

Staunton Spectator.

PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY MORNING BY Richard Mauzy & Co. SUBSCRIPTION RATES. For 1 yr. $3 in currency or equivalent in specie.

Read This! To any one who will send us two new subscribers and six dollars, we will send the Spectator for one year gratis.

ADVERTISING RATES. ADVERTISEMENTS will be inserted at the rate of One Dollar per square of Eight Lines or less, or the first and 50 cents for each subsequent insertion.

Professional Directory.

A. M. HENKEL, Physician and Surgeon. Respectfully tenders his services, in the various branches of his profession, to the public; and may be consulted at any time, at his office, unless previously engaged.

SAMUEL C. BASKIN, ACCOUNTANT AND BOOK-KEEPER. OFFICE OVER FIRST NATIONAL BANK.

D. S. H. HENKEL, DENTIST. Office in the Court House, Staunton, Va.

DR. B. P. REESE offers his professional services to the public. He will continue to give his special attention to the treatment of "diseases peculiar to females."

DR. J. M. MATHEWS, ALEX. J. MATHEWS, MATHEWS & MATHEWS, ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW. Practice regularly in the Courts of Greenbrier, Monroe, Pocahontas and Nicholas counties, Va.

DR. JAMES JOHNSTON, DENTIST. Office—Over Coates's Confectionery Store.

Encourage a Home Enterprise. Our house is the depository for the sale of BROOMS, manufactured by Mr. J. W. Gilkerson of Fishersville.

TO UPHOLSTERS. We have made arrangements to keep on hand a large supply of curled hair, mattress and sofa springs, supply needles, &c.

CUTLERY. We have added largely, during the past week, to our stock of Table Pocket Cutlery, and have a large assortment for Christmas presents.

FILTERERS. We are the agents for the celebrated "Kedzie Improved Water Filter."

CARRIAGE MAKING. I wish to inform my friends that I have moved my carriage shop to the "Virginia" Hotel.

CARRIAGE MAKING. At the solicitation of many of my former patrons I have again taken charge of my stand, where I will carry on all the CARRIAGE-MAKING BUSINESS in all its various branches.

Timing, &c. WM. J. POINTS, MAIN STREET. One door below Clinch's Public Hall.

THE BEST COOKING-STOVE in the market, can be found at W. J. POINTS, as it is the only household treasure that can be bought in the shape of a Cooking-Stove.

COTTON YARN, all numbers from 5 to 12 cheap at BAKER BROS.

Groceries and Produce.

THE new two dollar cash department. R. D. SEARS, agent, Main st. THE self-setting mouse trap—75 cents.

CANNED TOMATOES, 25 cents; canned Peaches, 30 cents; canned Corn, 35 cents.

DRIED BEEF—A No. 1—33 cents. R. D. SEARS, agent, Main st.

FRESH supply of Crackers. R. D. SEARS, agent, Main st.

SILVER DRIPS, $1.50 per gallon. R. D. SEARS, agent, Main st.

PRIME 7 year old Vinegar, 50 cts per gallon. R. D. SEARS, agent, Main st.

HERRINGS. 10 barrels No. 1 net Herrings, 10 barrels No. 1 gross Herrings, 5 half barrels Family Roe Herrings.

REMOVAL.—R. D. SEARS, agent, has removed from the "What to the old" stand of Cleveland & Sears, where he will be happy to see his old customers.

CLOVERSEED—A choice lot for sale low. J. W. TODD & CO., Burwell corner.

TOWEL ROLLERS, Hat Backs and Brushes of all kinds for sale by R. D. SEARS, agent.

C. A. RICHARDSON, FLOUR AND PRODUCE MERCHANT. Augusta street, Staunton, Va.

I respectfully inform all my old friends in the country who have in the Trade and hope they will call on me before selling elsewhere.

J. S. GILLIAM & CO., next door below the Post Office, have on hand a supply of choice Groceries, also prime clover seed.

SHUN & CO., (successors to Samuel Hartley.) General Commission Merchants.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Particular attention paid to the selling of FLOUR, GRAIN and all kinds of COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Richmond Advertisements.

MANN S. VALENTINE, PETER A. FRANKLIN, VALENTINE & FRANKLIN, importers and wholesale dealers in Fancy Goods, White Goods, Notions, Hosiery, Gloves, &c.

ST. CHARLES HOTEL. Corner 15th and Main Street, RICHMOND, VA.

THIS Hotel is situated in the centre of business and more convenient to the principal railroad depot and boat landings than any house in the city.

ALLISON & ADDISON, SEEDS. 500 BARRELS SEED POTATOES, OF THE EARLY ROSE, EARLY GOODRICH.

OTHER CHOICE VARIETIES. Our Seed Catalogue Almanac for 1871 is now ready and will be forwarded to any address on application.

Wholesale quantities furnished to dealers. Prompt and careful attention given to all orders whether by mail or in person.

ALLISON & ADDISON, Seed and Grain Merchants, Richmond, Va.

JAMES C. DEATON, Commission Merchant, North side Basin, bet. 10th and 11th sts., RICHMOND, VA.

SOLICITS CONSIGNMENTS OF TOBACCO, WHEAT, CORN, OATS, FLOUR ALL OTHER COUNTRY PRODUCE.

My friends and those of Matthew Blair, who will aid him in conducting the business. Liberal advances made on all consignments in hand when desired.

Matthew Blair invites the attention of his friends and the planters and farmers generally to a liberal share of stock in the company.

References.—William H. McFarland, Esq., President State Bank of Virginia, Richmond; Isaac Davenport, Esq., President National Bank of Virginia, Richmond; John B. Morton, Esq., Cashier National Bank of Virginia, Richmond; Col. C. O. Tompkins, late of Kanawha county, West Virginia; Moses Lacy, Esq., Lynchburg, Dec. 13-3m.

CHARLES L. TODD—GROCER AND Commission Merchant, RICHMOND, VA. Consignments of Flour, Grain and Produce solicited, and liberal advances made on same by cash or note.

W. TODD & CO., Burwell corner, Staunton.

J. J. WAGGONER, WM. G. HARVEY, WAGGONER & HARVEY, WHOLESALE GROCERS.

Commission Merchants, No. 8 Pearl Street, Richmond, Virginia. Strict personal attention given to the sale of Cotton, Tobacco, Grain and Country Produce.

Railroads. RE-ESTABLISHED. RICHMOND & BALTIMORE VIA YORK RIVER RAILROAD.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 2 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Trains leave Richmond daily at 4 P. M., connecting at West Point with steamers for Baltimore—arrive in Baltimore at 7 A. M.

Poetry.

To my Mother. Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Soft as the Summer morning rising o'er ocean, Warm as the sunlight and deep as the sea, Bright and verdant as my spirit's devotion,

Royal Marriage.

On Tuesday last, at Windsor, the marriage occurred between John Douglas Sutherland Campbell, Marquis of Lorne and eldest son of the Duke of Argyll, of Scotland, and Princess Louise Caroline Alberta, Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, daughter of the late Queen of England.

The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of London in the chapel, where they were received by the Lord Chamberlain and conducted to places. At 12:05 the bridegroom arrived accompanied by Earl Percy and Lord Gower, and they were conducted to seats.

At 12:15 the bride, accompanied by the Queen and suite in five carriages, arrived at the west entrance of the chapel, where they were joined by the bridesmaids, and moved up the nave amid music by the choir. The bride was supported by the Queen, Prince of Wales, and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg.

The bridesmaids were Ladies Campbell, Cecil, Butler, Montague, Gordon, Lennox, Gordon, Seymour and Fitzgerald. The bride was seated on the left of the altar, with the Queen near at hand. The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of London in the chapel style, the Queen giving the bride away.

At the end of the last prayer a royal salute was fired from the artillery in Windsor Park and the guests repaired to the Castle for luncheon. The bride and bridegroom departed at three o'clock for Claremont for the honeymoon.

About a thousand guests witnessed the ceremony. The grounds of the Castle were filled with immense crowds. The Marquis of Lorne wore the uniform of the Argyllshire Artillery, and wore the Highland costume.

The Bishop of London was assisted by the Bishops of Oxford, Winchester and Worcester. The bride is in her twenty-third year, and the bridegroom in his twenty-sixth. The popular impression has been that it was a love-match; and that impression has imparted to its greatest zest the great public. Love in those high regions was considered such a rarity, that its appearance for once excited universal wonder and admiration.

But a letter from Edinburgh to the N. Y. World is true, the tale is a sweet delusion. According to this gossipier, the Princess has known love's young dream, accompanied with sadness and heart-breaking. When seventeen, she met with a German count, who pleased her and was pleased. The Queen seemed at first to approve, but subsequently sternly interdicted all intercourse. The Marquis, too, had his disappointments. He was deeply and devotedly attached to the daughter of a country hater, who, for a time, smiled upon him; but suddenly those smiles were changed to frowns for the young noble, and transferred to a day-laborer of her father—a very rough and uncouth subject.

The Marquis took his revenge for this preference by giving the subject of it a hearty cudgelling, for which, in due course of law, he was mulcted in a sum sufficient to set the couple in business as inn-keepers. He then went abroad to forget his sorrows in wild life and new scenes; but the heart that has truly loved never forgets. According to this version, both he and his bride are broken-hearted victims—sacrificed to State policy.

It is said the remaining daughter of the Queen is to be married to the young Marquis of Ely (Lofius), an Irishman, as a compliment to the House of Ely.

Speech of A. B. Cochran, Esq. On Saturday, the 25th instant, in the House of Delegates, A. B. Cochran, Esq., made a speech upon the subject of the payment of the Public Debt of Virginia, which was reported as follows in the editorial columns of the Richmond Whig:

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"

"I have the honor to acknowledge the bill and to oppose the amendment, saying that he raised his voice for the last time on the subject. There should be no uncertain voice on this subject of plighted faith. As a representative of the great county of Augusta, which has been the most assiduous payer of taxes than any county in the State, he wanted it understood that her people were for paying the State debt to the last farthing (and the national debt, too, he added in reply to a question). He argued that nothing could be gained by adopting the amendment of Speaker Turner. The courts of the country would intervene and enforce payment of the debt was due. Late action of the Supreme court showed this. This proposition was repudiated without any of its fruits. How can it be ascertained that we owe two-thirds, and no more? He glanced at the heritages of every one of her sons, and he was going to repudiate, we should secure its benefits. He replied to the non-intercourse argument. Admitting, for the sake of argument, the fact of non-intercourse, he said that a new bond would take the debt out of the operation of that principle, and argued that such a bond had been given by the action of the Legislature. He deplored that he who had been elevated to the Speakership of the House should be the first to tarnish the fame of Virginia by a proposition to repudiate. He spoke of Mississippi—the effect of repudiation upon the standing and credit of that State, and of the honor of Virginia must be protected—it must not be allowed to fall into the hands of a man who had fallen during the day, and when a candle had been lighted invited me alone into his tent, where, as soon as we were seated, he remarked: 'Let me now speak to you, my friends, for your poor would as possible must be taken home. I have sent for you, because your men are fresh, to guard the train back to Virginia.'"