STAUNTON, VA.

TUESDAY, JUNE 26, 1860.

FOR PRESIDENT, JOHN BELL, OF TENNESSEE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, EDWARD EVERETT, OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Important Notice.

It is very important that all accounts due this office on the 1st of the present month, shall be settled as soon as possible.

Proceedings at Baltimore.

We regret our inability to give more than a meagre outline of the proceedings of the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore.

The detailed reports published in the daily papers are vivid descriptions of "confusion worse confounded." If the members had met together for the express purpose of worrying one another and preventing the transaction of business, they could hardly have accomplished the object more satisfactorily.

On Thursday, the whole Convention was thrown into an uproar by a quarrel which arose among the Pennsylvania delegates. Every now and then, however, the intense earnestness of the proceedings was relieved by a streak of fun and good humor.

The majority report of the Committee on Credentials was favorable to the success of Judge Douglas before the Convention. It recommended the admission of the Douglas delegates from Alabama and Louisiana, instead of the Charleston Seceders, who appeared at Baltimore claiming their seats, notwithstanding some of them had vowed they would not go there.

The vote of Arkansas and Georgia was to be divided between the Seceders and the Douglas men. The Seceders from Mississippi and Texas were to be admitted, no other delegates appearing to contest their seats.

The Democratic Nominations. As will be seen from the proceedings of the Convention, the Democratic party is a helpless wreck. The adoption of the majority report led to the secession of nearly the entire South from the main Convention, and the result is two Democratic tickets—Douglas & Fitzpatrick, and Breckinridge & Lane.

It is to be regretted that the Seceders did not take time for more considerate action. Their endorsement of the sound and able statesmen John Bell and Edward Everett would have rendered the defeat of Lincoln and Douglas both almost certain.

On Sunday, the 17th inst., a large black bear made his appearance in the Mint Spring neighborhood of this county, about five miles from town.

Outside Speeches.

During the session of the Democratic Convention at Baltimore, last week, the two factions into which the party is divided indulged every evening in various demonstrations in Monument Square.

He said there were men on the Committee of Credentials whom he would permit to cross the threshold of his house. He felt himself degraded and unmanned when he himself before the Committee to contest with traitors from the State who professed to represent the people.

On these three propositions, interspersed with minor points of order, etc., the debate of the evening was spent. The purpose was to discuss the question of the admission of the Seceders to the Convention.

Democratic National Convention.

The Democratic National Convention met at Baltimore on the 18th inst., in pursuance of the adjournment at Charleston, and was called to order at 12 o'clock, by the President, Mr. Cushing, of Massachusetts.

The question of the admission of the delegations from the seceding Southern States presented itself immediately on the re-assembling of the Convention. The President of the Convention declined to decide upon the prima facie right of the delegates from these States to return to the Convention, even in the cases where there were no contesting delegations, and referred the point to the Convention for decision.

On these three propositions, interspersed with minor points of order, etc., the debate of the evening was spent. The purpose was to discuss the question of the admission of the Seceders to the Convention.
