

WHAT GAS CAN DO.

It Burst Out the Sides of a House at Braddock, Scorching Five People. PRECIPITATED INTO THE STREET.

The Seventeen Occupants at the Time Had a Narrow Escape.

AN UPHEAVAL ON WYLIE AVENUE

An explosion of natural gas occurred in a two-story frame house at Braddock yesterday morning, by which William Householder, an employe of the Philadelphia Gas Company; George Walters, a plumber, and two children of the owner, John Keolch, were more or less badly burned. Householder, who is a youth of 18 years, is the greatest sufferer, being burned about the head and upper portion of the body, and is not expected to recover, while the other two children, though also scorched by the flames, are not injured to the same extent. There were 17 people in the house at the time, and it is surprising that there were not more casualties than those recorded.

The dwelling structure was owned and occupied by John Keolch, an employe in the Edgar Thomson Steel Works, and what it remains stands at the corner of Robinson and Wood streets, within a short distance of the Pennsylvania Railroad. For some time Mr. Keolch had experienced difficulty with the gas, which resulted on Thursday morning in a small fire originating in the kitchen, but which was easily extinguished. Yesterday's disaster was ushered in at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, when Mr. Keolch was engaged in preparing his breakfast. He had removed a vessel from the stove, which was heated by a four-light gas pipe, when an expansion of the lighted gas took place, which set fire to the apartment and burned Mr. Keolch very severely about the head, face and arms. He was able, however, to call for assistance and the fire was soon subdued. Concluding he had had enough of gas, Mr. Keolch notified the company to turn off

THE TREACHEROUS FLUID from his house, and having had his burns attended to, went upstairs and lay down beside his wife, who had not yet left her room since the birth of her child, ten days previously. George Walters, a brother-in-law of the owners, removed the meter, and, in company with William Householder, on behalf of the gas company, proceeded to ascertain where the leakage of gas existed. They descended to the cellar, accompanied by Keolch's two sons, aged respectively 7 years and 7, and the unfortunate commencing investigations. Instantly the cellar was filled with flame, accompanying the explosion which burst out the side and front of the house, thereby allowing the floor of the room in which Mr. and Mrs. Keolch were to drop, throwing the occupants into the street. Owing to the circumstances of the family, friends and relatives of the occupants to the number of 13 were assembled in the room at the moment of the explosion, and were, in an instant, sliding down the sloping floor to a resting place on the sides of the house, then lying half way across the streets. Assistance was promptly at hand and the unfortunate conveyed in carriages to their homes; the Keolch family finding refuge with their relatives, Mr. John Walters, on Railroad street. The explosion was so violent as to shake the houses to a considerable distance all around, and drive in the windows of Patrick Foley's store across the street.

CONDITION OF SUFFERERS. When seen last night Mr. Keolch was insensible in bandages, but was not suffering much pain, and expects to be at work again in a few days. His wife complained of bruises about the body, but was unable to say whether her infant had sustained injury or not. The two boys who were in the cellar reposed in bed, enveloped in bandages and are getting around, while Walters, who lives in No. 1000 Braddock street, is progressing toward recovery. A call was made on Mr. John Householder, William's father, who said that though his son was badly burned he expected he would recover. Those in the room at the time of the occurrence included Mrs. Winklenbouck, Mrs. Letzinger and her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Walters, Mrs. Keolch's parents, three children of the Keolch's and two children of Mrs. Keolch's brother. They all slid down into the street on the floor as it gave way at the front and side, and were more or less bruised by the fall. Only those were burned by the gas who happened in the cellar at the time, as above mentioned.

When Householder, Walters and the two boys went down to the cellar, the former having first turned off the gas at the main, they must have been unaware of the volume of the gas which had concentrated there. The match was struck, and the disaster followed. The house is of four rooms, and cost Mr. Keolch somewhere between $800 and $1,000. As it now stands it is minus two sides and the floor of the front room, but the chimneys, roof and other sides are intact.

A LOCAL UPHEAVAL. A severe explosion of natural gas took place in the basement of the three-story brick house at No. 57 Wylie avenue just about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. The house is owned and occupied by Mrs. George Glass, and at the time of the accident six persons were in the house. The members of the family were nearly all asleep on the second floor. The house is opposite the new powerhouse of the Central Traction Company, and the street has been excavated for the cable vault. It is believed that the excavating caused a leak in the Philadelphia Company's gas main. The gas escaped into the coal vault under the sidewalk and thence into the basement. When Barbara Ecken-dorfer, the young German domestic, descended to light a match and there was an explosion. The building was rattled, windows broken, ceilings cracked, chandeliers shattered, the front wall rent in two places, and the stone sidewalk broken to pieces. The servant's clothing took fire, she rushed upstairs to Mrs. Glass' bedroom. There quilts were thrown her and the flames were extinguished. The girl was badly burned on the face, breast and arms. She was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital. Last night it was reported that she was in a fair way to recover. Building Inspector Brown considered the front wall of the building to be unsafe, and ordered that it be torn down. The Homeopathic Hospital physicians said last night that the condition of Miss Barbara Ecken-dorfer was much improved, and that her recovery was possible.

Sheep Killed by a Car. Early yesterday morning car No. 4 of the Pittsburg Traction Line ran into a drove of sheep on Fifth avenue, near Bidwell street, killed one and maimed others. The sheep had been bought by George Teah, the butcher, and were being driven to slaughter. Agent O'Brien was notified of the affair, and went out. He found two badly wounded sheep lying by the roadside, and he cut their throats.
