city. He received his early education in a parochial school of the Holy Cross Church, and afterwards attended St. Charles College. He then entered St. Mary's Seminary, and was ordained in 1880 by Cardinal Gibbons at the Cathedral. He was afterwards appointed assistant pastor at Holy Cross Church, and remained there until April, 1892. He then came to St. Mary's Church, this city, and subsequently went to Cumberland and Lonsaconing. His health had not been good for some time past. His father died suddenly from heart disease. The deceased priest leaves a brother, F. W. P. Haneke, of No. 1014 Lesdenhall Street, Baltimore, and three sisters—Mrs. Joseph Thuman, Mrs. Joseph Schoberg and Mrs. George Thuman. While at St. Mary's Seminary Father Haneke was a close friend of Rev. W. H. Revery, the "fighting chaplain of the Iowa."

HOSPITAL TRAIN STARTS.

It Will Carry Sick and Wounded Soldiers North.

The hospital train for the removal of wounded and invalid soldiers left Washington yesterday over the Southern Railway.

It consists of ten Pullman sleeping cars, one dining-room car, one cooking car and a combination coach. It is fully equipped for hospital service, with medicines, surgical instruments and apparatus as complete as a first-class hospital. The train, which is under the command of Major Richards, consists of two commissioned officers, two non-commissioned officers, twenty-two privates and three cooks. The train goes via the Southern Railway to Columbia, S. C., and thence over the Florida Central and Peninsula to Tampa.

From time to time as it becomes necessary one or more coaches will return northward with sick and wounded soldiers, and sailors or marines, who will be taken to Fort Myer, Va., Fort McPherson, Ga., and other points, where there are Army hospitals, and those whose condition demands a high altitude will be removed to Asheville, N. C. The coaches which remain at Tampa will be used as a receiving hospital.

CREDIT MEN TO MEET.

Annual Convention of National Association at Detroit Next Week.

The annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men will be held in Detroit, Mich., on June 22 and 23, with delegates to be present, representing about 5,000 firms.

The officers of the national association are: President, James G. Cannon, vice president, Fourth National Bank of New York; secretary, F. F. Gillman, of New Orleans; treasurer, T. H. Green, of Sioux City, Iowa; secretary, F. R. Boock, of New York.

On Wednesday there will be an address of welcome by the city authorities of Detroit, and also by the Detroit association, and the president cannot attend. The president of the national association, president's annual address, treasurer's and secretary's reports, and an address by Comptroller of the Currency, Hon. Charles G. Dawes. The convention on its several days of meeting will consider resolutions affecting trade, for its advancement and protection, including the dissemination of business literature, contracts of purchase, value of good credit and of prompt settlement. Meetings will be held of the drygoods, hardware, drug, grocery, clothing, boots and shoe trade. The mercantile agencies—Bradstreet, Dun & Co., Credit Clearing-house, etc.—will also be represented, and action will be taken looking to the passage of laws by State legislatures in the line of better protection of business.

The visiting delegates will be entertained by the Detroit association during the convention on Wednesday, and on Thursday, an excursion on "buried" by steamer across Lake St. Clair to the St. Clair and dinner at the Flats, returning to Detroit by train on Friday. The incident entertainment will, as usual, be among the best Detroit can afford.

The President Invited.

Messrs. Joseph C. Smith, Leander Forman and A. E. Orr, a committee of the League of Republican Clubs, are in the city for the purpose of inviting personally prominent Republicans the meeting following the convention to be held next week. In company with Congressman William S. Boozie, the committee called on Mr. L. M. McKim, of the Executive Mansion, and requested him to honor the occasion with his presence. The President did not think it would be possible for him to leave Washington at this time. He suggested to the committee to send him a formal invitation, to which he will make a reply. The committee, with Congressman Boozie, called on Congressmen Landis, White and Mahon; Senator Wellington and Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, all of whom promised to attend.

Produce Dealers Change Views.

The Louisiana Avenue produce dealers, who recently filed a petition with the Commissioners requesting that the order requiring them to pay an additional tax for the use of the sidewalk in front of their places of business be rescinded, have filed a second petition asking that the old law be reinstated. This change of front is brought about by the fact as given to the dealers by the Commissioners, that the original order was repealed when they were exposed to continual prosecution in the Police Court, as the use of the sidewalks for private purposes outside of the 14-foot limit is illegal.

Virginia Naval Reserves.

The Government needs no more naval reserves, apparently. The complements of men for all the ships now in service have been ordered. The complements of mechanics and electricians are in demand. To the great surprise of the Virginia Naval Reserves, who had assembled at the Norfolk armory for physical examination and to be mustered into the United States service, a telegram was received from Rear Admiral Erben, U. S. N., in charge of reserves, directing that the examination be discontinued so that the whole reserve was discharged off, and so far as the Virginia reserves know, they will remain at home.

General Butler's Field Glasses.

Major General M. C. Butler, of South Carolina, who lost his field glasses at the battle of Brandy Station in 1862, as well as a leg, was greatly surprised and pleased the other day to get the field glasses back again, they having been restored to him by a Mrs. Kemper, of Virginia.

"THE MINNESOTA BLIZZARD."

She is in Washington Pursuing a Phantom Claim.

Mrs. Marie E. Blaisdell, "The Minnesota Blizzard," called at the Pension Department this morning and demanded that her claim be settled forthwith. Mrs. Blaisdell is one of the most famous pension claimants in the country, and has called upon every congressman, senator and officer in Washington during the last five years. Her claims are settled by the Government according to the pension authorities, but she has caused the Government many hundreds of dollars expense for transportation, for her labor and incidental bills in the needless recall of her demand. She generally spends three or four months of each year in Washington in pursuit of her phantom claim.

DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Biennial Convention of the Fourth General Conference.

The biennial convention of the fourth general conference, District Epworth League, comprising the conferences of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Central Pennsylvania, Pittsburg, Erie, and West Virginia, will be held in Wheeling, W. Va., June 25 to 29, inclusive.

The singing will be in charge of Prof. J. M. Black. The convention will meet in Epworth Park, a beautiful retreat on an island in the Potomac, near the Wheeling Hotel, and overlooking the Ohio River. Here a tent accommodating 2,500 has been erected. This is easy of access to any point, and is a most desirable gathering place for all delegates. The convention will be held in Pittsburg, Pa.

The officers of the national association are: President, James G. Cannon, vice president, Fourth National Bank of New York; secretary, F. F. Gillman, of New Orleans; treasurer, T. H. Green, of Sioux City, Iowa; secretary, F. R. Boock, of New York.

A WOMAN COURTS DEATH.

She Seeks to End Her Life With Carbolic Acid.

Ella Woodland, twenty-four years old, living at No. 118 C Street, was admitted to her bed at 2:30 o'clock this morning, in a state of collapse. She was discovered by the landlady and sent to Emergency Hospital in the First-precinct patrol wagon, where she now lies in a precarious condition. The woman, who is married, is Fannie Smith, had been out all evening, and when she returned at four this morning was under the influence of liquor.

She went to her room, and later came down stairs and began to vomit. She was taken to a room at an hour and went upstairs, presumably to retire. Mrs. Berry, the landlady, and she heard the woman's screams, and when she found her in a state of collapse, she immediately sent for Dr. L. S. Linton, who immediately sent to No. 1 station for the ambulance. Policeman Loftis responded to the call with the patrol wagon and the woman was lifted into the wagon and carried to the Emergency Hospital. There it was found that a good deal of the burning acid had been poured over her bare arm and neck, making very ugly and painful sores. A stomach pump was quickly adjusted and sulphate of magnesium was given, but it was impossible to tell how much of the acid had been taken. The throat, it was thought by the surgeons that, and except for the lacerations their patient would be all right in a few days.

Journalism in Madrid.

The passably educated Spaniard has two great passions—the bull fight and the newspaper. The illiterate citizen of the larger cities of Spain is an omnivorous reader of the daily journals, and his taste in this respect is amazingly catholic. Though the laws relative to the press are deplorably exigent, the city of Madrid, as an instance, fairly swarms with journal publications. Though the laws relative to the press are deplorably exigent, the city of Madrid, as an instance, fairly swarms with journal publications.

There are no stands or kiosks in the Spanish capital. The vendors of newspapers are tattered, shrieking arabs and old women, beggars and croaking. Both classes are compelled to contribute to the maintenance of the government by securing a license for the privilege of selling these cheap wares. Although the law is against them, they are a quartet procurable, the reigning powers have always favored the tax from the rather vindictive idea that this sort of toll holders to some extent the dissemination of the hated newspaper. For the latter is extremely disliked by the military—radical or conservative—the coterie of officials is always confronted by a tremendous journalistic opposition.

It follows, too, that in a country as reactionary as Spain the police arrange to render the existence of editors as undesirable as possible. Label suits, confiscations and imprisonments are the order of the day in periods of political excitement. And the restrictions placed upon writers are equalled in a form of composition that is a masterpiece of delicious suggestiveness. Allegories, words with double meaning, tales, legends and romances are employed to veil subtle attacks on persons in office. It is understood that a Spaniard may converse in a dozen lines an astounding more poisonous even than that of the careful effusion of an intellectual Chinaman, and the Chinese possess all means to perfection the talent of wounding an adversary without need of a ministerial organ. Ferreras is one Sagasta's ardent supporters. The paper has always been popular and has at all times

HOUSE & HERRMANN, Liberal Homefurnishers, 7th and I Sts. N. W.

A New York business man of sedentary habits who has for years occasionally used a Ripans Table to aid digestion, relates that he awoke one morning recently with a violent headache of a pronounced type. It was so severe that he considered a dose of calomel and a day in bed, but as the latter was impossible, owing to the business requirements of that particular day, he started from home at the usual hour and in an unusual state of depression and temper. Arriving at his office, his eyes happened to rest upon the packet of Ripans Tablets that he kept in his desk, and in a somewhat desperate state he took three of the Tablets at one swallow and sat down to attend to the work of the day. A half hour later he realized to his surprise that the headache had left him and that he was in his usual good health. Moreover the headache did not return. He went immediately to the office of the company and narrated his experience, with a suggestion that the story be told for the benefit of others. That day's time was saved to him and it was worth more than ten dollars in cash, to say nothing of the discomfort he escaped.

Finally with an extra effort the fire increased its heat several fold.

The one particular pair of frogs' legs curled up, like a conformationist, straightened out suddenly, with something snapped near the edge of the frying pan which seemed to hold the gaze of the cook. These legs were the longest to hold out against the action of the fire. But now the heat was getting in its work. Gradually the "knees" came up. Ticker and ticker grew the tension, and wider and wider the eyes of the cook.

It was evident superstition was getting the best of her.
