

Dr. Shade's Electric Parlors.

How to Treat Complicated, Chronic and So-called Incurable Diseases by Dr. Shade's Improved Methods of Using Static Electricity in Conjunction With His Eclectic Remedies.

Dr. Shade has been working on his improved methods more than a year—really ever since. He announced his discovery in 1892. The above picture represents a lady taking a treatment of static electricity for nervous trouble, which is pleasant and refreshing; also a gentleman in the act of receiving treatment for lung trouble. The clothing not being a hindrance, an embarrassing feature is removed by Dr. Shade's improved method of the Grotte methods, which requires a nude state of the chest and back or part to be treated. It matters not what your trouble may be, you will do well and make no mistake by consulting Dr. Shade. Thirty years' practice, the oldest and most successful specialist in Washington; also late editor of the "North American Medical Review," and author of many articles on continued articles for seven months on Pathology of Disease, Infectious Diseases, including Tuberculosis, Preventive Medicine, etc. He also wrote on Bright's Disease and many other diseases for such journals as the "Medical World," the "Medical Brief," the "Medical Summary," the "North Carolina Medical Journal," the "Albion," the "Medical Times," and "The Register," the "Health Item," etc. Dr. Shade uses the finest and latest improved Crookes Tube for X-ray examination in diagnosing complicated diseases. In less than ten years the physician who is not equipped with the late improved appliances of electricity will be considered way behind the times, as he really is now because he is depending on old methods in this aggressive day of rapid strides and startling cures performed by static electricity. "Wake up; wake up! that sleep-in-the-old-ruts-of-medicine bestir yourself," Dr. Shade says he was in the same old ruts for over twenty years. Yes, in the next decade hundreds and thousands of wide-awake physicians will have just as an outfit as Dr. Shade, though it is said his electric parlors are the finest and best equipped in America. Dr. Shade makes no charge for consultation.

If you have been deceived by physicians and disappointed by their poor success in treating your case by the old way of medicines alone; if you are discouraged and have declared you would never go to another doctor; if your case is seemingly hopeless, and you have about given up, see Dr. Shade at once, for three physicians and scores of the laity in Washington have been cured by his improved methods after Washington doctors had given them up as hopeless cases.

Static electricity is entirely different from galvanic or feradic electricity. While many persons would not dare use the latter, static is safe and beneficial in all cases, no matter what the trouble may be, because it is a natural element of the body.

Dr. Shade also uses static electricity to transmit or convey medications into diseased organs, lungs, kidneys, spine, stomach, nerve centers, liver, spleen, brain and nervous diseases, paralysis, sciatica, rheumatism, locomotor ataxia, enlarged and diseased joints, tumors, buncles, and in treating successfully loss of vitality, nervous prostration, general debility, weak and exhausted functions of the physical system.

In treating lung, throat, and catarrhal diseases, static electricity is also administered by his large static machines. The treatment by static electricity is very successful when used in conjunction with his Eclectic Remedies in treating indigestion, heart trouble, stomach and intestinal trouble, chronic appendicitis, laryngitis, vertigo, tired feeling, dizziness, obesity, vertigo, constipation, fullness after eating, eruptions of food, and all diseases of men, women, and children.

HEAVY HORSES IN DEMAND

The Available Supply in British Markets Depleted by War.

Expressers, Needled, and Fancy Prices Paid for Them Here and Abroad—Hints to Breeders as to the Exact Kind of Stock Required.

Attention is directed by most of the British agricultural stock papers to the fact that the insatiable demand of the War Office in London for transport and artillery horses has so depleted the available supply of vanners in all the great centres of population in Britain and the British Isles that the market for that class of horses bids fair to be high in price in the spring. This, says a trade paper, will undoubtedly lead to large exportations from America for several seasons to come, and the Agricultural Department is now looking for a more certain source of supply.

The vanner is what is called an expresser in this country and perhaps lost less in value, relatively speaking, during the slump that followed the panic of 1893 than any other kind of market horse. The vanner, or expresser, is the most perfect of the draft stallion and the clean-legged mare. Certain active draft stallions have become famous in their respective districts for the number and quality of offspring they have sired. Such stallions have always been deservedly popular and probably always will be.

The expresser is a heavy-boned, active, smoothly turned horse weighing around 1,500 pounds, able to trot off squarely and sharply with fairly strong legs, but not shiry, and in Britain must do his work quickly and get back again. The hours these horses must work are not long. They could not stand the strain if they were two kinds, static is safe and beneficial expected to get over the ground and pull home again, in order that the driver may proceed on his devious way again behind a fresh horse.

GREAT JAUNT FOR A LAD.

A Jersey City Boy Makes the Trip Around the World.

Jersey City, N. J., March 13.—Alexander Salmon, fourteen years old, of this city, has just returned from a voyage around the world. He is nearly a year making the trip, but is back again with a thrilling story of adventure. Here is his narrative:

"I had been just wild to go to sea for a long time, but mamma said no. I was a messenger boy for the Postal Telegraph, and I was pretty tired of it. I kept asking mamma to let me go, but she said so at last I went aboard the steamer Menante and told them I wanted to ship as cabin boy.

WOMEN'S REMEDIES.

Women as Well as Men Suffer and Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

To Prove what SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney Remedy, will do for YOU, Every Reader of The Times May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Free by Mail.

Among the many famous cures of Swamp-Root investigated by The Times, none seem to speak higher of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy than the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers.

Mrs. H. N. Wheeler, of 117 High Rock St., Lynn, Mass., writes on November 2, 1900: "About 18 months ago I had a very severe spell of the disease of life as more than I can stand. It is a boon to the weak and ailing."

MRS. H. N. WHEELER.

Did Not Know I Had Kidney Trouble,

I somehow felt certain my kidneys were the cause of my trouble. My sister, Mrs. C. E. Little, of Lynn, advised me to give Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a trial, and I bought a bottle. Inside of three days commenced to get relief. I felt better, my back was better, and I could pass but little at a time, and then only after suffering great pain. My physical condition was such that I could not get up and run down. The doctor said my kidneys were not affected, and while I perform her necessary work, who is always tired and overworked, who feels that the course of life is more than she can stand. It is a boon to the weak and ailing.

How to find out if you need Swamp-Root.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs. The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. So when your kidneys are weak or out of order you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

Many women suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not correctly understood. In such cases they are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some kind is the cause of their distressing troubles. Disordered kidneys are the chief cause of their distressing troubles. Headaches, nervousness, headache, puffiness or dark circles under the eyes, rheumatism, dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine, with strong odor, frequent desire to pass it, or a burning or stinging sensation—these are all unmistakable signs of kidney trouble.

There is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take your urine on rising about four o'clock, place it in a glass or bottle, and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if cool, then we can tell you, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention. Other symptoms abound that you need Swamp-Root.

It is pleasant to take, and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney, Liver, and Bladder Remedy, is so remarkably successful that a special arrangement has been made by which it may be had absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about kidney and bladder troubles, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured by Swamp-Root.

Swamp-Root is sold in bottles of 50 cents and $1.00. Write for a free sample bottle to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Haller were away from home yesterday afternoon. The boy went into a bedroom, locked the door, and, climbing on the bed, lighted a cigarette. He smoked until drowsy from the nicotine, then he crawled out from under the bedclothes. He dropped around for it but it was lost among the clothes, and he decided to let it go and light another. He was pulling contentedly when suddenly the bedclothes burst into flame. Samuel ran screaming into the room. People in the street saw smoke and closed a fire alarm.

CATARRH

Catarrh has become such a common disease that a person entirely free from it is almost unknown. It is a simple inflammation of the nose and throat. It is, in fact, a complicated and very dangerous disease; if not at first, it will become chronic and will contaminate by the foul secretions, and the poison through the general circulation is carried to all parts of the system.
