

A BIG CHINESE WALL

That Some Senators Are Trying to Prevent Others Building.

CHINA'S COMMERCE AT STAKE

On the Passage or Failure of the Geary Exclusion BILL

DEAD CALM FOR A DAY IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, April 23.—After the routine of the morning business in the Senate today, Mr. Teller offered a resolution requesting the President to inform the Senate what steps, if any, have been taken toward the securing of international conference to consider the question of the free exchange of silver at the mints of the nations participating in such conference, or as to the enlarged use of silver in the currency of such countries; also, to transmit copies of all correspondence between the United States Government and the governments expected to participate in the proceedings of such international conference.

Mr. Sherman suggested the insertion of the words: "If not incompatible with the public interests," and Mr. Teller agreed to the suggestion, although he did not see, he said, how such publication could hurt the public interest. The resolution, as so modified, was agreed to.

Mr. Call offered a resolution, which went over without action, for the appointment of a committee of nine Senators to inquire into the present value per mile of the present railroads of the United States; their present capitalization and the difference between such capitalization and the actual cost of construction and equipment; their gross and net receipts; the number and compensation of their employees; the amount of indebtedness and capital stock, and the amount of bonds and stock held by the stockholders and bondholders, distinguishing between home and foreign holders.

Another Chinese Wall. The Chinese exclusion bill was taken up, and Mr. Teller addressed the Senate. There could not be, he said, any dispute regarding the rejection of the United States Minister to China. It was elementary principle of international law that a Minister must serve as such with the consent of both nations. Both nations had to consent before he could be Minister. In other words, he must be received as well as sent. He, therefore, had no fault to find with the Chinese Government because it had rejected Mr. Blair. It had a right to reject him, even on absolutely false premises, or without any premises whatever.

Coming to the question of the abrogation of treaties, Mr. Teller held that every nation which agreed with another nation did so with the understanding that it might retire from it any time it saw fit, and it might do so notwithstanding the fact that there was a provision in the treaty that it should continue for a limited period of time. Legislation by the National Legislature to set aside any treaty inconsistent with it, whether he thought that other nations had the same power. Mr. Teller thought he had stated explicitly that other nations had that power, and said he had a very poor opinion of a nation which would surrender that right.

Not Always Easy to Break Treaties. Mr. Morrill remarked that Japan had for years endeavored to get into treaty with Great Britain, and had not succeeded. Mr. Teller said that a reason for that might be that Japan was not willing to create friction with Great Britain. The United States had been trying for a great many years to get into treaty with Great Britain, and had got rid of it by the action of Great Britain in violating it. He referred to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and said that he never had seen such a treaty in the affairs of either nation wanted to propose its absolute repeal or violation; and yet neither Great Britain nor the United States had ever intended to do so. But was very evident that the people of the United States would insist on the abrogation of that treaty whenever it should appear that it was inimical to the interests of the great mass of the people of the country.

Reverting to the peculiarities of Chinese immigration, Mr. Teller remarked that the American would never assimilate with the Chinese, because, if the American would, the Chinaman would not. In the whole course of national history, there was no nation so thoroughly satisfied with itself as the Chinese. Their civilization was to them infinitely superior to the civilization of Europe and America. His civilization, in contact with the civilization of Europe and America, remain a Chinaman. And therefore a reason existed for keeping them out of the country which did not exist for keeping other people out. Chinamen came to the United States.

Simply to Take Money Out of the country and to return to their homes. They took no part in building up the society in which they lived. The lowest immigrant that came from Europe (whether convict, pauper or otherwise) contributed something to the civilization of the country. The Chinese contributed simply cheap labor, and in that he came in competition with the American laborer and deprived him of his opportunities.

Mr. Teller was in favor of restricted immigration of all classes of people, although he confessed that if it were left to him to pass laws, he would do so. He was unable to arrive at any plan that would be acceptable to himself. Still, in relation to the Chinese, Congress could afford to pass harsh and unreasonable laws. Those Chinamen who were in the country with the consent of the United States Government were entitled to domicile; and there was no way that he knew of, without an infraction (if not of the law) of the decrees that should be shown by one nation to another, to compel the Chinamen now here to retire, but the United States Government had a perfect right to say that no more should come. As to the great trade in opium, his countryman, Mr. Teller denied its existence, and said that American exports to China last year were not one-half of what they were five years ago.

Diplomacy Should First Fail. Mr. Hiseock was not in favor of the violation of the treaty obligations with China or any other nation until diplomacy had exhausted itself in efforts for the amendment of the treaty.

Mr. Morgan spoke in favor of the Senate substitute. Mr. Frye said the Committee on Commerce had been considering the appropriations in the river and harbor bill, and that the Senators from the Pacific coast had been, very careful in the interest of their people, and had been soliciting very large appropriations. Their main ground for asking these appropriations had been that the Pacific commerce was to be really the commerce of the United States; that Puget Sound, for instance, was to be the scene of an enormous amount of commerce. Now, said Mr. Frye, if the people of the Pacific coast build a Chinese wall by insulting the people and Government of China so that they will not send any of their commerce here or permit us to send any of ours there, what becomes of the necessity of any further improvement of rivers and harbors on the Pacific coast?

A Pert Question and Answer. Mr. Mitchell.—In view of the fact that we have paid, in gold and silver, to China over $200,000,000 in the last 20 years to pay the balances of trade, I ask the Senator from Maine whether he thinks China is going to break off that trade with us if we pass the exclusion bill.

Mr. Mitchell.—Well, I have.

Mr. Frye.—None under the sun. If the House bill becomes a law, and if the Emperor of China does not, in less than 90 days, declare his ports closed to all the commerce of the United States and withdraw his diplomatic representatives from the United States, I am strongly mistaken about the Emperor of China and his Minister.

Mr. Sanders next argued in favor of the House bill, and after an executive session, the Senate adjourned.

A Dead Calm in the House. There was a calm in the House today, succeeding the gale of yesterday. The attendance was small, and the first half hour of the session was consumed in the consideration of a few private measures. On motion of Mr. Dockery, of Missouri, a committee of conference was ordered on the District of Columbia bill.

Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, then called on the resolution of the Committee on Printing to expunge from the Record the printed remarks of Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, reflecting upon Messrs. Williams and Root, of Massachusetts. Mr. Walker defended himself against the charge that he had printed in the Record unwarranted matter criticizing the "Mugwump," and his speech, though at times giving rise to some party feeling, was not of any public interest. It was essentially personal.

Mr. Williams replied to Mr. Walker, and the previous question having been ordered, Mr. Reed, of Maine, moved to lay the resolution on the table. The vote resulted—Yeas, none; nays, 91—no quorum, and the House adjourned.

PROTESTS OF SEATTLE MERCHANTS

Against Naval Vessels Coaling and Fitting Out at British Ports.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Senator Squire today received telegrams from E. O. Graves, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce of Seattle, and other prominent citizens of Seattle, Wash., informing him that the United States Navy vessels now at Port Townsend purpose coaling and fitting out in the British port of Vancouver, although good coal at a lower price can, they assert, be procured at Seattle. They protest against the alleged purpose, and ask the Senator to see the Secretary of the Navy and have orders issued for the vessels to buy their coal and fit out in the American port.

Acting Secretary Soley said today that he did not quite understand the protest, for the simple reason that no orders of that character have been issued. He said the Mohican, which is now at Seattle, is under orders to coalesce with the other vessels in a few days. The other naval vessel in those waters is the Adams, now at Port Townsend, and is most likely to coal at that port subsequently. Acting Secretary Soley issued an order that all naval vessels coaling in Puget Sound should get their coal at ports in that sound.

ONE MORE SILVER MEASURE

This Has a Peculiarly Distinctive Its Own, at Any Rate.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Another silver measure made its appearance in the House today in the shape of a bill introduced by Mr. Storer, of Ohio, to provide for an international ratio between gold and silver, and to suspend the purchase of silver bullion from and after July 1, 1903. It differs from previous propositions in the same line by instructing the President to negotiate particularly with the States of the Latin Union on this subject, and when a treaty is concluded with the Latin Union, with or without the concurrence of other nations, the ratio agreed upon is to go into effect in the United States.

It is provided that if no agreement is reached by July 1, 1903, the operation of the act shall be suspended. The purchase of silver bullion is to be suspended.

Overman May Get Off Easily. WASHINGTON, April 23.—Secretary Ekins said today that he had not decided what action to take in the case of Major L. C. Overman, of the Engineers' Corps, against whom charges have been preferred by General Casey, Chief of Engineers. The impression among army officers is that Major Overman will not be brought to trial again, but that he will be given an opportunity to leave the service.

A Money Bank Divided Declared. WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Controller of the Currency has declared a first dividend of 100 per cent in favor of the creditors of the First National Bank of Money, Pa., on claims proved amounting to $68,464.

BALD HEAD TALK.

This is the ODD young man who believes in ODD figures, and always bought hats at ODD prices; for instance, he paid $2.49, $2.99 or $3.49 for hats.

The same young man discovered, after wearing these odd hats advertised at odd prices, that they were stiffed with poisonous stiffening, and the sweats, instead of being leather, were composed of poisons. The result was a sore head.

And, finally, a bald head. Yes, he lost his hair. The poisons in the would-be leather sweats did it.

The moral is to buy your HATS from J. G. Bennett & Co., and see that their name is embossed on the leather. This will insure you a good, reliable, fashionable hat, full leather trimmed.

EARLY RISERS' SALES!

We find that while our stores are crowded in the afternoons, in the mornings we are only kept half busy. As rent runs on all the same, whether we are busy or not, as the wages for clerks must be paid all the same, whether we sell goods or not, and as a hundred expenses are just the same, whether business is good or bad, we have been trying to devise some method of filling the stores in the mornings as well as in the afternoons. As an EXPERIMENT, and as an experiment only, which may be abandoned after a week's trial, we announce a series of EARLY RISERS' SALES, and shall, each day, advertise a number of articles at reduced prices from 8 A. M. UNTIL NOON. At precisely 12 o'clock the gong will be sounded and all the goods advertised at these special prices will be withdrawn from sale. We know that this may lead to some dissatisfaction, but it is practiced in Eastern cities with great success, and we shall try it for one week in Pittsburgh just to see how it works. First of all, in order that you may have no excuse for oversleeping yourselves, we begin with
