

ALL BARRIERS DOWN. Episcopal Bishop Whitehead in the Presbyterian Pulpit.

A UNIQUE SERVICE IN KNOXVILLE. But as Full of Brotherly Love as it Was Out of the Ordinary.

OTHER RELIGIOUS SERVICES OF THE DAY

A unique and impressive service took place at the Presbyterian Church corner of Junonda street and Knox avenue, Knoxville, yesterday afternoon. The Episcopalians transferred their service there from St. Martin's Mission room. The pulpit was adorned with beautiful vases of cut flowers, and the rostrum had the appearance of an Episcopal altar.

Not many years ago an Episcopal service like this would have been deemed impossible. It has been the policy of the Presbyterian body to invincibly oppose and condemn any body favoring the ritualistic ceremony, and, on the other hand, the Episcopalians have rigidly confined to their ceremonial customs. The service was held to a woman in sympathy with the church to the credit of the latter agency in the district. It is hoped a church will soon be built, and a collection was taken to further that object.

The Bishop, rector and chorists robed themselves in one of the vestibules at the west end of the church. The choir, clad in purple cassocks and white collars, led the procession. The music of the canticles. The Bishop was robed in full canonicals. The professional hymn was, "Pleasant Are Thy Courts Above," and the recessional, "There is a Blessed Home." The service was choral throughout. Midway in the service six baptisms took place.

BISHOP'S PREFACE AND SERMON. The reverend gentleman then reached the pulpit in his straw hat. His physical next in his sermon he illustrated the theory by obeying the dictates of nature and taking the proper means to preserve health. He inquired rest. The physical man needed rest not only for the sake of his health, but for the sake of his soul. He inquired rest for the sake of his soul. He inquired rest for the sake of his soul.

He then went on to say that St. Martin's Mission was privileged to be in connection with St. Mark's and be under the guidance of the rector of that church; for, whether it be a vine, a child or a mission, some stronger hand must necessarily guide it to insure successful results. He then went on to say that St. Martin's Mission was privileged to be in connection with St. Mark's and be under the guidance of the rector of that church; for, whether it be a vine, a child or a mission, some stronger hand must necessarily guide it to insure successful results.

AGAIN ON SUNDAY. Rev. C. E. Locke's Second Sermon on Necessities of Rest One Day in Seven—Excuse for Some Sunday Workers is Admitted.

Yesterday evening a great crowd attended evening services at the Smithfield Street Methodist Church, the occasion being a sermon by the Rev. C. E. Locke. The church was filled to overflowing, and the words of the eloquent preacher were listened to with rapt attention.

Mr. Locke took for his theme "The Sabbath breaker, a conspirator against the physical health of his people." His text was "In it thou shalt not do any work." Exodus xx. 10. Following is a synopsis: The sermon opened with a description of the Tower of London, with its donjon keep and gloomy cells, in one of which the notorious Guy Fawkes was imprisoned prior to his execution. Fawkes suffered imprisonment and death because he was a conspirator against the physical health of his people.

He then went on to say that St. Martin's Mission was privileged to be in connection with St. Mark's and be under the guidance of the rector of that church; for, whether it be a vine, a child or a mission, some stronger hand must necessarily guide it to insure successful results.

COLORED CATHOLICS. Why the Fire Laddies Can Have No Vacation as a Rule—Full Days, Weeks and Years Demanded at Their Hands.

The sympathetic inquiry of a lady, as to whether "the poor firemen get a vacation" caused a DISPATCH reporter to look into the matter, with good result. The number, all told, including the Chief Engineer, his assistants, the Chief Clerk of the Bureau and others, on the payroll of this branch of the city employed, is 120. The number of men, including the company captain, engine crew, belong to the operative force. The fireman, excepting in his brief intervals of relaxation, knows no respite from duty. He is on watch every day for 24 hours. By the rules of the department he can absent himself, on pass, for two periods of 24 hours each, and on a special pass for 48 hours, which he may continue, should he desire to obtain additional leave, it is granted him, if the exigencies of the service permit it, but his pay is curtailed. In this latter event a substitute is provided, but in the former his share of the work is performed by his fellow. Long leaves are seldom granted to the men, one or two months being the outside, an exception being made in favor of one man who is desired to visit friends in Germany and who is granted a leave of three months. One hour for each meal is allowed, and it goes without saying, that were it not for strict discipline maintained throughout the service, Pittsburgh's Fire Department would not be the high name it carries for efficiency. Of the substitutes employed to take the place of men, there is no cognizance taken of the fact that they are not good men when called upon; but a good man substitutes for the employment they obtain under the Fire Department for a livelihood, and will not desert the service for any other life.

But seven deaths have occurred within the last 12 years, three of which were from accident and four from consumption. If injured a man is paid $15 per week, during 26 weeks, and if he dies the family receive $1,000. The Fire Department is a life-saving service with every year they remain; few voluntarily resign to go to any other occupation. It is a fact worth noting, however, that some of the best men are those who have been in the service for a long time, and who from that moment quit it for good.

THE WORK CONTINUOUS. Services will be held every Sunday morning and vespers in the afternoon. There will also be services every Wednesday and Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. The building will also be used as a school for colored children, taking the place of the one now in the convent on Webster avenue. The Sisters of Mercy will be the teachers. Bishop Phelan was to have officiated at the dedicatory services yesterday, but was unable to present owing to sickness. The Bishop is interested in the mission work.

THE FEAST OF ST. JAMES. In Suitably Commemorated by Special Services in St. James' Church. Special services were held in St. James' Catholic Church in the West End, yesterday, in honor of the feast of St. James. There was a special choir and an orchestra from Latrobe, under the direction of William Shoverl. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Geobal, of St. Martin's Church, and a sermon was preached by Rev. Father W. A. Cunningham, of Turle Creek.

THE SUNDAY SIGNS OF SIXTY. Sounds of Unusual Sorrow at a Central Station Hearing. Sin never seems so tough as when it finds a man out, or locks him in, on Sunday. Sixty was the total number of sinners in Central Station when the hearing began yesterday morning. Magistrate Hyndman presided.

THE NAMES SOMEWHAT CONTENDED. Somebody appears to have been mistaken with regard to that telegraphic cry for help from Parkersburg, published in The DISPATCH yesterday. At all events, the editor of the Sentinel of that place called at this office to correct the error. He called to say that "Thee, Boyd, Mayor of Parkersburg," was the signature to the very proper appeal for relief to the flooded district. G. B. Gibbons is the Mayor and Treasurer.

CLARET WINES. Imported Rembrandt's French. Medoc, St. Emilion, St. Estepha, St. Julien, Margaux, Pontet Canet, St. Pierre, Chateau Leoville, Chateau La Rose, Chateau Mouton, Grand Vin Chateau Margaux, Grand Vin Chateau Lafite, and the maid will follow her instruction, if she is not green.

WHY STOCKS ARE LOW. Insurance companies in this city are generally doing a good business. There has not lately been much fire loss. Still, the stocks of even those in good shape, paying good dividends, and with surplus are quoted low. F. E. Stephens gives the reason. He says they have, as a rule, too small capital—that there are too many of them to do the business profitably; the cost of running a small company being very high proportionally than that of a large one. Competition reduces premium and great risk is taken for little money. Mr. Stephens says, the Pittsburgh companies are like to prosper more years ago, but much of it has been made on marine risks, and that this class of business does not amount to much now.
