THREATENED HIS FATHER

John Carroll Arrested Upon Complaint of His Parents.

Abused Their Kindness by Continually Getting Drunk and Creating Disturbances at Home.

John Carroll was arrested last evening upon complaint of his father, Patrick Carroll, of No. 1509 Sixteenth street, who charged his son with threats.

Patrick Carroll, who is a clerk in the document room of the War Department, and his wife are of a quiet, retiring disposition, and reside in quiet neighborhood, but for a number of nights there have been regular disturbances at the Carroll home, such as the rattling of doors, the sound of oaths and the loud tones of an apparently intoxicated man.

"It is all on account of whisky," said Mrs. Carroll last night. "John, who is twenty-six years old, has been supported by me. I have been clothing and feeding him, and night after night he gets drunk and comes home and arouses every one unless we let him in."

"This began some time ago, and in order to quiet him I opened the door in spite of his father's protest and allowed him to enter. He would get out doors and create the same kind of disturbance when he desired money. Saturday it was but a repetition of the same thing, and he refused to go to bed, saying that he would stay in the house, but he came home, and knowing how much I dislike a disturbance being made in my house, I then came back and swear and yell to let me in."

Here the mother broke down in her story and between her sobs told how yesterday all was quiet and suspicion of danger was absent from their minds, the door opened and there stood the son. He demanded from his father money to go to work, and when he refused, saying it would be spent for drink. The young man went through the house and into the rear yard, following his father. While in the yard he issued a threat to threaten his parent unless he got the money, and Mr. Carroll alleges his son seized a tall pole in the yard and threatened to hit him with it.

"I have put up with as long as I possibly can," said Mr. Carroll. "He has never done any work, and I have not asked him to do so. If he had only behaved himself, and had not threatened to threaten me, I would have been satisfied. He has done with him because the neighbors will complain of the noise and disturbance, and we feel very nervous about it."

Young Carroll refused to discuss the matter last night, but after he had been in the cell some hours, sent a messenger to his parents, begging them not to prosecute him, but the father decided to let the law take its course.

CHRISTIAN VISION.

Dr. Hamlin's Sermon Upon the Conversion of Paul.

The Rev. Tunis Hamlin preached to an unusually large congregation yesterday at the morning services at the Church of the Covenant.

The subject of the discourse was "Christian Vision," based on the words of the Apostle Paul, found in the Book of Acts, chapter 17, verses 22-34.

In the opening prayer, Dr. Hamlin related the history of the conversion of Paul from his way to Damascus. It was not a three or four days' journey, but a long and arduous one, and the speaker dwelt upon the remarkable change in the soul of Paul.

It was not logic, for had it been he would have not and refused it with logic more keen. It was not fear, for he had no such feeling, for he was mad and his heart hardened and he was too prejudiced to listen to reason or advice to matter to what quarter it came.

What was it, then, that brought this marvellous change? It was a vision, not a dream or fancy, but a heavenly vision, a revelation of the power of Christ, the will of God, a revelation of the truth that Christ is divine.

"But there is another vision," said he, "of self. It is when we behold this and we recognize our sinfulness and our need of God, and then our eyes are opened to the truth, and we are turned to our Bibles and seek it and there you will find it."

SHOULD HOLD THE MASTERY

Consul General Jernigan's Views of United States Commercial Power.

Holds Half as Much of the World's Banking as All Europe Combined.

Consul General Jernigan, stationed at Shanghai, reports to the Department of State that a cotton mill, under British management, will soon be erected in Shanghai.

The erection of the mill was made possible by the treaty of peace between China and Japan.

The prospectus for the first cotton mill was greeted with applause when announced in the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce. The prospectus of the new company are bright, and raise its formation three large cotton mills are contemplated, the largest of which will be under the management of a well-known American firm.

Mr. Jernigan says that it is believed that China has in contemplation a banking system, organized after the Western system, and raising its formation three large cotton mills are contemplated, the largest of which will be under the management of a well-known American firm.

In connection with the currency subject Mr. Jernigan urges the establishment of an American bank in Shanghai. At present the trade between the United States and China is through the medium of exchange negotiable through British banks in China.

The industrial products on exchange could be made as well by an American bank. In conclusion the report says:

"In the value of manufactured products and banking power the United States have no superior and no equal in the world. In 1893 the manufactured products of Great Britain were valued at $4,200,000,000, and those of the United States at $2,000,000,000, compared with the industrial statistics of European nations, discloses the fact that the joint German and French manufactured products will not much more than make up the difference between the values of American and British products.

With such a balance sheet placed by the side of the three principal manufacturing countries of Europe, why should Americans fear competition, and why should they not dominate the commerce of Asia and the East?

The supremacy of the United States in banking power is no less marked. The total banking power of the world is estimated at $20,000,000,000. Of this North America, mainly the United States, controls $6,000,000,000, while all Europe, including Great Britain, controls the balance, showing that the United States holds about half as much of the world's banking power as all Europe combined, and greatly more than any single country in Europe or the world. The country then, which controls the world's finance should hold the mastery of the world's commerce, and the chief share of the world's wealth. This is the problem which the business men of the United States should solve, and by well directed efforts, in their favor."

FUNERAL PARTY INJURED.

Buggy Containing Several People and a Child's Body Upset and Demolished.

Seymour Lacy, colored, is confined at the Fifth precinct police station on a charge of fast driving. Lacy was brought over from the Washington station last night, having been arrested by Officer Farnham.

The man's arrest has brought to light an interesting occurrence. Lacy was driving his horse on Sherman avenue in Hillsdale Thursday and collided with a buggy, the occupants of which were John West, of 408 Rhode street, Mrs. Annie West, his mother, and an infant corpse in a coffin.

West, who is an undertaker, was on his way to Brown's cemetery with the child. All the occupants were thrown from the buggy into the road. West and the coffin rolled into a ditch together and Mrs. West fell into the road, breaking her thumb and receiving painful bruises. The buggy was completely wrecked and with the child's corpse and the infant's remains was without further incident to the cemetery. Hence the arrest of Lacy.

Blaze in a Dry Goods Store. Fire broke out in the dry goods store of A. B. Follen, No. 1029 Seventh street northwest, about 9:40 o'clock last night, and before it was extinguished destroyed face curtains, lace and waistbands to the value of about $75. The cause is supposed to be the ignition of a strip of lace from a burning gas jet.

Sold Without License. William Bowles was arrested early Sunday morning by Sergeant Donald McKeown, No. 1029 Seventh street, for selling without license a pair of spectacles at the Fourth precinct station-house, charged with keeping an unlicensed bar.
