WHY THE WEDDING WAS POSTPONED

Gotham Is Agog With Theories as to Vanderbilt-Wilson Nuptials.

Attack of Rheumatism Thought to Have Been Suspiciously Inopportune—Gossip of Society.

Gotham is agog with theories as to why the wedding was postponed. There are as many reasons as there are tongues to voice them, each of which is believed, more or less, except the one officially set.

Every scrap of detail concerning the personal doings of the Wilson-Vanderbilt folks has been discussed—jabbered over—on the streets, in the clubs and every other habitable spot, from footloose to hazy, until now that the rich has really come the natives are apparently satisfied, and mighty is their slogan: "Bismillah, I told you so!"

It was a kindly act, to forget her own trouble long enough to think of the troubles of others, but society can't find time at this immediate moment to credit Mrs. Wilson for anything, except, of course, her rage.

It is said now that young Vanderbilt is "doing very well." He is subject to rheumatism; that was one reason his father, who dearly loves him, opposed his marriage. The dampness of the climate at Newport induced the first attack of the disease in its inflammatory form last September. The Vanderbilts family were then at the "breakers," their splendid house at "The Breakers," their splendid house at "The Breakers," their splendid house at "The Breakers."

So solicitous was Cornelius Vanderbilt for his son, so intense was his anxiety, that a couch was placed in the young man's room, with red robes and cushions, and the object of his care was on the way to recovery. Death had taken Cornelius Vanderbilt's eldest son, William H. He would not lose another.

Another story is that Cornelius Vanderbilt and R. T. Wilson, the parties, met Wednesday; that Cornelius Vanderbilt solemnly assured R. T. Wilson that the moment his son married, he would cut him off; that he would not give him a single penny; that, therefore, Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., would be practically a beggar. Then came the acute attack of rheumatism.

St. Patrick's Church was brilliantly illuminated and artistically decorated last evening in honor of the marriage of Miss Eleanor Blandford and Dr. Charles Kneller Knoles.

Promptly at 8 o'clock a procession of acolytes entered the sanctuary, followed by Mr. Blandford, the celebrant; Rev. Father Lloyd, pastor of St. Patrick's, and Rev. Father McGee.

Mr. John Porter Lawrence, the organist of the occasion, changed his theme to the march from "Lohengrin," and the wedding party entered the church.

It was headed by the six ushers, who were Dr. Marbury, Mr. Stephen B. Caslin, Mr. George Hadden, Mr. William B. Blandford, Mr. Joseph Caslin and Mr. P. J. Keicher.

Proceeding the bride came the maid of honor, Miss Blandford, a sister of the bride. She was charmingly gowned in lemon yellow chiffon over tulle of the same shade. Dainty trillings of valenciennes lace and a bolero jacket of yellow brocade silk, with red rosettes, finished the ensemble. The bride wore a toilet whose crowning touch was a bunch of long stemmed American Beauties.

The bride, who entered the church leaning upon the arm of her father, Mr. Sweet T. Blandford, is a graceful blonde of modest, winning manner. She was most becomingly gowned in white tulle, with soft folds of white chiffon, forming a dainty points upon the sleeves and shoulders. The high neck was finished with a stock collar of shirred chiffon, on which butterfly bows of the chiffon were daintily placed, and a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and green orchids added to the pure effect of a green exquisite in its shimmering whiteness. The tall veil was caught to the hair with a diamond pin.

The groom and his best man, Mr. Samuel S. Knoles, awaited the bride at the altar, where she was given away by her father. After the services Dr. and Mrs. Knoles left for a wedding trip to the seashore and they will probably begin housekeeping in the fall. The bride was the recipient of many elegant gifts that included enough silver, cut glass, china, and bric-a-brac to equip the daintiest of homes.

Mrs. H. M. Kelly, who has been so ill, is now much better.

Mr. John Thornton Wood, of East Capitol street, who has been quite ill for the past three weeks, is rapidly improving.

Mrs. Clara Taylor Ware, of Georgetown, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Ethel Ware, are visiting relatives in Rockville, Md.

Mrs. Sarah A. Lipscomb is going to "The Plains," Fauquier County, Va.

Mrs. Butler will give a musicale for her pupils this evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Universal Church, corner of Fourteenth and L streets.

Mrs. Anna M. Thomas will spend the summer at Cherry Chase.

An enjoyable dance was given at the Potomac Club House last evening by the young ladies under the chaperonage of Miss York, complimentary to their men friends. Among those present were Misses York, the Misses Evans, Miss Bell, Miss Dalrymple, Miss Smith, Miss McEwen, Miss Chase, Miss Peacock, and Miss Griffith, Messrs. Ball, Baldwin, King, Stoddard, Johnson, Van Hoke, York, Wheatley, Britt, Holbrook, Casan and Steele.

At the reception given to the Epworth League on Wednesday evening by Mrs. Pate at the parlors of North Capitol M. E. Church, the hostess was assisted in receiving her guests by the members of her Sunday School class, Miss F. Fisher, Miss Susie Laing, Miss Nellie Sherwood, Miss Nora Everhart and Miss Olive Greene.

After a program of music had been rendered and refreshments served, the larger number of guests present necessitated an adjournment from the parlors prior to the entertainment in the church where the remainder of a most enjoyable evening was spent in social conversation.

Emmanuel P. E. Church, Anacostia, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday evening, the contracting parties being Miss Lillian Jackson and Mr. George E. Baxter. Rev. W. G. Davenport performed the ceremony, and the wedding marches were played by the church orchestra.

Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock a quiet marriage ceremony was performed at Trinity Parish Hall by the pastor of Trinity P. E. Church of this city, Rev. A. M. Rich, the contracting parties being Mr. Harry J. Smith of Allegheny, Pa., and Miss Opal Louise Horton of this city. Among those present were Miss Fenwick, Miss Helvie Beverly, Miss Koumiz and Mr. C. B. Bailey.

Miss Florence Edith Bowman and Prof. H. M. Johnson were married Wednesday noon at the residence of the bride's parents in Anacostia. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Bowman, father of the bride, assisted by Rev. H. T. Stevenson and Rev. Richard B. Cook.

Miss Helvie Diver played the march from "Lohengrin" as the bride entered the room on the arm of her mother, who gave her away. After an extended tour North Prof. and Mrs. Johnson will return to Anacostia, their future home.

Miss Stella Morrison and her cousin, Miss Kate V. Brown, of O street, will leave this evening to spend their vacation in the mountains of Virginia.

PASSING OF NIAGARA FALLS. Chicago Channel the Ultimate Outlet of the Great Lakes. Popular Science Monthly.

Years ago the terrestrial movements raised the Johnson barrier to the Erie basin so high that the waters of that lake reached not merely the level of Lake Michigan, but the point of turning all the water of the upper lakes into the Mississippi drainage by way of Chicago.

But the falls were then cutting through the ridge, and when this was accomplished, before the change of drainage was completed, the surface of Lake Erie was lowered by many feet, and thus the falls were re-established for some time longer.

Slowly, year by year, one sees the cataract working back and suggesting the time when the river will be turned into a series of rapids, but another alien cause is at work, and one not easily seen—namely, the effects of the changing of the level of the earth's crust.

From computations it was found that for the first 24,000 years of the life of the river only the Erie waters flowed by way of the Niagara River, and for only 8,000 years have all the waters of the upper lakes been feeding the falls.

If the terrestrial movements continue as at present, and there appears no reason to doubt it, for the continental was formerly vastly higher than now, then in about 5,000 years the rim of the Erie basin promises to be raised so high that all the waters of the upper lakes will flow out by way of the Chicago canal. Thus, the duration of Niagara Falls will have continued about 37,000 years.

How to Become a Chef. The making of a man cook in France is a lengthy and tedious process. According to a celebrated French chef, a young man, when he decides to pursue a culinary career, selects his nominal instructor, to whom he pays an equivalent to a sovereign.

The student is first assigned to the vegetable cook, who teaches him how to prepare the raw materials. When he has mastered this he is initiated into the mystery of cooking them. This thoroughly learned, he studies the methods of cutting up raw meats, of preparing fish, and how to stuff, dress, and lard game and poultry.

When he has mastered it all he is placed before the range, where he receives instruction in the various processes of broiling, frying, roasting and baking.

On graduating from this department he passes under the control of the second cook, who reveals to him the mysteries of sauces and soups. The interest of this functional part of his pupil it is necessary to accelerate with liberal and frequent tips.

The student is then put in charge of the pastry cook, to whom he serves a long apprenticeship in all that pertains to the concoction of sweet pastries, loaves, and the like. This completes his culinary education, and he is prepared to assume the role of a competent chef.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

AMOS CUMMINGS' TOMATOES. Created a Panic on Board a St. John's River Steamboat.

"Congressman Amos J. Cummings probably was a very brave soldier during the war," said a Florida man yesterday, "but I saw him badly frightened down in our State several years ago. Perhaps I may add that all the other members of the party were frightened also. We were making a trip up the St. John's River in an old side-wheeler that had seen much service, and as we sat on deck one of the members of the party told stories of the life on a Mississippi boat in the days when they raced for all they were worth and not infrequently blew up."

"This doesn't look like a very safe craft," he added, "and I'm glad we are going slow."

"Suddenly there was a smothered explosion between decks and then a series of the wildest yells that I ever heard. Every man jumped for the companionway. We were met by the negro cook, who had no time in getting up on deck. He was a sight to terrify anyone. His head seemed to be covered with blood and he yelled at the top of his voice:

"Jump for the job of God, jump! I'm killed and my boiler's busted! Someone grabbed the cook before he could jump overboard and another directed attention to the fact that the engines were running all right. Then the explanation of the explosion came out in installments. It was simple. Cummings had brought down some canned tomatoes and the cook didn't know how to handle them. Without opening the cans he had placed it on the range. When the tomatoes began to boil the cans burst and the contents flew over the cook's head. Perhaps Cummings has forgotten the incident, but I know

TROLLEY POLES FELL DOWN

Accident on the South Fairfax Street Line at Alexandria. Lawrence Washington Appointed Stamp Deputy—Cases Disposed of by the Corporation Court.

Traffic on the electric line on South Fairfax street was suspended last night on account of an accident to the line, which occurred shortly before 6 o'clock yesterday evening.

The trolley pole of a car became entangled with the wire near the corner of Fairfax and Prince streets, which resulted in the entire line for more than a square being torn down, carrying with it three of the large guy poles. Fortunately the poles fell in the carriage way, and no accidents were passing at the time.

One of the poles carried an electric car, damaging it somewhat. These poles are about twenty-five feet high, and twelve inches in diameter. An examination by a Tinsley reporter revealed the fact that the three poles pulled down have rotted at the base.

Mr. Calvin McDaniel, an old and well-known citizen, died at his home on Upper King street, yesterday morning. The deceased was a printer by trade, and was, when a young man, employed on the Southern Churchman, and subsequently on the Virginia Sentinel. He served through the Mexican war, and was sixty-seven years of age at the time of his death. He leaves a widow, formerly Miss Sallie Yates, principal of a school.

Fowie, United States internal revenue collector for this district, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late George Washington, Mr. Lawrence Washington is a son of the late Col. John Augustine Washington, who formerly owned the Mount Vernon estate, and who was killed in battle at Cheat Mountain.

In the corporation court yesterday the jury in the case of Larry Bright, charged with housebreaking, brought in a verdict of guilty and fixed the term of imprisonment for three months in jail.

The motion for a new trial in the case of Cornelius Smith, convicted of malicious cutting, was withdrawn. The case of John Nelson, indicted for breaking into the old courthouse, and stealing a lot of gambling paraphernalia, which had been captured from his place and stored there, was continued until Monday.

Mr. John H. Green, one of the counsel in the case, stated that Mr. Edmund Burke, who was associated with him, was detained at his home in Washington on account of sickness. Commonwealth's Attorney Marbury recalled the fact that this case had several times been postponed at the request of counsel for defense, and inasmuch as the trial has proceeded with, whereupon Mr. Green withdrew from the case, which was then continued.

The pupils of St. Mary's colored school will give an opera at Leeceum Hall tonight.

A valuable watch and a box of cigars were stolen from the store of Mr. C. E. Knorr, corner Duke and Henry streets, Wednesday night.

The services at the Union Mission tent on North Washington street last night were conducted by Rev. A. G. Harnett, assisted by a company of prominent mission workers from the Union Mission of Washington. There was a large attendance.

MONEY IN CAMPAIGN NOVELTIES. Buttons and Other Political Insignia Are Much in Demand. Troy Times.

The coming of Presidential year may have a depressing effect on some branches of business, but is a great blessing to manufacturers and dealers in novelties. The manufacture and sale of campaign buttons has become a great industry and has been built up in recent years.

Campaign badges have been in use for years, but it was a comparatively short time ago that the next little button to be attached to the lapel of the coat was produced. A button such as is today sold at a profit for ten cents would have cost double that to produce ten years ago. But improved facilities have reduced the cost of manufacture so that the business is really profitable.

Even during the preliminary skirmish thousands of buttons have been sold, and as soon as the conventions are held and the regular campaign opened the sales will greatly increase. But the manufacturers are constantly looking for something that will be a novelty. Fortunes were made from the bandannas and flag handkerchiefs of eight years ago, and if some lucky man can succeed in producing something that will strike the popular taste with equal force this year he will be able to retire on his fortune by election day.

Among the latest novelties exhibited for sale is a four-in-hand necktie which, when the wearer pulls a string, opens and reveals the portrait of his favorite candidate. This may catch on, but it is probable that something more popular will be brought out before the campaign becomes hot.
