

NOW FOR AN ORCHARD.

What shall we say of the man, native or non-native, who owns a piece of Virginia soil and neglects to set fruit trees thereon. Is he not more than a carpet-bagger and a scoundrel? Is not this evidence of that lack of patriotic interest in the welfare of the state that is meant to be embodied in those epithets. Well, this is the time to prepare the ground and buy your trees for spring setting. Every man can set a few to make the home more homelike, and to make his children happy and healthy with abundant fruit. The trees will increase greatly the value and saleability of the land if you want to sell. They will pay a generous return upon their cost if carefully tended. Let no man claim to be loyal to Virginia who owns any portion of her soil and neglects to plant an orchard or vineyard. He is a pretender and a sham Virginian, and will sell out his birthright and run off the first opportunity. We say to the boys trim up the old trees your fathers planted, and plant more. If money is scarce save some useless expense of dress or personal indulgence, and buy trees. They will be a perpetual source of purest pleasure to you and your children after you. Various nurseries in our state afford a large and complete selection of the finest trees in the world. They are splendidly grown and are true to name. If you are not familiar with the best sorts leave it to intelligent nurserymen, who will make the best selection for you. Come now, rouse up and show your love for Virginia, and your real manhood by helping to make her a very Eden of fruitfulness and beauty. Spring will soon be here, and orders for trees should be sent in during the winter. Our advertising columns contain the names of Franklin Davis, & Co. of Richmond, Munson of Falls Church, and Gillingham of Woodland, all reliable men. Write them your orders and you will get what you call for. Your investment will pay ten-fold in money, and minister to the comfort and happiness of your children vastly.

The President's message seems to be rather exceptionally well received by the press, though there is considerable discrepancy of opinion as to the points in it most worthy of commendation. The New York Times regards the financial portion as being most deserving of approbation, and says no one expected that General Grant would discuss the subject from the standpoint of a theorist, and he does not, but "a remarkable pertinence and directness are noticeable in his suggestions, and his principles are extremely sound." The Tribune, on the other hand, does not find much to endorse in the President's financial views, but concedes that the President represents the Cuban case "very fairly, and treats it with such dignity and calmness as will meet the approval of Congress and the people." The Herald regards the message in the light of a dispassionate record, and believes it was written simply for the purpose of presenting, as briefly as deemed possible, the acts of the administration during the past year, and the legislative measures which the Executive thinks necessary or expedient upon our foreign and domestic affairs for the general welfare; and having thus discharged his duty, with his mind relieved, he leaves the work suggested to the consideration and the discretion of Congress. The Sun naturally has no admiration to bestow upon anything coming from the President, but admits that it presents "a fair view of the condition of the different departments of the government." The Philadelphia Press praises the condensation shown in the message, "considering how much the President had to say," and says, "it is a satisfactory stewardship on the whole, and he gives authority to what was previously believed." The Richmond Dispatch says the President "seems to be anxious to do his duty," but that "this failure to refer to Louisiana stands in striking contrast to his solicitude for the negroes in Cuba, who are not more truly deprived of their rights than are the white people of Louisiana." The Baltimore Sun notes as an unusual omission that the message contains no allusion to Divine Providence.

The experiment of woman suffrage in Wyoming territory is pronounced a success by high authority. Governor Campbell, in his late annual message to the legislative assembly, thus gives the measure his unqualified endorsement: "The experiment of granting to woman a voice in the government, which was inaugurated for the first time in the history of our country, by the legislative assembly of Wyoming, has now been tried for four years. I have heretofore taken occasion to express my views in measure and my conviction that its adoption had been attended only by good results. Two years more of observation of the practical working of the system have only served to deepen my conviction that what we, in this territory, have done, has been well done, and our system of impartial suffrage is an unequalled success."

The special from Washington which appeared in The Enquirer relative to the recent visit of Colonel Mosby to the White House distorts and misrepresents grossly what the President said at that interview. Mosby is no doubt a skillful swordsman and a good rider, but the newspaper men are too much for him. He furnishes them a very large capital for business at small cost. Look out next time you make a raid on the White House, Colonel Mosby! There are traps laid by those Bohemians at every door of that inviting mansion, into which unwary feet may fall and provoke laughter.

JUDGE KELLEY introduced a bill into Congress yesterday embodying his views as heretofore published and endorsed in THE JOURNAL upon the currency question. This bill looks to relieving by radical legislation the present fearful straggle. It should be promptly reported and acted upon. No time should be lost in giving to the country measures to restore confidence and bring out the money now hoarded as well as to furnish an adequate supply to trade and industry.

We regret to see time taken in discussing the repeal of the salary bill or any other question while the country is groaning under the terrible consequences of a money panic caused by a monopoly of its currency. There should not be a moment's delay in authorizing the printing of legal tenders, and authorizing their exchange for bonds to all comers. This would afford immediate relief, and could harm no one. But we despair of prompt action unless Congress can be aroused by some realizing sense of the situation by the press and personal appeal from the people. Every man should use his influence to secure the attention of his representative to the subject. The first aim should be to get some simple and unobjectionable measure passed leaving to a future period, detailed legislation. Judge Kelley's bill ought to unite all opponents of the present ruinous system.

MAJOR JOHN A. HARMAN was nominated by the President yesterday for postmaster at Staunton, Virginia. This is a nomination eminently fit to be made, and will be promptly confirmed.
