The Church Around the Corner.

If ever there was a man really hooded and kicked by the Great American Public, surely that man was the Rev. Mr. Sabine, of New York, for refusing to perform the burial rites over poor George Holland, simply because the latter was an actor.

"The Little Church 'Round the Corner" will long be remembered. The daily press handled the distressed Sabine "without gloves," and now the illustrated press have taken it up, representing him, in his I-am-hoiler-than-thou attitude, motioning the coffin bearers to "The Little Church 'Round the Corner." This immediately following the funeral. And now there are benefits taking place everywhere, and this gives occasion for renewed scorings of the distressed Sabine. The New York Standard, noticing one in that city on Friday night, pitches into the reverend gentleman in quite a ferocious style, of which the following is given as a sample:

"Have the recent records of the pulpit been so pure that any priest can afford to wrap his virtue up in churchiness, and cloak his morals in austerity? We know not. At the same time it is well to reflect that one harsh lesson sometimes lasts a lifetime to him who learns it. Mr. Sabine is comparatively a young man. True, he is old enough to have known better. But he did not know better. There is no doubt about that. Let him, by all means, have credit for his stupidity. It is easier to forgive his being so little of a Christian, when one reflects that he was so much of an ass. We are more charitable than to believe he will always remain one. To become a pig is not a difficult matter with many pious people. It comes naturally enough. The ears of religious self-conceit incline of their own accord toward donkeydom. But to remain a pig, after one's piggrishness has been hooded at and spat upon by the world, requires an amount of moral courage which we would fain believe Mr. Sabine to possess as a compensation for his lack of common sense. No. The change will come some day."

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, for February (Boston: James R. Osgood & Co.) contains The Origins of Folk Lore; To Fanny (poetry), by W. D. O'Connor; The Friend of My Youth, by T. B. Aldrich; Our Eyes, and How to Take Care of Them—second paper, by H. W. Williams, M. D.; Kate Beaumont, by J. W. DeForest (continued); A Chapter of Modern Astrology, by W. L. Stow; The Story of a Famous Book (Franklin's Autobiography), by S. A. Green; Castilian Days, by John Hay; Kittery Annie's Dream (poetry), by Colia Thaxter; The Red Hand, by W. M. Baker, of Zanesville; American Life in France, by M. L. P.; Wanted—an Heir, by E. F. Terry; Our Whispering Gallery (Mr. Fields' very interesting paper on Hawthorne) Recent Literature.

We like the Atlantic, and always welcome its cheerful face as it makes its monthly visit to our sanctum, well knowing the rich and rare entertainment in store for us, after the trials of the day are over, and the copy-compelling voice of the "devil" is hushed.

A CORRESPONDENT, writing from Staunton, Virginia, calls our attention to the fact that the Baltimore Democracy destroyed a ballot-box at one of their own primary elections recently, and suggests that they are practicing to keep their hands in by breaking their own boxes, that they may be the more expert in breaking those containing Republican majorities when actual elections take place. It is a Spartan idea. The Lacedaemonians, to make their children cunning and expert in the art of war, encouraged them to waylay and rob their own countrymen. It was a thievish custom, almost as bad as breaking a ballot-box, and profiting by the crime,—which is exactly the case with our present City Council.

THE NORFOLK Journal asks the Alexandria Gazette, which has been upholding the virtues of the mad-stone, why it doesn't apply the stone to its own case. Don't be so personal, or you might both get mad and go to throwing stones. Relate to him, Mr. Gazette, that anecdote "Mr. Lincoln used to tell with so much gusto," about the man who lived in a glass house.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Cincinnati Gazette, writing from Knoxville, Tennessee, recently, closes his letter as follows:

"It not unfrequently happens now that in a casual business group on the streets, or in the counting house in Knoxville, every one is a Northern man. And it may be added that a Northern man can also expect from the largest and constantly growing larger class of our native born citizens, a kindly and cordial welcome. The term 'carpet-bagger' is going out of use, except as a jest of the bygone times here, whatever it may be in other parts of the South. It has been found that carpet bags are sometimes capacious enough to hold mills, railroads, factories and forces."

Hog in a Barrel Room.—At the party given by some gentlemen on the night of the 13th instant, at Brentsville, while the musicians were at supper and the dancers enjoying a promenade around the room, a large hog, probably attracted by the music he had heard and wishing to participate in the festivities, dashed into the ball room and began circling around, accompanying his dance by squealing most unmusically. The ladies, in an instant, were on benches, chairs, or anything that offered a refuge from his hogship, and for a few moments he had it all to himself. At length, however, he was appreciated. The permission is, indeed, an excellent fruit, and must some day be carefully cultivated.

While walking out the other evening, espying a persimmon tree, at the risk of being considered unfashionable, we pretty soon found ourself in the very top of it.—Virginia Paper.

To which the Whig of this city says: Persimmons, in good odor, have been sold in New York at 50c. to $1 per dozen.

The parish of Laqueumines and the town of that name, near New Orleans, are so called from the abundance of persimmons, that being the Indian name; and they are as common at the fruit stands as apples, oranges or bananas.

An Unholy Alliance.

The "Go to Richmond" movement by the Fredericksburg route, which is now being so strenuously opposed by the combined forces of Moncure Robinson, Peter V. Daniel, and John W. Garrett, we believe will be successful, in spite of all the strategy and tactics of the unholy alliance formed for the ruin of this city. "One Interested," who seems to be a stockholder in the Fredericksburg road, in the Whig of yesterday, makes some interesting disclosures, and propounds one or two very searching interrogatories to the President and Directors of that obstructive corporation. For instance, he says, in speaking of the road in which he is interested, and addressing Mr. Daniel:

"The company over which you preside was one of the first, if not the first, railroad companies of any importance organized in the State. In order to secure the construction of the road, pecuniary inducements were held out to Stockholders and important rights guaranteed. It is, without doubt, the best road in the State, and, in its long career, it has won for itself a reputation as one of the most successful of its kind. A large portion of the stock is held by private citizens of Virginia, who were induced to subscribe by the privileges and immunities held out by its charter. There seems, however, to have been some most unfortunate business transactions by the directors of the company at various times, which, to stockholders who are not favored with a 'peep behind the scenes,' are utterly inexplicable—indeed, who have never heard of the knowledge of those by whom the directors were appointed, except by accident. It appears from the published report of the recent meeting of the directors, that the directors of the company at various times, which, to stockholders who are not favored with a 'peep behind the scenes,' are utterly inexplicable—indeed, who have never heard of the knowledge of those by whom the directors were appointed, except by accident.
