

NATAL FREE FROM BOERS

General Buller Reports the Country Practically Cleared.

Gatere Occupies Stormberg—Railways to Be Reopened—A Reconnaissance Discovers the Federal Forces With a Front of Ten Miles in the Orange Free State—Their Strength Not Learned—Winston Churchill's Interview With General White. The Abandonment of Dundee and the Necessity for Defending Ladysmith—The Latter the Main Objective in Buller's Plan of Campaign.

LONDON, March 6.—The War Office has received the following despatches from Field Marshal Lord Roberts:

"Osofontein, March 5.—Buller reports that Natal is practically clear of the enemy. The Boers left some ambulances full of sick and wounded, the mules being used for transport purposes.

"Osofontein, March 6.—Gatere occupied Stormberg yesterday. The lines of railway to the north and west will be repaired. Clements is at Joubert's Biding, one station beyond Colesberg.

"An Osofontein correspondent, under today's date, says: "The Ladysmiths and New South Wales Lancers made a reconnaissance yesterday and found that the Boers had extended their position, which is now over ten miles long, with the river in the center. The exact number of Boers now confronting the British is not known, but they are being re-entrenched every day."

General White Interviewed.

The "Morning Post" publishes the following interview with General White from Winston Churchill. The despatch is dated Durban, March 4, and reads as follows:

"I lately had the pleasure of a conversation with General Sir George White on the defence of Ladysmith. The general, who seemed in good health, though worn by anxiety and privations, received me at his house, from the windows of which he has a complete view of the defenses, stretching around a wide circumference from one rocky hill to another and the frowning profile of Dutoan Mountain rising beyond. He reminded me that he had arrived scarcely ten days before the outbreak of the war. He had found certain arrangements in progress to meet a great and rapidly approaching crisis. He had full confidence in General Symons, who was a soldier of the highest ability, and, besides, a good, brave, fighting man. General Symons proposed to hold Dundee and Ladysmith and undertake the Boers' ability."

"General White, who had Col. Ian Hamilton's experience in South Africa to fall back upon, viewed the situation in a more serious light. The story of what followed is told in the blue books. The general determined to ask the opinion of the Governor of Natal on the possible result of abandoning Dundee. This appeared to Sir W. Neely-Huckinson said that grave consequences would result, notably a rising of the disloyal Dutch in the Klop country and perhaps elsewhere in Natal and Zululand. Dundee was actually abandoned, but the electrifying effect of Elandslaagte, to some extent, neutralized the retreat of the British forces.

Why He Held Ladysmith.

"But though General White had doubts whether he should attempt to hold Dundee, he had none about Ladysmith. This town," he said, "was the first main objective of the combined forces of the Transvaal and the Free State. Here the lines of railway met and here the Republic's armies were to make their effective junction and score their first great success. The capture of Ladysmith, which the Boers never doubted for a moment, was to be the sign for a general rising of the Natal Dutch. To insure success, 20,000 men under command of General Joubert himself were directed against the town."

"General White said that he never wished to abandon Ladysmith or withdraw behind the Tugela River. Had he done so he considered he would have been turned by superior forces, and Pietermaritzburg and not Ladysmith would have been the scene of defence and struggle for possession. Ladysmith was an essential feature of the Dutch plan of campaign, and their exasperation at not taking it provoked them to devote all their energies to the siege instead of ravaging Natal, as they would have done had General White occupied a position of less significance, although perhaps of greater defensive strength."

Moreover, the amount of military stores in the Ladysmith magazines, the difficulty of evacuating the civil population, and of helping in the Dundee column made the abandonment of Ladysmith after General White's arrival in Natal a physical impossibility.

"Passing to the actual defence of the town, General White said: 'The Boer knowledge, which we had clearly bought of the long-range of the Boer guns, convinced me that it was imperative that we should get guns to match them. The big guns of the Naval Brigade, which were brought up just before the cordon closed around us, enabled us to meet them on an equal footing.'"

SCENES NEAR LADYSMITH.

The Road to Colenso Lined With Ghostly Lights.

LONDON, March 6.—A despatch from Ladysmith, received today, says: "The scenes on the road from Ladysmith to Colenso exceed in horror those depicted in Dante's 'Inferno.' Dead men and animals are lying, mutilated and putrifying, in the trenches formerly occupied by the Boers and fill the air with a sickening stench. "In cases where a hurried burial had been attempted the rains had washed the earth away, and out of the ground stick the ghastly legs and arms of the corpses."

STILL SOUTH OF THE ORANGE.

The Boers Hold the Railway and Wagon Bridges.

COLESBERG, March 6.—The Boers still hold the hills south of the Orange River. Neither the railroad nor wagon bridges have been destroyed. Trains are running between Colesberg and Norval's Post.

EXPLOSION IN A MINE.

Five Men Dead and Fifty-eight Impressed.

WHEELING, W. Va., March 6.—A special from Montgomery, W. Va., says an explosion occurred this morning in Red Ash mines imprisoning seventy men.

Of the twelve taken out five are dead. The others are beyond rescue. Fire damp, it is said, caused the disaster and the severe explosion was felt twenty miles away. The explosion caused the ground about the mines to lift and roll like the sea disturbed by a submerged volcano.

The entrances to the mines at once became clogged and it is estimated there are thousands of tons of earth between most of the imprisoned men and the hundreds now engaged in the agonized, hopeless task of reaching the imprisoned men. It is reported that several women were working in the mines at the time of the explosion.

LOCATING THE BOERS.

President Steyn Believed to Be With Joubert's Forces.

LONDON, March 6.—A despatch from Osofontein, dated March 3, says: "The Boer position has been located four miles from the front and extending for more than eight miles. It is believed that the Free Staters are ready to throw up the sponge. Blenfontein remains undefended except by the force in front of it. If there should be further British successes it is believed President Steyn will flee to Pretoria. He is reported to be in the Boer laager in front of us."

BRABANT AT DORDRECHT.

He Captures a Boer Fort and Rout the Garrison.

DORDRECHT, March 6.—General Brabant has scored a victory. The Boers are in full retreat with their guns and wagons and are being pursued. Following Sunday's success, General Brabant again engaged the Boers after holding the position captured. There was some smart fighting yesterday, the British losing five or six men and capturing the Boer fort, thus vastly improving their position. The Boers fought tenaciously, contesting every inch of the ground, but ultimately they retreated suddenly, carrying off their guns and wagons.

A mounted force pursued them, but the result is not yet known. The British casualties during the two days were thirty wounded and thirteen killed. The Boers' losses are unknown. Throughout the arduous fighting and severe fatigue the Colonials behaved splendidly.

TUPPER ON SOUTH AFRICA.

The Canadian Statesman Addresses a Meeting in Boston.

BOSTON, March 6.—The Tremont Theatre was jammed to the doors last night with a wildly enthusiastic throng of British sympathizers and people of English origin, all eager to show their respect or loyalty to the mother country, and incidentally to assist in swifling the British-South African patriotic fund.

Sir Charles Tupper, leader of the Conservative party in Canada, was the star attraction of the evening, and the statesman was given a magnificent reception. Sir Charles spoke extemporaneously.

He took the view that the war in South Africa was more than a simple matter of Boer vs. Briton. It was a battle of civilization—a question whether or not the British Empire was to be dominated by the civilization of the seventeenth century or that of the nineteenth. He went into the tax question and claimed that England's subjects were paying nine-tenths of the expenses of the Transvaal, and that the English-speaking people of South Africa had paid for the British Empire and for the Queen at the present time. He thought the Transvaal was an oligarchy and a republic, and that Kruger had been waiting for the time to come when he could get control of South Africa. The English have to thank Kruger for not only the trouble, but for the memory of Emmet, but for developing a feeling of neutrality among the leading people of the United States, from the President down to the press, and among the plain citizens an immense alliance, not one on paper, but a feeling of fraternity that emanated from the heart.

The audience was made up of English citizens and rich Americans. The Rev. George A. Gordon presided. In his speech introducing the speaker of the evening the pastor expressed his satisfaction at the slaughter and defeat of the Boers during the last ten days.

SULZER ON THE BOER WAR.

The New York Representative Says They Deserve to Win.

ALBANY, March 6.—A pro-Boer demonstration was held at the Empire Theatre here last night under the auspices of the Boer Emmet Association and Spruce Club. The speakers were Gen. James O'Beirne and Representative William Sulzer. The meeting was a rousing one and the tributes to the memory of Emmet were merely introductory to the discussion of the South African situation. Representative Sulzer said: "I am with the Boers and I want to see them win in this contest because they are right and because they deserve to win. In a fight between liberty and monarchy I want to see liberty win."

The Escaping British Officers.

LONDON, March 6.—Referring to the reported escape from Pretoria of three British officers, Pringle, Brocks, and Messier, Winston Churchill cables the "Post" as follows: "Haldane and Brocks attempted to escape at the time I got away, but failed. Messier, who is with them now, is a man of great physical strength. Brocks is a Colonial officer. He speaks Afrikaans and Dutch fluently and knows the country well."

Funds for Boer Widows.

The Secretary of State has forwarded Adelaide Hay, United States Consul at Pretoria, for presentation to the Transvaal Government, a second installment of contributions to the "Westliche Post" for the relief of the widows and orphans of Boer soldiers killed in the South African war. As this money was a charitable purpose the Government saw no violation of neutrality in its transmission. With the second installment was a letter addressed to President Kruger by Editor Pringle, Brocks, and the "Westliche Post." As the letter was sealed the State Department does not know its contents. It was forwarded to Consul Hay with the check representing the amount of the contribution.

Money for Lithuania.

Mr. Hoy today introduced in the Senate an amendment intended to be proposed to the House by the Committee on Appropriations, which would provide for the payment to Lithuania, former Queen of the Havelia Islands, upon the warrant of the Secretary of State, from any moneys not otherwise appropriated, the sum of $250,000.

BETRAYED BY A FILIPINO

Lieutenant Koehler Shot From Ambush by the Rebels.

The First Mounted Officer to Ascend the Hill in the Battle of San Juan. Recommended for a Medal of Honor—Another Long List of American Casualties Forwarded by Otis.

Another American officer has been killed in the Philippines through the treachery of natives. The victim was First Lieut. Edgar F. Koehler, of the Ninth Infantry, who died at San Juan, a small village six miles south of Tiarac, where he had gone with a detachment of troops.

A supposed friendly native led Koehler into an ambush and his men, in revenge, burned the village and killed twenty-four of the insurgents.

LAWTON FUND PRESENTED.

The General's Widow Receives a Check for $98,407.67.

Mrs. Mary C. Lawton, widow of Major Gen. Henry W. Lawton, was today presented with a check for $98,407.67 by Adjutant General Corbin. The money represents the fund subscribed by the American people to provide for Mrs. Lawton and her four children. The presentation took place in the office of Commissary General John F. Weston at the War Department. There were present only Mrs. Lawton, General Corbin, and General Weston. There was no formality about the affair. General Corbin merely handed Mrs. Lawton the check. She was much affected and expressed her thanks in a very few broken words.

General Corbin and General Weston then accompanied Mrs. Lawton to the Riggs Bank where the check was presented and the money transferred to Mrs. Lawton's account. The following receipt for the money was given General Corbin by Mrs. Lawton:

Received from Brig. Gen. H. C. Corbin, Adjutant General, United States Army, treasurer of the Lawton fund, ninety-eight thousand four hundred and seventy dollars and six cents, being the amount of the fund subscribed by the people of the United States for the benefit of General Lawton's widow and children.

Witness: J. F. Weston. MARY C. LAWTON.

Mrs. Lawton stated that she would leave Washington in a few days for Redlands, Cal., where she will pay off the mortgage on the home and then return to Louisville, Ky., where she will reside in the future. General Lawton was killed at San Mateo, Province of Manila, Island of Luzon, December 19, while directing an attack on an insurgent stronghold.

After paying all expenses in raising the Riggs Bank where the check was presented, she will have over $90,000 left.

DISPUTE OVER ARMOR PLATE.

Naval Bill at a Standstill in the House Committee.

Such a difference of opinion over the price of armor plate has developed in the House Committee on Naval Affairs that work on the Naval bill has almost come to a standstill.

Some of the members still hold out against the proposition of the Navy Department to accede to the demands of the armor plate companies for $54 a ton, owing to the necessity of equipping the ships now ready or soon to be ready for armor.

CONFESSION OF A PLOT.

Mr. Goebel's Alleged Assassin Accuses Republican Leaders.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 6.—According to the Goebelle plans, as announced today, an attempt will be made by them to indict every man who was in the State Executive Building at the time Goebel was assassinated. The accused will be charged with conspiring in the Executive Building at the hour the fatal shot was fired by Taylor and his secretary, State Treasurer Day, State Auditor Sweeney, and all other State officials of the usurpation. Harlan Whittaker, the man charged with the murder of Goebel, broke down this morning, and while weeping is said to have made a confession to the jailer of Franklin county, accusing prominent men of complicity in the assassination. Whittaker is said to be the man who sent this telegram to Butler county on the day of Goebel's assassination:

"The male will cross the stream today between 10 and 12 o'clock."

Morganston, Butler county, is off the railroad and the message had to be telephoned part of the way.

Sensational developments are undoubtedly a few hours off if Whittaker's trial, which is docketed for today, is not postponed. No less than thirty arrests will be made before the case is finally decided. It is the purpose of the Goebelles to indict every man who can be connected with the crime.

Gen. John B. Castleman, who was appointed Adjutant General by Governor Beckham, was called to the State Capitol today. This is significant, as the resolution of Senator Triplett, calling for an appropriation of $250,000, to be used by General Castleman in raising an army large enough to march to London and recapture the State's Gatling guns and ammunition sent there by Taylor, will be put on its passage.

The resolution bears the emergency clause and becomes operative as soon as the Governor signs it. Beckham will sign the resolution. The mountaineers at London say they are anxious for Castleman to march on the town. They claim that Castleman cannot muster in his army to move on London, which is in the center of the feud land and a Republican stronghold.

THE DAY IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Robbins Speaks in the Alabama Contested Election Case.

Immediately after the reading of the journal today the House proceeded to the further consideration of the contested election case of Aldrich vs. Robbins, from the Fourth Alabama district. Mr. Robbins being the first speaker in his own behalf.

He stated that the case should be determined judicially, and not arbitrarily; that the record should be purged of all irrelevant testimony and the judgment reserved upon the law and the facts thus disclosed.

THE HOMESTEAD LAW.

A Bill Providing for Those Who Serve in the Army and Navy.

Mr. Jones of Washington has introduced in the House a bill providing that entry men under homestead law, who have served in the United States Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, during the Spanish war or the Philippine insurrection, shall have certain service deducted from the time required to perfect title under homestead law.

The bill also provides that such homestead settler who has not resided upon, improved, and cultivated his homestead for a period of at least one year after he shall have commenced his improvements; provided that if any such person shall have been discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty, the term of his enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title without reference to length of time he has resided upon, improved, and cultivated his homestead.

It is further provided that in case of the death of any person who would be entitled to the benefits of the first section of the bill, his widow, if unmarried, shall be entitled to such benefits, in case of her death or remarriage, then his minor orphan children, by a guardian duly appointed, may enter a tract of land under the homestead laws, and receive the benefits of that section; and if the soldier, sailor, or marine died during his term of enlistment the entire term of enlistment shall be deducted from the time heretofore required to perfect title, provided that in no case shall the amount of such deduction be less than one year.

District Guaranty Companies.

Mr. Jenkins has introduced in the House a bill authorizing the formation of guaranty companies in the District. It provides that any company now authorized, or which may hereafter be authorized, by Congress to carry on an insurance business in the District and having a paid-up capital of not less than $250,000 may engage in a security, guaranty, and indemnity business.

A Substituted Department Bill.

Representative Hull has introduced in the House a bill increasing the Subsistence Department of the Army by providing for one assistant commissary general and four commissaries, one in the rank of lieutenant colonel, and four commissaries with the rank of captain.

Liquors in the Philippines.

A bill has been introduced by Representative Gillett of Massachusetts providing that no intoxicating liquor shall be sold in the Philippine Islands, except on the prescription of a physician, in quantities of less than twenty gallons.

Discussing the Cable Bill.

The House Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce had the Sherman Pacific Cable bill under discussion today, the principal point at issue being the amount of the subsidy to be granted. Failing to reach a conclusion at the morning session the discussion was resumed at a special afternoon session.

CORBIN DEFENDS HIMSELF

The Adjutant General Answers Charges Against His Record.

He Writes a Letter to Senator Davis Offering to Submit to a Thorough Investigation—Willing to Resign if Proved to Be Unworthy—His Army History Sent With the Document.

Adjutant General Corbin today sent the following letter to Senator Davis in reply to the "memorial" which has been circulated at the Capitol and in which charges were made against General Corbin's record as an officer of the Army:

"Hon. Cushman K. Davis, United States Senate: "Dear Sir—My attention has been called to certain newspaper reports purporting to set forth extracts from a 'memorial' that is said to have been transmitted to you which are in the nature of charges affecting my record as an officer of the Army."

"I am as desirous as any other officers may be deserving of consideration or attention. I desire to place myself at your command in adding to you a searching examination of my record as a soldier with a view to ascertaining all the truth, and I wish to say in all earnestness, if a search reveals to you a suggestion of unworthiness, I will resign my commission, so far as I am concerned, by authorizing you to present my resignation from the service, to the President."

"It is my duty as Adjutant General of the Army to afford you, and through you, the Congress, all facilities for full and complete information on any question affecting the efficiency of the military service."

"I have the honor to hand you herewith an official copy of General Orders No. 6, Headquarters First Separate Division, Second Army Corps, dated March 14, 1895, commencing the proceedings, and findings of the general court-martial resulting from trial on all allegations; and the annual expression of opinion in its findings, to wit: 'Most honorably acquitted.' That the court was composed of officers of experience and high character goes without saying. The proceedings, findings, and approval, were in all respects regular and lawful, has never been questioned."

"Your attention is also invited to a copy of the official report (inclosed herewith) of the engagements of the Fourteenth United States Colored Infantry, in and about the city of Decatur, Alabama, during the month of October, 1864 (printed in Volume 29, Part 1, pages 714 to 716, of the 'Records of the Union and Confederate Armies,' War Department, Washington, D. C., 1892), which report is signed by the officer who later preferred the charges upon which I was tried, one of which related to that time and place."

"I feel confident that to one of your long experience as a public officer, and your high sense of justice, the official records herewith brought to your attention will afford you a more complete and trustworthy statement of the facts which are reported to be contained in the 'memorial' referred to."

His Military Record.

"If, however, you desire to make further examination into my record, I will gladly give you any assistance in facilitating an examination of the records made, day by day, from the time when, as a lad of nineteen, I left my father's farm in southern Ohio, and entered the volunteer Army. I am now closing my thirty-eighth year of age, having in that time held commissions of six grades, from second lieutenant to and including that of colonel with brevet of brigadier general. From all of which I was honorably discharged. Not only this, but I have had the honor of being Secretary of War ad interim (two years after the trial herein discussed had been of record in the War Department), conferred upon me by the President of the United States, and one for major for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Decatur, Ala., and another of lieutenant colonel for like services in the battle of Nashville (copies of which are enclosed), covering the exact dates set forth in the specifications to the charges referred to."

"Following my discharge from the volunteer service, I was appointed a second lieutenant in the Regular Army, and in July, 1866, was appointed a captain in one of the new regiments, and so far as I am concerned, my military service, outside of the military service, I had been an officer of the Army more than fourteen years before I had the honor of the personal acquaintance of any Member of Congress or anyone else in touch with the authorities in Washington. My first ten years in the Regular Army were spent with my company in the then remote Western States and Territories of Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and Texas, having in that time marched in different expeditions against hostile Indians and bands of station from Fort Riley, Kan., to the Western terminus of the railroad (leading to the West), to Port Brown, at the mouth of the Rio Grande—the distance traveled and the difficulties of this service being fully understood only by those who had had the experience. During all these ten years I was never absent from duty for a single day from any cause whatever."

"I served fourteen years as a captain of Infantry, and in the Adjutant General's Department, nine years as the senior major, seven years in the grade of lieutenant colonel, and two years in the grade of colonel, and in the Adjutant General's Department, nine years as the senior colonel in the Department. Your attention is also invited to the fact that the President tendered me the commission of major general of the Regular Army, which I had the honor to decline, so that all these offices (limited in number by law), might be given to officers serving with troops in the field. I have now served in the Regular Army more than a third of a century, and I have been absent from duty from any cause less than thirty days."

"This approval is made in the name of justice, and I am confident that it is not made in vain."

"Very respectfully, "H. C. CORBIN, "Adjutant General."

A detachment under Lieutenant Colonel Corbin was ordered to march from the side of the river to protect a section of artillery turned over to Major N. J. Vail. " " I can only speak in praise of the officers, who, in the work, Lieutenant Colonel Corbin, Adjutant General, and Sergeant Major George Griffith did credit to the line and proved themselves as capable as any of the officers of the 28th Infantry (Colored) in charge of 250 men, picked from the best of the line, and were in the line during the greater portion of the night in digging the left side of the river to our line.
