TIM HURST WILL UMPIRE

His First Appearance of the Season to Be Made in To-day's Game.

Tom Brown Dons a Senatorial Uniform—Will Play in Right Field Against the Browns.

The patrons of National Park this afternoon will be gratified in two ways. They will witness the initial appearance in a Washington uniform of first baseman Tom Brown in right field, and will have the additional pleasure of seeing the reappearance in the National League of that peer of umpires, "Tim" Hurst.

Tom Brown needs no introduction to baseball readers. He is one of the great right-handers of the profession, and as runs count, his worth to the Senators can be easily estimated.

Mr. Earl Wagner knew that Tom would be released, and before the other league magnates had time to decipher his meaning by a group move that set their designing managers at naught.

Tom Brown was considered the fastest player in the league to reach first base on a ball of short hit, and he is Billy Hamilton in the matter of stealing second and third. He is not a heavy hitter, but always manages to meet the ball for something when it hits.

A swift runner, and a very quick and accurate in returning the ball to the diamond. He will strengthen the Senators at a speedy time and is sure to become a local favorite.

Tim Hurst means good umpiring, and as such a credit is due to the Washington presence of the tow-headed "king" will be sufficient to draw every fan in the city to this afternoon's game. Tim, until last Saturday, had been deferred from the National League staff on account of the objections of one or two League managers, but the demand of the public was too great to be ignored, and the objection was lately withdrawn.

President Young was only too glad to resign Hurst, and last night in making him a member of his official family again. It was very grateful in President Young to assign Jim to Washington upon his re-appearance, for it was his friends in this city who have been most assiduous in having him restored to his position. Hurst has been engaged the present season in the Eastern League, where he gave the satisfaction that has earned him the reputation he enjoys.

GIANTS' NEW MANAGER.

Tom Burns, of the Eastern League, will handle the Club. The management of the New York club has apparently at last reached a climax. It was learned from a reliable source last night that a contract to take the management of the club next season had been signed by Tom Burns, the old Chicago third baseman.

Since leaving the national league Burns has been associated with the minor league clubs, and the season has had the management of the Springfield, Mass., club, of the Eastern League.

The magnates of the New York team have been on the lookout for a man to take the club in hand for next season for some time. They have realized that the poor showing made by the three mighty Giants has been due to poor management, and when it was found that Burns could be secured they signed him without delay.

VALKYRIE III TAKES A SPIN.

Shows Herself to be Very Fast in Light Tackle. Light Valkyrie III is a witch in high winds. She took her first spin under racing canvas in American waters this afternoon, and while the manner in which she was handled made it impossible to obtain a positive line on her behavior, enough was shown to arouse some apprehension as to the safety of the American's cup, particularly if there happens to be light winds and a smooth sea on the international race days.

Onting Club Ladies' Night. The regular semi-monthly ladies' night of the Washington Onting Club will be given to-night at its delightful country clubhouse, near Eckington. A programme of musical and other features will be presented, and an informal hop in the gymnasium will close the evening's pleasure.

Two games were played at National Park yesterday afternoon between the Colts and Senators. The "White Stockings" took the first one after eleven well-contested innings by a score of 5 to 4, and tied the second game after Schmidt's men had taken a commanding lead, and seemingly had the game well in hand.

Anderson was pitted against Hutchinson in the first contest and pitched a mastery game, keeping the hits of the visitors well scattered. The Senators gave him royal support and showed a great reversal of form, playing the game in championship style.

It was not until the eleventh inning that the Colts were able to force the winning run over the plate, when Wilmoth hit a home run into the Senators' territory, who not under it, but unfortunately the ball struck his hands and booted into the bleachers, enabling the runner to make the circuit of the bases.

Adrian Constantine Anson had up to this time a vague suspicion that his Colts were doomed to defeat, as Anderson was steadily improving as each inning progressed, and very few of the Colts had been able to gauge his delivery, and it was a matter of conjecture and serious doubt how long the game would be prolonged.

ANSON HEAVED A SIGH. When in the old man saw the ball bound into the bleachers, however, he heaved a sigh of relief, for he knew the battle had been won and his proteges would have one more game to their credit.

Hutchinson and Kitzinger were in the points for the visitors, and "Old Hutch" never pitched better ball since he has been under Adrian's watchful eye, and grand-papa has held guardianship papers over the young man for some time. The Senators found his curves with great difficulty, and generally succeeded in knocking the ball direct into some hidden haunts.

The game, however, was most interesting from start to finish, and the spectators were kept in a state of nervous excitement until the last man was out.

There was only an intermission of a few minutes between the first and second games, when Empire Keefe called play at 4:30 p. m., a crowd numbering over two thousand people was on the grounds, and their bright costumes lent color and interest to the scene.

Joe Corbett, who resembles in no slight degree his brother, made his first appearance in the box for the Senators on the home grounds. If the work he did yesterday is any criterion of what may be expected of him in the future, Gus Schmeitz, has made no mistake in getting his name attached to a Washington contract.

CORBETT'S FINE WORK. Several times during the game he showed remarkable hand work, striking out several of the Colts' best hitters. He also fielded his position well, and in every way deserved the plaudits which were showered upon him.

Dolan, one of Anson's this season's finds, did the trotting for the Colts, and the Senators took kindly to his curves, hitting out five runs in the second inning by opportune hitting.

The game, very much like the one of yesterday, was a seesaw affair, and like it, resulted in a tie at the end of the seventh inning. Empire Keefe again called the contest on account of darkness, although the White Stockings had scored two runs in their half of the eighth inning, and in all probability would have finished winners. Keefe, however, is not friendly to dark places, and, very much against the protests of Anson and his Colts, called the game.

"Your Uncle" will not have a chance to try conclusions with the Washingtons again this season, so had to charge the game up to the profit and loss side of the ledger. He was much disappointed that his Colts did not take four games at the Capital, and left a sadder and wiser man, vowing vengeance the next time the two clubs meet.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN. Had the Senators made fourteen hits off "Old Hutch" of Chicago, they might have won the game, or had they made twelve safe passes at the spheroid this story would probably be different. But the Senators are slackers, are in the toils, "as it were," or "so to speak."

and always fastening its dredging hooks into their anatomies. Anson's men are from the Magic City, and it is a good goal that keep tab on their bat bags and hangs barb-wire fences under Duke his just long enough to develop them into winning home runs. To retrospect a minute, that barb-wire fence skirting the right field territory of National Park has cost the home club seven games thus far since we know that before the first game yesterday afternoon made Chicago's third victory, first and last, and Pittsburg and Cleveland have two scalps each as the result of the proximity of the railing surrounded by thorns. The Messrs. Wagner should estimate their losses in the forests for their pennant winners next year. As it stands, it is worse than a wild pitcher or a charley-horse infielder against the Senators' chances to climb a round higher on "The Times" pennant ladder.

Then, again, the Senators never win an extra inning contest. They fight to the bitter end and have a way of keeping a rooster's heart up in his mouth, but in the grand final the other fellows get the winning run.

ANDERSON NOT BLAMED. It was so in Brooklyn with Anderson in the box for thirteen times against the Baltimore team, and for the third time yesterday afternoon at National Park. No fault can be found with Varney, nor with his eight assistants. They did their very best and died game. The score showed for itself—the barbed wire did the rest.

It happened like this: After the game had passed the first ten innings, with the score tied, 4 to 4, and after the Senators had their eleventh man at the bat with no addition to their run column, the Chicago came in and without much ado worked Wilmoth to second base. Willie Lange then sighted down to Anderson, and when he saw Varney put the twist for an "out and down" curve on the ball he calculated that a proper swing of his wagon tongue would put it over the right field fence and into home run territory.

Willie figured the matter almost to an inch, and what he felt about the barbed wire helped out. Mercer made a great sprint for the ball and his hands, the ball and the barbs met—the ball got the best of the argument and dropped on the home run side.

The Senators presented the same broken-up team as on the day before, with the exception of Mercer taking Man's place in right field.

FELTRAC LIMPED AROUND. Plucky Schback limped around left, with his handicap, took good care of everything that came his way.

Abbey was timely at bat and played a perfect field. Frank Schbeck was very much in evidence, but the twist for a quick double play to Cartwright that won rounds of applause. Anderson pitched a better game than Hutchinson and deserved the game.

Abbey and Joyce worked a pretty double steal in the first inning, which resulted in the first tally for the Colts. After afterwards scoring on McGuire's fly out. Schback led at the bat with a double and a single and was followed by Joyce and Abbey with two singles each.

In the fifth of things Uncle Anse led his club in batting, getting three singles, and he scored the first run for the Colts.

It was in the sixth inning that he broke the goose egg. He singled to center, was advanced to second by Dahlen and scored on Truby's hit over second base. Lange hit the ball hard and often, and ex-Senator Wilmoth had a hard tag.

Dahlen had two errors on easy chances at short, but as no runs resulted, Uncle Anse did not reproach him further than to give him the pained face. The score: Washington, A. B. R. H. P. O. A. E. THE SECOND GAME. The Colts were up first in the second game.

Everett faced Corbett, hit to Schbeck, and was an easy out at first. Wilmoth went out, Cartwright to Cartwright. Little Eva Lange hit for a single and scored on the old man's single into left garden. Dahlen closed the inning by flying out to Schbeck. One run.

Schbeck out, Everett to Anson. Abbey flies out to Lange. Joyce hit for a single, Old Reliable popped up a little fly which was easily taken care of by Truby. No runs.

Ryan hit to Schbeck and went out at second. Truby struck out. Dolan hit to Joyce, who made a phenomenal stop, allowing the runner but one base. Donohue went out on a fly to Schbeck. Everett hit past third for a single, scoring Ryan, and Wilmoth closed the inning by flying out to Mercer. One run.

For the Senators Cartwright took a walk and Al Schback followed his example a few minutes later. Mercer hunted and was safe on first. Boyd hit for a single, scoring Cartwright and Schbeck. Corbett hit to Dahlen, who fumbled the ball, allowing Mercer to score. Schbeck went out, Dolan to Anson. Abbey singled, scoring Boyd and Corbett, but went out at second. Joyce walked. McGuire closed the inning by going out at first, Dolan to Anson. Five runs.

Little Eva found one to his liking in the third and placed it over Schbeck's head. "Your Uncle" went out on a fly to Schback. Dahlen hit a high fly to Schback, who took care of it all right, all right. Ryan went out at first on a grand stop by Joyce, retiring the champion. No runs.

CARTWRIGHT STOLE THIRD. Cartwright took a base on balls. Schback put one into Wilmoth's hands. Wil Mercer put one out in center field which Lange took care of. Cartwright stole third while the best Boyd could do was to pop up a little fly to Dahlen, retiring the side. No runs.

The "old man" felt it his duty to make a single, scoring Wilmoth. Dahlen walked. Ryan hit a high fly to Schbeck, scoring Lange. Truby hit for a single, scoring Mercer. Boyd flew out to Wilmoth, who made a great throw to Scrapy, retiring Truby at third. Three runs.

Senator Schback went out on a fly to Lange. Mercer went out to Little Eva, who ran into Ryan's territory to capture the ball. Boyd flew out to Wilmoth. POPPED UP A FLY. Joyce took care of Dolan's fly. Everett popped up a fly to "Gentleman Joe" and Wilmoth cracked out an angle, but the best Lange could do was to fly out to Mercer, who made a neat running catch. No runs.

Corbett hit to Anson, and was out at first. Schbeck struck out and Abbey had a hit to Wilmoth. Dolan hit for a double. Everett pushed one out for a base. Lange fouled out to Cartwright. The Old Man hit for a single, scoring Everett. Truby went out, Corbett to Cartwright. Two runs.

Schback fled out to Wilmoth. At this juncture Keefe called the game on account of darkness. Score six to six.

MEMPHIS' THIRD SHUT OUT. Not One of the Reds Managed to Get Beyond Second Base.

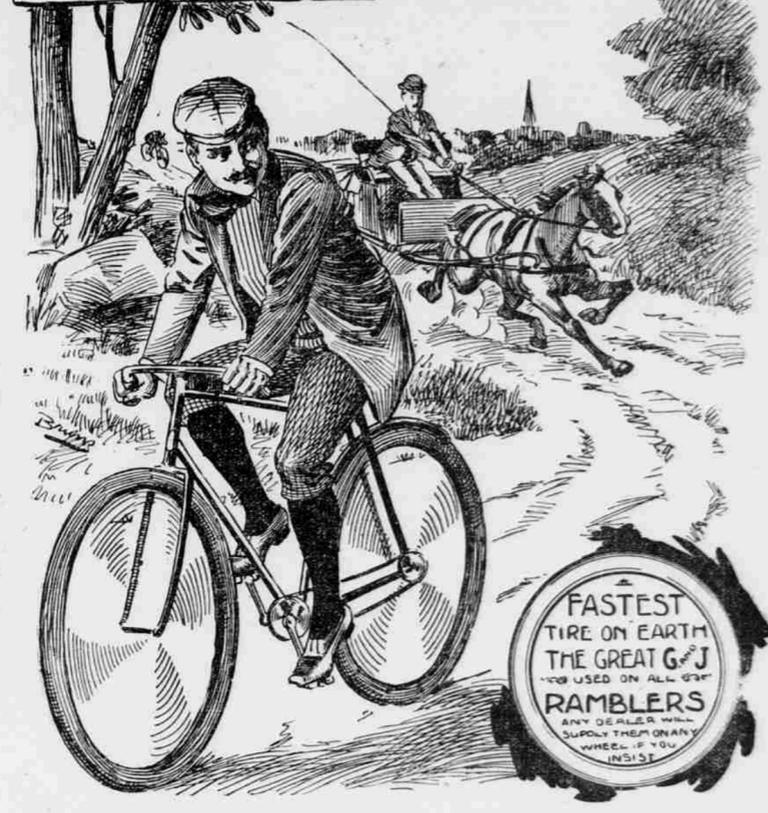

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—McMahon today scored his third shut-out since his recent return to the mound. He pitched a magnificent game, and was given faultless support. The first hit was not met at a man beyond second base, and only seven of them reached first. On the other hand the champions hit Dwyer's delivery at will after the third inning and batted out a victory.

Hoey made a beautiful catch in center and threw to the plate, completing a double play. Smith and McPhee also accepted several difficult chances. Keeler, Jennings and Gleason made the prettiest fielding plays for the Baltimoreans. Attendance, 2,300. Score: Memphis, A. B. R. H. P. O. A. E. McGraw, 5; 2; 2; 2; 1; 0. Keeler, 4; 1; 3; 3; 0; 0. GIANTS PLAYED POOR BALL. And the Louisville Took a Game From Them.

New York, Aug. 27.—Scarcely 350 persons saw the Colonels defeat the Giants at the Polo Grounds to-day. The New Yorks played poor ball, and Meekin's pitching was not of the best. Score: Louisville, A.
