

IT WAS A CINDER DAY

With the Alumni of the Big Eastern Polytechnic Institute.

THEY LOOK AT GLASS AND STEEL

And Ride Through the Famous Iron Tunnel, Feasting on the Train.

SIGHTS IN M'KEESPORT AND BRADDOCK

Cinders to the right of them, cinders to the left of them, cinders in their eyes, ears, hair and nostrils, cinders all over them, held in place by this all of oil; while in their heads yet rang the sounds of steam whistles, heavy hammers and the muffled roar of the rolling mill. Nevertheless the victims appeared thoroughly pleased. Such was the experience of the members of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute alumni as they concluded a second day's sightseeing among the leading industrial establishments in and around this city.

The excursion party left the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie depot yesterday an hour earlier than on the previous morning. One hundred and seventeen persons were on board the train, which was in charge of Captain Erwin when it puffed out of the railroad yards. The air was raw and chilly, and, as quite a number had got up a little before breakfast time, they were about as happy as Mugwumps.

Breakfast on board train restored their serenity, and, when the first visit of the day was made at Chambers' glasshouse.

IT WAS A MERRY CROWD

of wisdom-seekers that was suddenly poured in upon the window glass workers. The various parts of the house were duly visited and admired.

The train then ran to the American Iron Works (Jones & Laughlin), where a second stop was made. The shafting department in this mill created the most interest. No souvenirs of the inspection were carried away by the members, except a few dabs of grease on long winter overcoats.

The iron tunnel on the P., McK. & Y. R. R., through which the party was traveling, was a source of much interest to the engineers and railroad men on board the train. Its unique tunnel is under Jones & Laughlin's mill, and has already been described in THE DISPATCH.

At Homestead a visit was paid to the mammoth steel works of Carnegie, Phillips & Co. Lunch was served on the train, while the run between Homestead and Braddock was made. It was ample and delicious; all that was required in that part of the programme.

At 2 o'clock the party arrived at the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, in Braddock. Its ponderous machinery and wonderful mechanism, strange sights and sounds, were even a surprise to men who are daily accustomed to such anything.

THEY MARVEL AT IT.

"It is certainly a strange and wonderful place, your city," said an Eastern railroad official to the reporter, as he left the mill.

Captain Jones, with his genial smile and little hat, met the party here, and insisted on honoring the occasion. He varied his duties by first giving a card drawn by an objecting mule and then offering to give the party a locomotive. A photographer bobbed up serenely, and pictures had to be taken.

The only sun of the day even enjoyed the sight and beamed down upon the faces of the group until tears ran down their cheeks. These tears were neither of grief nor of joy, but of necessity. The little man with the photographic apparatus, who has a contract to take 100 pictures, even if the last five have to be his own, pressed the button on the weeping through several times before he was noticed.

At the National Tube Works, in McKeesport, the various departments were visited, and the process of pipe making was demonstrated by practical examples. The last stop of the day was made at Oliver & Roberts' wire and rod mill, on Tenth street, Southside. The work, one of the party said (who was sober at the time), reminded him of an aggravated attack of Old Monogahela.

The party arrived in the city at 5 o'clock.

WITH SONGS AND TOASTS.

The Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute Alumni Give a Successful Banquet at the Monogahela House.

The winter reunion of the Rensselaer Polytechnic alumni was closed last evening with a banquet at the Monogahela House. One hundred and ten members and guests were seated at a table arranged in the form of a horseshoe. Toast Master William Metcalfe, of the class of '71, occupied the seat at the head of the table. On his right hand was seated Mr. James Hall, and on his left, Mr. W. H. Body, the patriarchs of the school.

At the conclusion of the supper the graduates for a time amused themselves by singing old college songs and giving their class yells and the Rensselaer Institute yell. Order was finally secured, and Mr. Edmund Yardley, of the class of '62, made an address of welcome. Mr. James Hall responded to the toast of the R. P. I. He was enthusiastically cheered when introduced, and his health drank by the guests. In his remarks he said he became a student at the school in 1853, just eight years after its organization. The institute was the first mechanical school established in the country. It also ranks among the oldest agricultural schools. Mr. Hall said his life work as a geologist had been largely following the history of the graduates of the school and he now regretted the fact. The summer session of the institute was the foundation of the now popular summer school of sciences. He closed by thanking the guests for the honors which had been conferred upon him by the graduates present.

Mr. J. Becker responded to the toast, A. S. C. E., with a few pleasant remarks. Other toasts were responded to by Mr. J. H. Peck, President of the school; Mr. W. P. Mason, of '84; Mr. C. W. H. Seavies, of '60; Mr. George A. Just, of '81; Mr. E. J. Jarrett, of '80; Mr. W. Doughty, of '88; Mr. E. J. Jarrett, of '89; and Mr. W. A. Starr, of '69. Mr. Clark Fisher, of '88, formulated the resolutions.

The banquet concluded at an early hour this morning, and the reunion was ended.

COUNTERFEITERS ARRESTED.

Shick Schemers Who Were Ready to Make a Brazilian Bill.

NEW YORK, February 1.—A man named Charles Miller came from Brazil to Brooklyn some months ago, and pretended that his object was to purchase some machinery. He had in his possession Brazilian bills which could easily be counterfeited, and Miller's plan, as alleged, was to make all the money necessary and flood Brazil with the bogus stuff. Miller formed the acquaintance of Asa A. Packer, a wall paper manufacturer, and he let him into the scheme, as he could purchase the proper kind of paper without exciting suspicion. They made the acquaintance also of John Simpson, a printer, and a man named Marshall, a photographer.

These men held secret meetings in South Brooklyn. The police learned of their plans, however, and kept a sharp watch on them. The original bills of the Brazilian Government were photographed, and fine negatives were taken, so that everything worked well for the counterfeiters. The police, fearing that they would get away with their outfit if further delay was made, arrested all of them late last night. The entire outfit, consisting of negatives, plates, bills and paper, were seized.

VILLAGE WATER WORKS.

The Great Wells and Lofty Tanks That Serve Towns Throughout the West.

GREENSBURG, KAN., February 1.—One of the freaks of Western enterprise is the city water works for the new city. Whenever a county seat is definitely located in a new county there is a great dash for public improvements. They must have a grand schoolhouse, a grand county building, and they must have the town supplied with water at public expense. A description of the system in this place will show how hundreds of villages are supplied on the plains.

There was, of course, no stream or lake suitable for the purpose, and the sole recourse was in a well. Accordingly a well was dug. It is 30 feet across and 102 feet deep. It was sunk through alternate layers of sand and clay to a depth where a sufficient stream of water free from alkali was reached. It was then walled up with stones laid in cement.

Having obtained the water, the next thing to do was to distribute it. To do this a huge derrick was erected above the well, and on top of the derrick was placed a tank holding 78,000 gallons. The surface of the water in the tank is ordinarily about 112 feet above the surface of the prairie on which the well is built. Two steam pumps of 80-horse power each were put into an engine house on the ground, two being provided so that an accident to one would not leave the town helpless.

The village—they call it a city here—is said to have 1,500 inhabitants. The people do not exaggerate more than 50 per cent. The daily consumption averages about 16,000 gallons.

To dig the well and provide the plant, including the mains in the streets, cost $47,000. The annual expense is about $2,400, or 41 cents per 1,000 gallons of water for operating.

THE WORST IS TRUE.

Report of Vice and Crime in Alaska Fully Confirmed.

PORT TOWNSEND, WASH. T., February 1.—The steamer Ancon has just arrived from Alaskan ports, with letters and newspapers. The Juneau Free Press reiterates the stories of outrages on Indian women, and says the Indians will part with their daughters and sisters to white men for from $100 to $300. The Tongas custom of cannibalism has been abolished by the Government, and Deputy Collector of Customs Colonel Crittenden is temporarily appointed inspector ad hoc, vice Edward Haley relieved. Only a few days after the port was abandoned a shipload of opium was smuggled in. The smugglers became involved in a quarrel and a man named Snow was murdered by a man known as "Jack." The Indians turned the murderer over to the authorities at Sitka for trial.

The Indian who caused all the trouble at the Upper Yukon placer mines last year when the miners were trying to get established there has given himself up to the authorities. He says his people will never allow the miners to go into the Yukon if he is punished, but that they will murder the first party that appears. The schooner Active has been gone on a trip to Paget Sound since September 14, and no tidings having been since received concerning her, it is generally believed she has been lost.

GIVING IN MANY WAYS.

A Bible School That Sends Collections to More Than Compass Points.

The Fourth Avenue Baptist Church Bible School presents the following highly gratifying report: The report for the four months ending December 30 shows an average attendance of 214; largest attendance, 264. The Treasurer's report for the year 1889 gives the total collections as $488. This amount was distributed among various benevolent objects as follows: Hospitals, $21; churches, $150; foreign missions, $59; foreign missions, $97; Baptist account, $25; Alton town mission, $20; Episcopal account, $20; publication society, Bible and Sunday school work, $24. These are the most of the amount now contributed weekly by the church for benevolence, the total gift of the church to the hospitals is $124. This is a gratifying advance over last year, and more than four times the offering of three years ago.

AMERICANS BOUND FOR HAITI.

Officers and Men of War to Help the Army of Legation. NEW YORK, February 1.—The steamer Granje-Nassau sailed for Port-au-Prince from her dock in Brooklyn to-day. She had aboard her cargo a varied assortment of guns and ammunition for the use of Legation's army. Several 12-pound field pieces and a dozen mountain howitzers were also on board. Her passengers were Major David E. Porter, son of Admiral Porter, who goes to take command of Legation's army, and Captain Charles C. McKinney, son of Judge McKinney, of Ohio, who will be on Major Porter's staff.

PAWNEE BILL CELEBRATES.

His Followers Rejoice Over the Passage of the Oklahoma Bill.

ARKANSAS CITY, KAN., February 1.—There was great rejoicing in this city to-day when the news was received that Springer's Oklahoma bill had passed the lower branch of Congress. Grand preparations are being made for a parade to-night by the flambeau of the bill. The bill is a gratifying one, and many of his followers are now here, where they expect to remain until the last legal barriers are removed. Then they will peacefully take up their march to Oklahoma.

PLAUT'S BEAR IS DEAD.

It Was Shot as a Ghast and Then Mistaken for a Dead Man.

CHICAGO, February 1.—City Treasurer Herman Plaut has lost his menagerie, which, as told exclusively in THE DISPATCH, he drew in a raffle about a month ago. It will be remembered that when Mr. Plaut took his prizes home in a hack there was a circus as well as a menagerie. Most of Mr. Plaut's clothes were forcibly removed by the bear, and the monkey, escaping up the front of the building, caused a cry of burglars and the calling out of the patrol. Afterward Mr. Plaut tried to give chase, but at several times it escaped from his house and terrified the neighborhood.

Three nights ago the bear escaped again, and then the region of Hyde Park, in which Mr. Plaut lives, was disturbed by stories of another ghost wandering around streets and vacant lots. Monday night a policeman saw the ghost and shot at it. Yesterday afternoon an excited resident of Hyde Park rushed into the police station and announced that he had shot a bear. The police hastened to the spot in a patrol wagon. Sure enough, under a big oak tree, wrapped in a white sheet, lay what was apparently the corpse of a man, with only a little bunch of coarse hair sticking out at the top of the head. The police turned the body over, and to their astonishment, uncovered a dead bear. Around its neck was a large leather collar, with a silver plate bearing the name of Mr. Plaut. The officer who shot the bear, while on duty that night, killed Plaut's bear, which in foraging about had managed to get the sheet off a clothesline. The monkey is also dead, the poor little beast having caught pneumonia.
