Incendiarism in Cumberland.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 4.—Two attempts were made last night to burn property in the heart of the city and within a short distance of the scene of the fire which destroyed valuable property several weeks ago. A stable in the rear of S. D. T. Anderson's blacksmith shop, on Mechanic Street, was first burned, and in a stable of Charles Anderson, nearly adjoining, was found blazing paper alongside of a bale of hay, but it had burned before it could spread the fire. Later the city stables, near the City Hall, were found to be on fire, and it was discovered that burning paper had been dropped into a manger through a hole in the horses' air. The flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

Difficult to Find.

(From the Christian Advocate.) A burglar who had entered a poor minister's house at midnight was disturbed by the awakening of the occupant of the room he was in. "If you sir, you are a dead man. I'm hunting for money."

"Let me get up and strike a light," said the minister, "and I'll hunt with you."

Judicial Decisions Affecting Nome Arouse Criticism.

Dispute Over Valuable Claims on Anvil Creek—Comment on the Action of Judge Noyes—Alexander McKenzie's Anti-Alien Law—Bitter Complaint of Civil Administration.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 15.—The installation of the new civil government in Alaska has not been attended with success in this part of the territory. The advent of the United States Court was eagerly greeted in the big mining camp, and the best elements in the population were confident that a desirable change was about to begin. Property would soon be placed beyond dispute, it was said, claim jumpers would be brought to justice, confusion in titles would be disposed of, and the preservation of law and order would no longer depend on the military arm of the Government. After one week in office the court was severely criticized, and now, at the end of three weeks, it is bitterly and almost universally denounced.

The criticism began on Tuesday, July 31, when United States Commissioner Stevens awarded the means of livelihood. More criticism of the civil authorities was aroused when Judge Noyes granted the petition of a wealthy mining company for an injunction restraining holders of property on the rich Anvil Creek from operating their claims. When the temporary receivership in these cases was made permanent yesterday, the act was roundly condemned.

As to July Judge Arthur P. Noyes received a petition from Alexander McKenzie and others, contesting the right of the owners of nearly all the valuable claims on Anvil Creek to hold the property in receivership. McKenzie, who is a resident of Nome, when a certified record is wanted at the recorder's office a legitimate charge of $1.50 is made for the certification. The abstract company that refers to never pays this fee.

Although the public is complaining bitterly of this demand, and in its behalf various accusations are made. The fact has lately appeared that an employee of the office is interested as a partner in a rival abstract company. McKenzie and others, when a certified record is wanted at the recorder's office a legitimate charge of $1.50 is made for the certification. The abstract company that refers to never pays this fee.

A further sensation was caused by the appointment as receiver of Alexander McKenzie, the individual by whom the petition had been filed. The real mover in the injunction proceedings, as appeared at once, was a man named Hubbard, a member of the local law firm and a citizen of North Dakota, in which State Mr. McKenzie resides. Mr. Hubbard and Mr. McKenzie make no secret of the fact that they used their efforts in Washington last winter to secure the adoption of a clause in the pending Alaska Code bill declaring the titles of claims stated by aliens to be invalid.

Mr. McKenzie is president of a corporation organized in New York and Washington last winter and known as the Alaska Gold Mining Company. He formerly lived in New York, but for some time has been a citizen of North Dakota. He was one of the receivers of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The company brought a large amount of machinery to Alaska, consisting principally of a thorough equipment for prospecting. The plan was to locate on the beach about six miles west of Nome, adjoining one of the company's tundra claims. Beach mining did not pay, and operations in the department of the company's interests have been suspended. The company owned no creek property of value, and the tundra claims which it possesses are of little value. Beach mining did not pay, and operations in the department of the company's interests have been suspended. The company owned no creek property of value, and the tundra claims which it possesses are of little value.

McKenzie Takes Charge. Receiver McKenzie was instructed by the court to assume the management of all the claims involved in the receivership, of which there are six, to operate them if he elected to do so, and to make a proper accounting to the court for all receipts and expenditures. His bond was fixed at $30,000—$5,000 for each claim.

The allegations made in the petitions rest on the facts set forth in the following statement made by one who is conversant with the history of the Anvil Creek claims: "In the months of September and October, 1898, certain parties not then citizens of the United States discovered gold on Anvil Creek. They proceeded at once to acquire the same by location and otherwise. Later on other persons came up from Golovin Bay, and, for reasons that will appear further on, relocated most of the properties. The relocators allege, first, that the original locators, three in number, were at the time aliens; second, that they did not stake the properties as required by the statutes, but merely set up a notice setting forth their claims; third, that a majority of the claims were located on alleged powers of attorney in behalf of persons not then here, and in instances, not in the country.

"After locating the properties many of the original locators left the country, and it was after that that the others appeared on the scene. In the following spring certain representatives were made to Court Commissioner Shepard and accompanied by a detachment of military, he came from St. Michael and instituted court at Council City to try cases of alleged trespass set up against the relocators. The court practically ignored the claims of the defendants, and two of them, Melving and Waterston, were arrested, taken to St. Michael and held there for some time. Later on Lieutenant Spalding, with a detachment of soldiers, was sent here and a number of other men were ejected from the disputed claims. During the following summer it became known to Judge Johnson, of the United States Court, that the relocators were here, and he finally arrived in August, a year ago, but would give no immediate relief. However, complaints were filed against the occupants of the several claims, and the matter then held in abeyance until the arrival of Judge Noyes."

McKenzie, who was appointed by Mr. Noyes, set up against the relocators the same claims, and the matter then held in abeyance until the arrival of Judge Noyes. McKenzie, who was appointed by Mr. Noyes, set up against the relocators the same claims, and the matter then held in abeyance until the arrival of Judge Noyes.

Daughter of a Kentucky Horseman Saves Five People.

The Coachman Falls From His Box, Leaving His Horses Without a Guiding Hand—Rescuer Crawls Through a Window to Whittrees and Gets Hold of a Dragging Rein.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Miss Ada Mayo, daughter of Col. Charles L. Mayo, the famous horseman, of Lexington, Ky., saved the lives of five persons in a runaway early this morning.

She climbed through the narrow window of a bus to the whittrees and stopped two horses dashing down the winding road between Pleasure Bay and Seabright, N. J. The coachman had fallen from the box. A. H. Calif, of this city, Treasurer of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, with Mrs. Calif and their guests, Miss Alice Neale and Mrs. Winston Barrett, of Chicago, and Miss Ralley, attended a theatrical performance in Pleasure Bay last night. They drove there in an opera bus and about midnight started to return home.

They had gone some distance when it was noticed that the horses were moving at unusual speed. Mr. Calif leaped out to warn the coachman when he discovered the man was not in the box. The lines were dragging at the feet of the horses and there was nothing to stop them. Mr. Calif jumped from the bus, hoping to catch the horses, but he fell and was badly bruised.

Miss Ralley crawled through a window at the head of the bus, and she pulled the head of the bus to a stop. She then crawled through a window at the head of the bus, and she pulled the head of the bus to a stop. SOCIAL AND PERSONAL Chevalier Trentanove has returned from Springfield, Mo., where he went to participate in the laying of the foundation of the Confederate monument for which he received the commission some time ago. The design, which represents a soldier in Confederate uniform, will be made of Italian marble, and the pedestal of granite quarried in Vermont. The chevalier will sail for Florence, September 15, on the Verona, to complete his work, and expects to return in December.

Gen. Henry Kay Douglas, of Hagerstown, is at Bar Harbor, and is participating in the gaieties of that exclusive resort. General Douglas is noted for his gallantry and is always welcomed by the fair sex. He can "do" a cakewalk with the same ease with which he makes a pretty speech. He is a versatile man, and, therefore, a valuable addition to society.

A pleasant surprise party was given to Miss Alice E. Hatch recently at her residence on the 4th Street northwest. Among the guests were Misses Edith Alkridge, M. Brodas, Etta and Fern Hodkins, Harriet and Jessie Swartwood, Irene and Louise Loomis, Louisa, Eva Hatch and Messrs. Giffman, Aldridge, Roy, Hatch, and Motherhead. The early part of the evening was spent in games and the latter refreshments were served. Miss Hatch has now gone to Chicago to begin a course of study for a home mission work.

A "dove" german, danced by the father sex, was the special entertainment of last week at the recently opened Springs, with the gallants of the resort, together with the families of the dancers as lookers-on of the scene. The figures were unique, each one seeming more beautiful than the one preceding. The leaf figure, with the long scarf, covered with tinsel and burlesque, the kamona figure, where the girls slipped into their bright-bued kamomas and unfurled their fans with such magic that one seemed transfixed to the Mikado's court; the wheel figure with parasols, and the candle and doll figure, the german ending at last with "a drill of flags." The handsome favors were ordered from New York by Miss Katharine Hayes. And the beautiful prize, which was the grand prize of the evening, a circle of gold leaves, forming a breastpin, was presented by Mrs. E. B. Terry, of this city, and won by Miss Meble, of New Orleans.

PARIED AT THE ALTAR. Quarrel Over a Bride Breaks Up a Revival. RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 4.—For a singular reason a revival near Durham was abruptly ended Sunday. W. E. Massey some months ago married a young woman of Durham, and a few minutes after the wedding she was seized by some of her relatives and their friends and forcibly taken from him and has since been a prisoner. Massey was at the revival. Her parents took her there. She attempted to go to her husband, but was so annoyed that this was during the meeting at the church, and the sensational scene so annoyed the minister that he said the meeting would end if there was any more trouble. Saturday it was openly stated that the friends of the husband would by force take the wife and restore her to her husband. The church and the people are divided into two factions by reason of the trouble.
