A CHICAGO DIVORCE

That May be the Subject of an International Complication.

A SENSATION IN THE DOMINION.

The Wife of the Present Minister of Finance Went to America

IN ORDER TO SECURE A SEPARATION

From Her Former Husband, Who Now Threatens to Make Serious Trouble.

Some time since Mrs. D. B. Chisholm moved from Ottawa, Ont., to Chicago, and there secured a divorce. She has since married Hon. George Foster, the Canadian Minister of Finance...

CHICAGO, October 18.—Advice from Ottawa, Ont., are to the effect that the sensation of the hour at the Dominion capital is the announcement that D. B. Chisholm, whose wife recently secured a divorce in Chicago to enable her to marry the Hon. George Foster, Dominion Minister of Finance, will apply to the Senate here at the approaching meeting of Parliament for a divorce on his own account...

The divorce referred to was granted by Judge Horton June 4 last, under circumstances that at that time without the light now shed on them were to say the least most peculiar. The wife of David B. Chisholm, now Mrs. Foster, was Mrs. Addie C. Chisholm. She is a very handsome woman of notable intellectual ability and aristocratic bearing...

Under what circumstances? "Where is Chisholm?" asked the Judge. "Well, he is in hiding," answered Mr. Dow. "You see, your Honor, his home was in Hamilton, Ontario, but he got into some trouble there and was obliged to flee. He does not wish his hiding place known."

"How did you get his signature to this appearance?" "The paper was sent to him under cover and he returned it by the same means."

"Does his wife know his whereabouts?" "She does, but she does not wish to divulge it."

"Well, I have no information that this is the defendant's signature. I don't wish Mrs. Chisholm to reveal her husband's whereabouts if he is likely to be given over to the law, but there must be some proof that this is his signature."

"I can bring a witness to prove that," said Mr. Dow. Accordingly June 4, Mrs. Chisholm and her lawyer appeared again with James M. Davis, a brother of Mrs. Chisholm, who said that Chisholm's signature was known to him and the collusive agreement by which Chisholm was not to fight the divorce suit, was Chisholm's. He said that his sister and Chisholm lived together in Hamilton, Canada, until 1883, when he fled to some place unknown.

"What was his business?" "He was attorney and president of an insurance company."

"He has never been to Canada since, to your knowledge?" "He has not. I have been there every year to see my mother and he has not been there, nor has there been any trace of him."

Mrs. Chisholm testified that she was married to Chisholm in August, 1884, and they were living in Hamilton, Ontario, when he fled to some place unknown in 1883. He had a son who was not to fight the divorce suit, was Chisholm's. He said that his sister and Chisholm lived together in Hamilton, Canada, until 1883, when he fled to some place unknown.

"Did you come here from Hamilton?" "No, I did not. I came here from Chicago."

"For the purpose of getting a divorce?" "The Judge was visibly impressed with the truthfulness of Mrs. Chisholm and the integrity of her motives when she repudiated the collusive agreement by which Chisholm was not to fight the divorce suit."

"I did not come here for that purpose."

THE Ottawa dispatch shows how a court can be deceived, because she did come here to get a divorce in order to marry Hon. George Foster, as is proven by the fact that the divorce was granted in June, and she is now the Hon. Mrs. George Foster. The information from Ottawa also makes the circumstances under which Chisholm consented to an immediate trial of the case seem quite clear.

There is no divorce in Canada except through Parliament and international question may arise as to whether the Dominion courts will recognize a Chicago divorce. The Hon. Mr. Foster, however, and Mrs. Foster's only chance to get out of the middle is to let Chisholm get his divorce from Parliament. Whether Chisholm repudiates the alleged agreement allowing his wife to get her Chicago divorce is not known.

NO LANGUOR SHOWN HERE. Railway activity in the Monongahela Valley is unabated. Railway movements are considerable in this section. The McKeesport and Bessemer Railway Company has a large body of men widening cuts at Rostraver and Gibbston, the earth being hauled to the fill at Bellevernon. Grading is also going on for the sidings at the slack elevator at Bunola and at the stock yards at Carrollton. Between West Elizabeth and Dravosburg the Pittsburgh, Virginian and Charleston Railway Company has graded for another track, and there will be a solid fill at Peter's creek. The McKeesport and Bessemer Company has invested $115,000 in ground at the point at McKeesport.

A GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

The Charred Remains of Thomas Dougherty Found in a Furnace Ventilating Shaft at Chartiers—Remains Disposed Of.

The mortuary room at the morgue has rarely held more horrible evidence of a lingering and agonizing death than were brought in the dead wagon from Chartiers about 5 P. M. yesterday. James P. Tallon, an employe of Long's Mills, at Chartiers, while examining his furnace thought he saw a man lying in the ventilating shaft underneath. He made several ineffectual efforts to get to the body, which he soon discovered it to be, and finally about eight feet of the brickwork were removed, revealing a most ghastly sight.

It was the body of a man, apparently about five feet eight inches in height, thin, whole, but dried up, and what fresh remains mummified by the hot air blast which had evidently been playing upon it for many days. The skull was perfectly bare and his eyes evaporated from the sockets, while the nose and mouth were a parchment-like integument which still preserved a black mustache and chin beard. The flesh was gone from the lower portions of the legs and the bones, dried and browned by the heat, were lying in the position relative to the upper portion of the body to which they belonged.

The wildest excitement prevailed about the mill for some time, all sorts of rumors of foul play and murder gaining credence, while no one could be found who recognized either the clothing or the remains. A messenger was telephoned to the Coroner and the baked fragments of humanity taken to the morgue. In the pockets were found a pair of insoules for shoes, a paper of tobacco, the paper showed evidence of having been subjected to slow heat.

Shortly after the arrival of the remains at the morgue they were identified by Thomas Grogan and two other employes of the Long Mills, as those of Thomas Dougherty, a pipe line worker, who was formerly a millman but recently had worked for Pat Foley, the contractor. They said Dougherty had been missing since Thursday, 10th inst., on which day he had left for Chartiers and had started for the mill with a bundle of his brother. It is supposed on reaching Chartiers, Dougherty, feeling tired and cold, crept into the shaft for warmth and the gas was turned on before he awoke. As no flame passes into the mill the man must have been slowly roasted to death unless an escape of gas first mercifully asphyxiated him.

The remains will be removed to his brother's residence in the Thirty-sixth ward, where they will be kept until the morning. The deceased was 40 years of age and unmarried.

SAID TO BE A BUGABOO.

The Thomson-Houston-Bush Consolidation—Leaving the City Dark Laughed at—What Mr. Duncan Said.

It has been reported that the absorption of three-fourths of the Brush Electric Light Company's stock by the Thomson-Houston Company, of Boston, may leave the streets of Pittsburgh in total darkness some of these moonless nights.

The Thomson-Houston Company paid $3,250,000 for the controlling interest in the Brush Company. It has also secured control of the Jenu Electric Light Company, of Indianapolis and of Ft. Wayne, and the American interest in the Swan system, and is claimed to practically control the arc electric light systems in the United States.

W. Stookley and John E. Ridall are authorized by the statement that while some stockholders of the Brush Company have agreed to sell part of their stock, yet the purchase has not been fully consummated. It is said the Brush Company is not to be absorbed and that the transaction, if perfected, will be of great advantage to both corporations.

Mr. Duncan, of the Allegheny County Electric Light Company, stated last night that the dire prediction of total darkness was unfounded. He stated that not only had they the Waterhouse machines in successful operation, but that their contract with the Brush Company could not be lightly set aside.

SCARING WOMEN.

Indignant Citizens Looking for an Alleged Insurance Agent. A gray-haired man, who represents himself to be the agent of a life insurance company, is going about the city insinuating and frightening women, and quite a number of men are anxious to get their hands on the fellow. During the past week he has been operating in the Second and Third wards.

He is described as a man of medium height, rather slender build, with hair and beard nearly white. He dresses in sober black, wears spectacles and possesses rather a clerical appearance. It is his custom to visit houses during the daytime, at the hours when men are at their work and the women are alone. Under the pretense that he is inquiring her eligibility to be insured, he asks a woman all sorts of impudent and insulting questions. Several ladies in the Second ward have complained that he has laid hands on them, frightening them almost out of their wits. From the stories told of his conduct it seems likely that the man is a fraud, as far as his insurance business is concerned. No instance has been found where he gave the name of the company which he pretended to represent. If an insurance house in the city were an agent answering this description, it would be to their interest to give him an eternal vacation.

A QUEERLY WORDED WILL.

It Starts on One Line and Ends on Another, but is Not Uncertain. A very queerly constructed will was filed in the County Register's office yesterday. It starts off in nuncupative style, but winds up with the signature of the testatrix duly witnessed. The material parts are as follows: On the 15th day of April, A. D. 1889, Sarah Ann McGee, being in the extremity of her last illness, she caused to be written and signed in the presence of the subscribers, did declare her last will and testament in the following words, or to that effect—viz: She mentioned that she owned 68 acres more or less of farm land in Clearfield township, Butler county. I want my youngest son, George McGee, to have and to hold undisturbed possession to use for his own benefit as he may see fit, first paying my just debts and funeral expenses.

At the time the said Sarah Ann McGee pronounced the foregoing will she was of sound mind and understanding, the very best she was present to bear witness that such was her will. (Signed) SARAH ANN MCGEE, mark. PHILIP SCHULZ, JOHN F. McDONALD, J. K. NORRIS, Alderman.

Took a Different Short Cut. George Leclair was arrested by Detective Fitzgerald last evening, at the Union station, while in company with an old man named Conard, from Washington county, who had considerable money on his person. Mr. Conard said his companion wanted to take him down a dark alley for a short cut and Leclair was locked up as a suspicious person.

Drawn at San Francisco. Word was received in this city yesterday that J. O. Matthews, a former resident of Third avenue, had been drowned about a week since at San Francisco.

P. R. R. OFFICIALS BANQUETED.

They Had a High Time Last Night at the Pittsburgh Club. President Roberts and the visiting Pennsylvania Railroad officials were entertained gastronomically at a banquet at the Pittsburgh Club last night, by a select few of Pittsburgh's commercial elite. Forty gentlemen sat down to discuss the matters which is given verbatim et literatim below—Garnett's orchestra furnished a selection of music and the table was profusely decorated with flowers and a choice equipage.

As strict secrecy was enjoined to be observed regarding the affair, supposed to be of a purely personal and private character, the press was rigorously excluded from a chance of recording the words of wisdom which, no doubt, fell from the lips of the men of millions, but it was learned that some interesting speeches were made in the presence of the guests. The dinner extended over a duration of three and one-half hours. Among those present, including the above mentioned officials, were: W. H. Singer, of Singer, Nimick & Co.; Lawyer John H. Hampton, A. E. W. Painter, of Painter & Sons; W. Oliver, Jr., James B. Oliver and Reuben Miller.
