

ADVERTISE your business in THE DISPATCH. Prompt returns assured. WANTS are inserted promptly responded to when advertised in THE DISPATCH. Real Estate can be sold through advertisement in THE DISPATCH.

FORTY-FOURTH YEAR.

CAN'T BEAT BIGLER.

The Allegheny County Delegation Couldn't Get Randall to Interfere.

THEY WILL OPPOSE HIM.

But With No Hope of Preventing His Nomination.

THIS YEAR CLEVELANDISM WILL WIN.

The Discontented Think Another Year There'll be Another Tale to Tell—Bigger Stock Has an Appreciable Boom—Thun and Mack Not to Withdraw—Quay Asking—Mudge to Name David Porter and Elect Him as Bayne's Successor—Chris to Fight Next Year, No Matter What Appointments His Followers May Secure—Chairman Andrews Confident That Boyer Will Defeat Bigler by Many Thousands.

SAVED BY A SHOT.

A Two-Year-Old Child Plotted Unwarily by a Bunch of Toy Balloons—Selling Over Lake Michigan—A Man With a Repeating Rifle.

CHICAGO, August 18.—Little 2-year-old Sophie Schvab, involuntarily became a ballast to-day, and was wafted high up over the broad bosom of Lake Michigan. A rifleman's skill saved the child's life. The exciting incident took place at Sheffield Park, and was witnessed by 1,500 picnickers. An Italian vendor of toy balloons attempted to serve two customers at once, and in doing so let go his string of bright-colored globes. The cord got twisted about Sophie's left arm and also in her hair, and the buoyant rubber bubbles started heavenward, taking the youthful aeronaut along. Sophie's mother shrieked and fainted. The bystanders stood horror-stricken, watching as the balloons swept close to a large oak tree and incidentally grasped a handful of twigs and checked her flight. A muscular man in a blue coat, who was standing in an instant, and then crept out on the branch nearest the child.

At this moment Sophie's pony strength gave out and she fell into the water. The balloons went again upward at least 100 feet, drifting then out over the lake. Gust Koch, a sharpshooter, who was attending a picnic with Sophie, immediately took aim at the inflated balloons, and in a few moments had shot down the balloons and pulled out into range. Koch succeeded in piercing several of the balloons, each successful shot helping the child descend. As the balloons fell, the boat was at the spot, and little Sophie did not even get her feet wet.

LIVELY AT 100 YEARS.

Mrs. Hilda Elwood Rockwell Celebrating To-day Her Centenary.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., August 18.—Among the United Kingdom of very aged people in this State, Mrs. Hilda Elwood Rockwell, probably known as Mrs. Hilda Elwood Rockwell, who lives in a neat little cottage at Poplar Plains, with her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rockwell. Tomorrow she will be 100 years old, and she has been married 75 years. She attended school at Green's Farm, and then she became a pupil. A few years later she was head cook at the tavern kept by her brother-in-law, George Buckley, at Green's Farm. On January 9, 1809, Miss Hilda Elwood became Mrs. Joseph Rockwell. Her husband, "Uncle Joe," died when she was 20 years old, aged 88 years. Mrs. Rockwell has had 13 children. Nine are dead, and the other four are living, four at Weston. Of her descendants, as far as known, there are 41 now living. She has never seen New York and has never ridden on a railroad.

Mrs. Rockwell joined the Northfield Congregational Church 75 years ago, and at different dates, in later years. Rev. John Noyes, pastor of the church, and Mrs. Rockwell's mother lived to see 100. Her brother, Joseph S. Elwood, of Brookfield, is nearly 80 years old. Mrs. Rockwell is nearly 80 years old. Her general disposition attracts both young and old. Her hearing is good; her memory is really wonderful, and her mind and voice are clear. Several years ago she received her eyesight, and she can now see fairly well without spectacles.

HE WASN'T A DETECTIVE.

But He Could Give Them Points and Beat Them.

CHICAGO, August 18.—The detectives are great admirers just at this time of George T. Baker, a Northside decorator. The reason is that Mr. Baker started out to catch a thief and caught him. Mr. Baker is a very confident and capable young man. So when a plausible young man named Schovers came into his employ some time since and showed a disposition to behave himself Mr. Baker boosted him from time to time and looked for his own pair of trousers. He even took the young fellow on fishing trips with him, and in a number of other ways manifested great confidence in him. The young man, however, was plotting to rifle Mr. Baker's safe and skipping out with the money.

Inasmuch as this sort of thing has occurred before, Baker, several times he thought the signs pretty right to turn loose the lion of his wrath; so he notified the police, and a couple of detectives were sent out on the robbery's trail. But Mr. Baker wasn't satisfied to stop there. He joined in the chase himself, and after dodging about from town to town down Indiana street, he caught up with his man, borrowed a pair of handcuffs, clapped them on him and dragged him back to town and into the Central station as modestly as though he had just received a delivery of his goods. The man since developed that the young man whom Mr. Baker thus keel-hauled has several wives, is a forger, and is an all-round scoundrel. He is now in the State penitentiary, and his wife, who is not in the detective business, is attacking Mormon Elders.

TURNING TO HOUK.

The Present Southern Candidate for Speaker—A Washington—Houk a Fearless and Able Fellow.

WASHINGTON, August 18.—The situation as to Southern Republican politics is becoming very much complicated. In the first place, the Southern Republicans elected to the Fifty-first Congress are, many of them, sore at the neglect with which President Harrison has treated them. They have talked a great deal among themselves about the administration's attitude, and while much has been stated in the press as emanating from them in nature or exaggerated, there is a large basis of fact in what has been called the Southern movement.

A general conference has been held since Congress adjourned. There has been no opportunity as yet for such a gathering. A little later, especially if an extra session shall be called, it is probable that the movement will get together here, or at least some of them will, and arrange a program of action. It is not expected that any time it will be necessary to assume an attitude of hostility to the party caucus. It is hoped that the demands made will be complied with before matters have reached the extreme.

Mr. Brower's candidacy for the Speakership is serious, was a mere simple on a surface, showing the condition of the blood. Mr. Houk, of Tennessee, is the man to whom the Republicans of his section turn instinctively. Houk is a man of high ability and experience. He is a fearless fellow, and his only disqualification is his occasional lack of dignity on the floor. When he speaks he is cool and collected, and he has a certain amount of respectability in the eyes of the Southern Republican to be thought of in connection with Mr. McComas, of Maryland, perhaps a more solid, certainly a more dignified person for a place well responsible. But McComas has not made, on certain vital points, so favorably a record for the purpose in hand as Houk has.

PHILADELPHIA, August 18.—Congressman Samuel J. Randall has been confined to his bed at his home at Wallingford for nearly a week by an attack of rheumatism. He was better this evening.

SUNDAY AT DEER PARK.

President Harrison Attends Church and Then Takes a Two-Mile Trip—Arrangements for the Trip to Indianapolis—Mr. Harrison's Plans.

DEER PARK, Md., August 18.—Excepting the frequent visits of carriages and buggies of Oakland visitors bent on seeing the President, Sunday slipped quietly away. At 11 o'clock the summer guests of the hotel and cottages strolled into the little chapel. After the President, walking with Ex-Senator Davis, entered and was fairly seated the congregation sang "Rock of Ages," which was followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Marlow of the Union church of St. Louis. The daughter of Mr. Harford credibly sang the solo of "Better Land," the pastor read the First Psalm and the twenty-ninth verse and twenty-first chapter of Matthew, and gave out the hymn, "Son of My Soul, My Savior Dear." The minister presided over the parable of the fig tree. Prayer followed giving thanks for opportunities of the past and asking strength to glorify God for the future. The service closed with "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

As the congregation was dismissed, President Harrison was met by his old law partner, Mr. Attorney General Miller, and Mr. Flann. The President returned to the Spencer cottage to dinner. In the afternoon, accompanied by ex-Senator Davis, Stephen B. Elwell, Attorney General Miller, Post Secretary Harford and Assistant District Attorney Cookrum, of Indiana, President Harrison took a two-mile walk in the morning, going to the observatory to get the view.

Mrs. Harrison did not attend church, but spent the day resting from the fatigue of the trip to Annapolis. She is quite well, and together with her father, Dr. Scott, expects to attend the celebration of the log cottage, which was the foundation of Princeton's college. She will be sleeping in her private car here on Tuesday night, and will be attached to the Baltimore and Ohio express which leaves here at 6 A. M. Wednesday and arrives at Annapolis at 11 o'clock to-day. The President was to-day notified by telegraph that a committee of the Cincinnati Produce Exchange will wait on him to-night to know if he will be in Cincinnati after his trip to Indianapolis. The President is not decided whether he will accept the invitation.

THE JAPAN EARTHQUAKE.

Loss of Life Not So Great as First Reported.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 18.—The steamer City of Sidney, from Hong Kong and Yokohama, which arrived this evening, reports a loss of life in the earthquake at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kumamoto, the first news of which was called from Yokohama July 30. One cablegram gave the loss of life at 3,000, while another stated that almost the entire town of Kumamoto, with a population of 30,000, was destroyed. Full details had not yet been received when the City of Sidney left Yokohama, but it is believed that the loss of life at Kum