GRAY IS HELD FOR MURDER FLAGMEN FOR CROSSINGS

Coroner's Jury Says He Killed Melton Phillips. BROWN AS AN ACCOMPLICE

Story of the Tragedy in Philip's Court Told by Witnesses, Who Made a Clear Case Against the Prisoner. Wife Denies That Her Husband Had Cause to Suspect Gray.

A coroner's jury yesterday afternoon decided that Daniel Gray is responsible for the death of Melton Phillips in Monday night's cutting affair in Philip's court, and that William H. Brown was an accomplice in the act. Gray, under guard of a patrolman at Emergency Hospital, while Brown was locked up at the Third precinct station to await the action of the grand jury.

HOW THE FIGHT BEGAN. The necessary guard of Philip's court, the home of his wife's sister, Monday night, in order to bring Lavinia home. He surmised that she had gone there to meet Gray, with whom she had been keeping company, and when he got to the house he saw Gray and William Brown sitting in the kitchen talking to the woman. He went in to see what was going on and asked her to go home with him. She came out and Gray and Brown followed.

The aggrieved husband was standing at the back of the kitchen when the fight was in the immediate neighborhood. Gray immediately made an attack on the witness and his brother came to the rescue. As the fight went on Brown and Gray had his brother down.

All this was done so quickly that the witness was not clear as to everything that happened. He knew that he had been stabbed in the back and was positive that it was Gray who hit him. Both Gray and Brown were carrying knives at the time. Gray was down but the witness saw no knife in Brown's hand.

Here Dr. Hammett, who presided over the jury, asked the witness if he had been seen by Dick Phillips by a man who signed his name Holmes. It stated that the writer had seen Gray and another man walking together last night in the vicinity of the street. Gray was heard to remark that he "would kill the man" if he foiled with him.

WOMAN ON THE STAND. When Lavinia Phillips, the wife, appeared as a witness, her head was wrapped in bandages and her face was dotted with court plaster. She explained that she and her husband were in the kitchen in the morning and that Maggie had cut her against a broken cup. It was all a "tremendous quarrel," she testified. While she was talking she had met Gray several times of late, she denied she had had intimate relations with him, and Maggie had engaged in a quarrel with her. She saw Gray and a man in a dark room, but she did not know on whom the attack was made. As soon as she saw Gray and his brother, she ran into her sister's house and shut the door.

Lavinia identified the knife as the same one she had seen Gray have in the house the evening and the one he used to cut some court plaster for her. She did not see Brown with a knife at any time. When Gray and Phillips, the father of the two men testified that he and Gray and Gray hanging around the gate a few minutes before the affray took place. After the affray Gray and Phillips were taken to the hospital and Gray was taken to the hospital. Brown ran back into the house. Dick Phillips and the officers, who arrived at the house immediately, ran into the house and found Gray and Brown in the kitchen. Patrick Anderson was arrested under the belief that he was the man wanted. He was released yesterday afternoon.

Among the other women examined was Maggie Lewis, who was accused of following after Gray and throwing a stone at him. She strenuously denied this allegation, though two subsequent witnesses asserted that they saw her throw the stone and saw it hit Gray on the head. These two witnesses were Rosa Williams and Lizzie Gaskins.

Jennie Magruder told the coroner that she saw Gray hanging around the house and told him that he had better go away for he had no friends around there. He drew the knife that was in evidence from his pocket and answered that "that was his friend."

Dr. Glazebrook, the deputy coroner, who performed an autopsy over Melton Phillips' body yesterday afternoon, was the first witness. He testified that the only wound he found on the body was on the right leg about midway between the knee and the ankle. The surface wound only several eighths of an inch in length had been inflicted. The knife that made it, though, he testified, would only sever several eighths of an inch in length had been inflicted. The knife that made it, though, he testified, would only sever several eighths of an inch in length had been inflicted.

The coroner's jury was held in session yesterday morning and was called upon to testify. His lawyer was present, however, and advised him to make no statement, and to stand by his counsel.

The jurors were closeted but a few minutes before they returned a verdict as stated above. The jurors rested comfortably at Emergency Hospital last night. The surgeons believe that Gray now has a good chance for recovery. A policeman remains on duty to the watch Gray and his brother as he is sufficiently recovered, he will be taken to jail to await the action of the grand jury.
