IN A STATE OF HYPNOSIS?

black death, from 1348 to 1350, followed by a universal persecution of the Jews. From 1374 to 1470 the dancing or religious ecstatic mania had its run, and even this age seems affected with speculative, financial, economic, and religious crazes.

History has often recorded the insane frenzies of a people, their fall from prosperity through unwise laws or their overthrow of a government at the demand of half-crazed leaders.

Gen. Duncan S. Walker has received the following letter from Gen. Josephus Daniels, national committee man for North Carolina.

Mr. R. R. Shiel, prominent live stock agent at the Union Stock Yards, Indianapolis, Ind., writes to Republican Standard.

A letter from a member of the Democratic executive committee at Cleveland, O., gives estimates, which claim a plurality for Bryan of not less than 30,000.

John Thome, vice president of a large importing and jobbing firm of Milwaukee, writes Chairman Bannockburn.

Frank M. Cauger, a schoolmate of Sec. Elyson, writes from Granite City, Ill.

"I believe," said Senator Butler, chairman of the Populist committee, that the Republican party is in a bad way.

The reports made by the chairman of the county committees were satisfactory, each promising the usual Democratic majorities.

Gov. O'Ferrall has removed the political disabilities of a number of men who were expelled from the party.

Mr. R. T. Cook, clerk of the courts of this city, was assaulted by a colored man in Washington on Friday night.

IT IS THE LAW AGAINST LAW. Marshals and Constables Conflict Over a Drug Stock. Former Were Held at Bay, But Finally Obtained Entrance by Strategy.

Two sets of law officers, each claiming original jurisdiction in the premises, are on guard in Dumfries' drug store, on the corner of Tench and B streets. Constable John Swinburne, under directions from Justice O'Neil, early yesterday, on a warrant issued on the complaint of Burchard & Co., levied on the stock of goods for debt, amounting to nearly $700.

Later in the day P. F. Cusick and W. E. Brown, deputy United States marshals, put in an appearance. They were armed with an attachment for rent, amounting to $450, issued at the instance of Mr. Stilson Hutchins, the owner of the building. The marshals were refused admittance and consequently could not make a levy. They "laid round," as Mr. Cusick said, and about 10 o'clock, when the door was partially opened by a messenger from Justice Cole, he forced his way into the store. And there, he says, he and his associates waited until called off by the marshal.

Constable Swinburne is very indignant about the manner in which the deputy marshals effected an entrance, and says he will see to it that they will not benefit by their trouble. The marshals say that an attachment for rent takes priority over all other claims, so far as they are concerned, and that they have made their levy, they are as good as paid, and if there is not sufficient to pay all, the marshals will have to make good the balance.

Mr. Howard Cook, who is the "Co." of the firm of Burchard & Co., arrived shortly after the deputy marshals had effected an entrance, and seemed very much displeased with the carelessness of Justice O'Neil's marshals, who allowed it. He said that he would hold Justice O'Neil responsible for the results. The goods in the store were all being packed in boxes and it was stated that it was the intention of Burchard & Co. to remove them. As the matter stands, the marshals and constable will continue to hold possession of the premises until tomorrow.

PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART. Maine Regiment Crippled the Confederacy by Robbing Heretics. Major Parsons, of the Nineteenth Maine, told this one: "There is some doubt as to what part the Nineteenth Maine played in the war, though most of the boys think it put down the rebellion. The fact is, the Nineteenth Maine, in the Southern Confederacy, they stole their rifles, cleaned out orchards and cellars and forged the country so thoroughly that the rebellion had nothing left to feed on and so laid down and died."
