THE JUDGE AND MYSELF.

By the Spectator. THE JUDGE AND MYSELF. SOMETHING ABOUT OUR TWO WEEKS IN PARIS. With the exceptions of the Pope's Museum, standing in all the palatial beauty and extent on the banks of the Seine, in the heart of that gay capital, of which it is one of the most important and interesting features, I have seen nothing in many years of French history, and of late years the noble repository of such the glorious and beautiful art.

THE TWO ARTISTS.

"Edith is fair," the painter said; "her cheek so rosy, her eyes so blue, her hair so black, and her smile so sweet. Oh, that I could paint her!" "Perchance the even raindrops light, Soft sprinkling from above, Have caught the sunset's color bright, And bornt it to my love."

ABOUT THE DUNKARDS.

A SKETCH OF A PECULIAR CHURCH—MUCH TALKED OF, BUT LITTLE UNDERSTOOD. The vast majority of ordinary well-informed people know there is such an organization as the Dunkard Church, and few know more than this, and an application to any standard authority on ecclesiastical or denominational matters will be sure to result in erroneous views.

CHURCH POLICY.

There are two weekly papers in the Church and a monthly paper in the policy and the great thing, after stripping the verbiage off each, is to preserve the original and the original in its descriptive measures of the general council, no matter how much the personal views of the editors or writers may differ.

THE SANGUINE BRIDE.

A not unusual kind of bride is that sanguine creature who has been so long in the clouds will cast its shadow over the sunny sky. All is so new—and it will never be the same again.

THE ORIGIN OF DIPHTHERIA.

By Dr. E. R. Maxon. Diphtheria is believed to have originated in Egypt more than 2,000 years ago. It prevailed in Egypt and Asia Minor, to which it extended by the first 500 years, and hence was carried to the West by the Syrian disease. Having in the year 1771, the disease appeared in Rome, A. D. 1780, and being again to the plague, which it made its appearance in 1771, having prevailed more extensively in France in 1815 and 1835 and in England and the United States from 1856 to 1860, and more or less since.
