WHERE IT WILL HIT.

WHERE IT WILL HIT.

It is also understood to mean that the river and narrior committee will be so constructed as to reduce those appropriations to the lowest points consistent with the needs of the Government.

If this policy be ratifially observed it will follow that a number of small streams and barbors upon which moneys have been expended with more or less theratily in past years, will be passed by the next House notwithstanding the probability that the members interested in these works may use their influence to defeat the bill.

Mr. Reed mss not, so Lar as can be learned formulated any poincy with respect to tariff or financial legislation; Not only be, but the other Republican leaders in the House are disposed to await the President's message before deciding what course the party shall pursue upon this and other questions of national importance.

MANY SUGGESTIONS OFFERED.

MANY SUGGESTIONS OFFERED. MANY SUGGESTIONS OFFERED.

The continued deficiency in the Treasury is causing some uncasiness among the members, and the suggestions which have been advanced to meet the situation are as diverse as the sections they represent.

The Pennsylvania members, particularly, feel that the increased receipts should result from new tariff legislation, which will give greater protection to some of the Northern and Enstern industries and at the same time samply the amount which is now lacking in the customs revenue.

Some of the New England members arrue that wood should again he placed on the dustable list and a general revision made of the wooden schedule. If this does not check the deficit other changes should be made until the proper figures are reached.

There is, on the other hand, strong reached.

There is, on the other hand, strong objection to a general revision of the tariff, which, it is believed would naturally result if once the work were begun. Some of the Western men suggest additional internal taxation, such, for example, as doubling the tax on beer. CONFLICTS WITH POLICY.

CONFLICTS WITH POLICY.

This, however, is so contrary to the Republican policy of raising all revenues as far as possible from customs duties that it does not meet with general favor. Besides it is regarded as had politics.

Mr. Reed is quoted as saying that no measure increasing tariff rates will, in his opinion, be signed by the President, even if it passes the Senate, which he regards asproblematical.

The contenson that the desired relief can be found in the adoption of a proper currency measure, having for its primary object, the retirement of the greenbacks, does not need the approval of the majority of the Republicans, although it is believed that a recommendation upon these lines will be contained in the President will contend that, under the present tariff law, customs receipts will so increase that they will be equal to all the requirements of the public service.

J. W. EBERT HEARD FROM.

Missing Alexandrian is Stranded in Philadelphia. In Philadelphia.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of John W. Ebert of Alexandria, was partly solved yesterday when Mr. Henry Disner, proprietor of the Hotel Hanover, in this city, received a letter from a friend in Philadelphia, stating that Ebert had called on him for assistance, and that the missing man is stranded there and is in want of funds to defray his return expenses.

Mr. Disner told The Times that this is all the information contained in the letter which last evening was turned over to the Ebert family at Alexandria.

As has otten been seased in The Times.

Mr. Ebert was a member of the German Order of the Black Knights, and the man at Philadelphia who wrote to Mr. Disner is an officer of the order, to whom Ebert had applied for aid. Ebert left his family at Alexandria about three weeks ago for the osternstile purpose of visiting an uncle

STORY OF THE HAZING TOLD

The afternoon session of the board of inquiry, investigating the charge of hazing at the navy yard, was consumed in hearing the testimony of seafmin guider William Jonson, who took the witness stand shortly before the adjournment of the morning session.

The witness was calim and collected and told the story of the hazing and the circumstances which led to it. He charged a white member of the class, named Smith, with throwing a bucket of water on him. He said he saw the bucket in Smith's hands a second or two both before and after the water was thrown, and although he had moved only a step or two, he did not see Smith throw the water. The trouble began shortly after he came to the barracks, and while he was not on friendly terms with the white members of the class, because they would not associate with him, he was able to recomize one of his assailants by his voice.

The first trouble, he said, was caused by A. J. Lamout, who objected to sit by him at the mess-table.

After this, a congnitive, composed of Lamont, Parks and Murady, told him that he must leave the table. At this time Lamont said to him. "You must think people are stuck on you that they would sit at table with you."

On the night he was struck he saw Lamont standing at the foot of his bed. He cried out that he was cut and asked that the gas be lighted, but some one called out. "No, don't light it." His bed was well through, but it was not in as baid a condition as those of the other colored members.

dition as those of the other colored members.

Just after the trouble, the witness said Lamont tried to be very friendly with him inquired as to his condition. He said afterwards that others as well as Lamont showed some concernabouthin. Having been given a list of the class he mentioned many who were friendly to him. Of those present he identified Measrs. Smill, Heil, Dungeo, Lamont, Caldwell, Murlay, Kennedy and Fox as particularly untriendly to him.

After the direct examination he was cross-examined by several of the accused. When asked to specify the day and hour on which he said Heil, one of the members of the class, was awake and saw him "obase" Lamont from his bed he said the did not rem inher, but knew all of the lesser details connected with it. A REMARKABLE EXHIBITION. The Wonders of Acetylene, the New Il-luminant Explained to an Appre-

Immimut Explained to an Appreciative Audience.

One of the most remarkable exhibitions ever held in the city was given restertly evening at No. 734 Fifteenth street, when the wondersof the new illuminant, activience gas, were clearly demonstrated. The exhibition was given before several hundred of our most distinguished citizens, who were enthusiastic in their praises, as the possibilities of the new light were explained hardly in the evening Mr. Fayson illustrated how the acetylene gas is manufactured, the method being so simple that it was readily comprehended by all present.

Acetylene is a clear, coloriess, beave gas of intense brilliancy, and might properly be described as the concentrated expense of coal gas or water gas. In both of these latter it is a vital principle, although erly be described as the concentrated ex-sence of coal gas or water gas. In both of these latter it is a vital principle, although in either it is present to the extent of only 1-2 or 1 1-2 per cent. It may be handled and distributed in substantially the same manner as the more familiar illum-inating gasses, or it may be distributed by means much less complex than these require. Later in the evening Mr. Payson clearly demonstrated to the satisfaction of all pres-ent the superiority of acetylene over all other artificial illuminants. When the ordinary Washington gas was exhibited beside its brilliant rival the comparison was laughable. Although only a one-foot burner was used for the acetylene the vide immantion was dazzling, and a vivid re-flection was cast on the payement without. Altogether the exhibition was a decided success, and congratulations were show-ered upon the gentlemen in charge of the affair.

For the benefit of those who were not tole to be present last night the exhibition will continue during the week.

There is no doubt in the misds of those who witnessed the display that acctylene will be the light of the future, and its manufacture will be haifed with delight yo our clizens who are at present in the intehes of the gas menopoly.

Hearing Before U. S. Commissioner Bell at Philadelphia.

CAPTAIN AND MATE HELD

Contradictory Testimony as To the Presence on Board and Landing of a Party of Fillbusters and Arms and Ammunition-Owner of Vessel Said To Have Got $12,000.

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.-United States Commissioner Bell gave a hearing today to Capt. J. H. S. Wiborg, Chief Mate John P. Capt. J. H. S. Wiborg, Chief Mate Jens P.
Petersen, and Second Mate H. J. Johansen of the Danish fruit steamer Horsa, who were arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out by Jose Congosto, Spanish consul in this city, on the charge of carrying a Cuban fhibastering expedition when she

The hearing room was crowded with the members of the crew of the Horsa. District Attorney Ingraham was the prosecutor and Capt. W. W. Ker, a well-known, attorney, who is associated with the firm of John D.

wao is associated with the firm of John B. Hart & Co., of Philadelphia, who chartered the steamer, conducted the defense.

The Spanish consul, Jose Congasto, accompanied by Lawyer Samuel Dickson, who legady represented him, and the Danish consul, C. M. Waller, were also in attendance.

NO FILIBUSTERS ABOARD The hearing began at 11 a. m., the first witness being Axel Schau, the steward of the Horsa, who was of the opinion that the Horsa, who was of the opinion that when the steamer left the belaware break water on November 10, her course was pointed north, but his testimony as to this was somewhat conflicting.

The witness declared, however, that the Horsa was not boarded by any persons from the time she left Philadelphia until her arrival at Port Antonio, Jamaku. The district attorney laid great stress up in this query and he asked the question in several different ways, his object being to prove that a party of filibusters boarded the boat at sea.

The steward denied that there were any additions to the crew of twenty live at any time during the voyage.

Herman Nethon, the first assistant engi-neer, who refused to take an oath until his arrest was ordered by the commissioner arrest was ordered by the commissioner, he declaring that he could tell the truth without swearing, denied that a tugboat met the Horsa at any those during the voyage.

The witness stated that so fiftbusiers were aboard the steamer, and further said that the only persons on board from the time the boat left Philadelphia until her arrival at Pert Autonio were the members of the at Port Antonio were the members of the MACHINE GUN WAS TESTED.

MACHINE GUN WAS TESTED.

Carl Arnston, a fireman on the Horsa, testified that the steamer took two additional life boats abourd when she left Philadelphia on November 9. After leaving the Delaware breakwater, the witness continued, the steamer proceeded north ward, and at noon on November 10 the anchor was dropped. After lying to for about an hour, a tug boat came alougside, and on hoseded a number of cases and thirty-eight men onto the Horsa.

The party remained on the steamer, Arnston said, until Cuba was reached. The witness understood that two generals and swenty-one officers were among the party-tions, rides, and a machine gun, which were in the cases, were placed amidships, and once during the voyage the machine gus was fired in order to test it.

Arnston testified that each member of the Horsa's crew was to receive $25 for Freeping silent about the expedition, and that he understood from one of the Cuban Hilbusters that John D. Hart, the owner of the vossel, was to get $12,000 for landing the expedition.

Thomas Peser Nellson, the chief engineer, denied in tote that say fillbusters or ony ammunition were placed on board the shin.

Commissioner Beil refused to place the defendant's witnesses under bail, as the district attorney requested, but beld the witness Arnston under $400 bail, and continued the case until Musday, December 16. The decembants were held in $1,000 bail each. It was agreed that in the event of the Horsa not having restorned from Port Antonio by the 18th prox., that the case good be continued day by day until the storney arrival.

Temessee's Ex-Governor Insulted by an Intoxicated Man's Hiss.
Camden, N. J., Nov. 29.—One tone bigs from an apparently intoxicated auditor in the Temple Theater here last inght so rided ex-Gov. 'Bob' Taylor, of Tennessee, that he left the stage in anger and abrushly closed the oud entertainment, which he and his brother, ex-Congressman "Air" were billed to give.

"Bob" was making an address calogistic of the South, telling whinsical stories and singing old songs, suddenly the reliow in the audience gave utterance to a grant of displeasure and then a hiss. The exgovernor stopped short, turned his eyes upward to the gallery and in a voice that knowed his feedings, said:

"There is one fool in this house. I have the greatest respect for the brave men who met the South in the clash of arms on the battlefield, but I have the nost supreme contempt for the person who leers at the South in this day of good will between the sections. I am sure he never smelled powder. He should be put out."

Then the exgovernor stalked off the stage, and as an evidence that the audience was by no means in sympathy with the rade rellow in the gallery, a wave of hearty applause followed the speech. The cartain went down, however, and after a few seconds' painful sience an stacke of the show stepped forward and said.

"This is the first time we have been treated discourteously, and Gov. Taylor is too much discourceried to proceed with the entertainment."

His plan was to establish a central relief in the post-office at Van and organize a missionary committee. Articles written by Mr. Howard after his return from a former visit to Armenia, and published in American newspapers, gave special offense to the Turkish government. There was no intimation, however, until after his departure on his new relief mission, that his fearless and truthful statements were to be used as a pretext for his expulsion from Turkish territory.

The first premonition of probable trouble came to the Christian Herald in a letter from the State Department at Washington, on October b, in which the information was communicated that the Turkish minister considered Mr. Howard "personally objectionable to the Turkish Government" and that his evident animosity to that government could not be a subject of indifference to the Sublime Porte.

The editor of the Christian Herald wrote to Secretary Olney explaining that his mission was exclusively a charlinble one and without political character, and that there was absolutely no foundation for the charge of hostility to the porte. Motwithstanding this deciaration, the Turkish minister, through our State Department, persisted in regarding Mr. Howard as hasille to his government and Secretary Olney futimated that the porte might exercise in his case, "the sovereign right of expulsion."

the chapiain is elected. We will stick to Henderson."

The chaplaincy seems to be the only position for which there is any kind of a fight going on. The combine man is Rev. Mr. Fisher of Kansas. But the ministers, bearing in mind the action of the Regulations of the Fifty-first Congress, are making a desperate fight for it. Most of the candidates were busy at work in the botel lobbies last night, shaking hands and talking like old-time politicians. Quite a sentiment is springing up in favor of Rev. Mr. Couffen of Michigan, the hind preacher. It would be queer to have a blind chapiain at each end of the Capitol. The McDowell people will hold a final meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the room of the Committee on Waysand Means. The last touches will be put on and everything arranged for rushing their candidates through.

The Democratic representatives hold their through. The Democratic representatives hold their caucus at 3 o'clock this afternoon. There is nothing to do further than to nominate the old officers for a complimentary vote. The caucus must plso choose a chairman to succeed Judge Holman of Blinds. The discoft paterns of the caucus must place the caucus must plso choose a chairman to succeed Judge Holman of Blinds. The to succeed place Homan of Emisis. The silicot patronage given to the minority consists of four places. The greatest fight is being made against Col. Ike Hill, who for years has been the Democratic whip.

SENATORIAL CAUCUS. SENATORIAL CAUCUS.

The Senatorial caucus meets immediately after adjournment Monday. There is a growing impression that the Kenabilicians will reorganize the Senate. Senator Pettigrew of North Bakota, who reached Washington yesterday, is one of those Republicians will organize the Senate in all its branches.

"I do not see," said he, "now the Republicians with organize the Senate in all its branches.

"I do not see," said he, "now the Republician party can, at least, escape the responsibility for authing the attempt to do this. It can hardly go to the country on the plea of being unable to control legislation without having made an effort so to do. If it makes the effort it will not fail; that I know to be an absolute and insontrovertible fact.

"There are at least two of the so-called Populists who will vote for any ticket the Republican caucus may mane. They will do it without a bingain and without patting the Republican party under obligations to them in any particular. The Hemocrats caunot organize without getting all the Populint yetes, and that they will do it without a bargain and without putting the Remabilean party under obliggations to them in any particular. The hemocrais cannot cranize without getting all the Popular votes, and that they cannot secure. The Populars cannot getting all the Popular votes and that they cannot secure. The Populars cannot get anything like a sufficient number of the Democraic votes to carry a ticket of their own make up through the Senaic.

"Hoth propositions may come before the Senaic, and if they do they will be voted down. Then when the Republicans non-innate their candidates there will be enoughled to make this effort on the office of President not ten, of the Senaic, that office having first with the expiration of the term of Senator Harris, and whom that door is more opened we cannot avoid completing the task. It is sure to come before us, and the Republicans will dispose of it by the election of their own officers."

The number of Representatives coming into the city yesterialy was very large. Nearly all are here. In the hotel loblases, has night, a great deal of interest was expressed to see some of the members who knucked out old timers. But few, though, were seen. Representative Payton of West Virginia, came in carry in the day but itemanned in house, not coming over even in the evening.

OLYMPIA A WEATHER BOAT. Big Cruiser Stood Up Beautifully in a Gale.

a Gale.

San Francisco, Nov. 29.—Advices from Yokohama state that the Olympia, arrived there on the 9th of November, after a run of seventeen days under easy steam from Honollulus.

Her commander, Capt. Read, writing of the trip, speaks of the gale the Olympia experienced, during which the big fighter was trianased cown to meet the sa. run. Her decks were washed at the forward end of the ship by the waves, but the cruiser proved that she could weather the blow.

"For 900 miles," says Capt. Read, "we worked against head winds. The seas ran high and while we buffeted them taking in very little water, I came to the conclusion that the Olympia is the "at weather boat I ever sailed in."

CHARLEY WAS HOMESICK. Left His School in North Carolina and Started North ward. Charles Kerr, a cadet from Davis' Mili-tary school at Winston, N.C., was arrested last evening by Policeman Foley and landed at No. 8 station on the charge of vagrancy. Young Kerr is sixteen years of age, and lives in Connellsville, Pa., his father, Mr. H. M. Kerr, being a well-known contractor in that place.

The boy has been attending the military school in North Carolina since September 1, but growing tired of that life and becoming homesick, decided to return to his native town. He can away from the school last Tuesday morning, and made his way to this city by waiking and beating his way on freight trains. He reached Alexandria Thursday night and entered Washington yesterday morning.

When arrested by the officer on the rail road track, near Eckington, he was on his way to Harper's Ferry. He was attired in his aniform of gray, trimmed off with brass buttons and black braid. He has light hair, light eyes, and a fair complex ion, is about five feet seven inches in height and talks wilk energy and eamestness. He says he does not feel in any way sore for his trip, but has contracted a bad cold. Otherwise he feels very well and fully intends continuing his trip if released at court. He had a little over a dollar when he left the school, and has had a prefix hard pull to make it last him.
