TIED UP BY MR. GRISWOLD Anacostia Road Again Suspends All Operations.

HE ORDERED THE CARS IN President Claims His Action Was Due to the Failure to Carry Out the Rejected Agreement—Citizens of the Suburb Indignant at His Course. What the Men Say.

President Griswold yesterday at 1 o'clock ordered his driver conductors to take their cars into the car sheds and leave them there. This action on the part of President Griswold was a surprise to the employees of the road, and they say, without the slightest provocation on their part. Mr. Griswold, it is understood, justifies his action on the ground of the contents of a letter received yesterday containing from Thomas J. Lawrence, master workman of the street railway assembly, in which he repudiated the agreement entered into on Friday last between members of the assembly and the president of the road. The terms of the agreement referred to have been published in The Times, the scale of wages agreed on being $1.27 1/2 per day from December to March and $1.36 1/2 from November to May.

These terms were agreed to by President Griswold and Messrs. Dent, Sears and Baker, of the Railway Assembly. The master workman, however, was not authorized by their organization to enter into any agreement, and acted solely, as they thought at the time, in the interest of the employees of the Anacostia road.

AGREEMENT REJECTED. In order that there should be no misunderstanding about the matter, Master Workman Lawrence called a meeting of the employees of the Anacostia road on Saturday night to give them an opportunity to express themselves. This they did, and with a single exception, rejected the agreement. There was but one course then left for Master Workman Lawrence to pursue, and that was to inform President Griswold of the action taken at the meeting. This he did yesterday in the following communication:

On receipt of this communication President Griswold ordered the cars to be taken out of the sheds, to remain until further orders. Superintendent Newton, it is said, told the men when they were about leaving the sheds that if they chose they could continue work at $1.25 per day, provided they would work even at the very best wages as union men. This proposition was flouted by the men, who said that they would stand by it if the road could.

STUCK TO THE UNION. They, with one accord said they would neither work for $1.25 a day nor leave the union. In the meantime the citizens of Anacostia are the only sufferers. They are up in arms against any such treatment by the employees of the road, and freely express their opinion about the matter. There is one thing certain, they say, the blame cannot be placed on the men, for they were willing to work even at the very best wages they were getting. They claim that they support the road, and are very indignant at being inconvenienced by President Griswold whenever the wheels strike him, without a word of warning.

Master Workman Lawrence was seen last night in his car on the Metropolitan line. He regrets the situation very much, he says, not only on account of the men being thrown out of employment, but also on account of the inconvenience to the citizens of Anacostia. The citizens over there had always sympathized with the men who were working in all kinds of weather for starvation wages and he is indignant if it could be helped that they would be given accommodations as soon as possible.

With this object in view a special meeting of the Railway Assembly will be called and the matter will be referred to the citizens of Anacostia. The citizens over there had always sympathized with the men who were working in all kinds of weather for starvation wages and he is indignant if it could be helped that they would be given accommodations as soon as possible.

They came from the Western Union office at St. Louis. The sports had tickets to the fight and they said that a large number were close behind them. Then, sotto voce: "Do you know where Fitzsimmons is? We are very anxious to know. It is said he is coming before his forfeit money, but he won't get it." The last thing Gov. Clarke said tonight as he left for home was that he would see that Corbett and Fitzsimmons were kept apart.

Simply say they can't fight in Arkansas," was his parting exclamation to the United Press. Every eye is now on the awaiting developments of tomorrow. Gov. Clarke will leave for Hot Springs, he thinks, tomorrow morning. This city is full of strange faces to-night, bound for Hot Springs, but many have concluded to be over here and watch developments.
