FRIDAY, JULY 13.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET For President, WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, of Nebraska.

For Vice President, ADLAI E. STEVENSON, of Illinois.

If David B. Hill should succeed in carrying New York for Bryan, nothing but death would prevent his nomination for the Presidency four years hence.

Let it be understood that while Mr. Hanna seems to be pleased with the Democratic ticket and platform, the trusts will be obliged to ante up just as handsomely as before.

One of the most delightful features of the Democratic platform is that Republicans say they are pleased with it. We know how the world is given to lying.

The contemptuous way in which Mr. F. A. Richardson, correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, spoke of the Democratic convention in his reports last week ought to turn the stomach of every true Democrat who subscribes for the paper and make him loathe it as he would a leper.

THE SPECTATOR has always asserted and believed that Wm. J. Bryan was lawfully elected president four years ago, and that the ballot boxes were stuffed on him in several States, and he was cheated out of the office. One pleasure has always been ours and that is, that although defeated he received a million more votes than Cleveland did when he was last elected, and not a vote was counted for him that he did not receive.

For a long time it was thought suicidal to nominate a candidate for the presidency beyond the Ohio, then the nomination went beyond that river, and a number of good and great men from over there have filled that position. Now our party at least has gone beyond the Mississippi, and elected a candidate. We are told that no "West-man" can be elected. This same one, Wm. J. Bryan, however, four years ago received over six million votes, and hardly a man living who voted for him then will not vote for him now. Many thousands who voted against him then will cordially support him now. Who then will say that his chances for election are not better than four years ago? Where has his vote fallen off? Where has his strength failed? We should like to be informed.

We hear it said that Mr. Bryan was disposed to be a loss and desired to dictate the platform. Did those who object to this ever hear of one Grover Cleveland? This objection comes principally, we feel sure, from those lovers of Wm. McKinley who admire him because he sat meekly and submitted to the will of his boss. If Mr. Bryan had not been interested in the kind of a platform the Democrats were to make, when almost every State in the Union had declared he should stand on it, there are few who would not have written him down as a fool, if not worse—a knave. Who else had so much right to dictate. Who under the circumstance would have remained quiet. Would such a man have been Mark Hanna?

There are now in the treasury of the United States nearly $100,000,000 more money than is needed for the expenses of the government. The session of Congress just adjourned refused to reduce this galling taxation, which in the month just past was $17,000,000 in excess of our needs. The most rampant Republican papers admit that this is dangerous, any ordinary man ought to raise his voice to end such an outrage. But no. The taxes were not reduced because a large fund was needed to assist in carrying the election. This money is used in a thousand ways as a campaign fund. One way has been to increase the salaries of little cross roads postmasters in doubtful States. We know of one which has been increased $300—for clerk hire, and the whole revenues of the office we do not believe amount to that sum. We cite this to show how the looting is now going on.

OUR TROOPS IN CHINA.

We fear the United States has lost a golden opportunity. So soon as the Chinese began the murder of our people, and surely so soon as our minister was attacked our treaty rights permitted us to protect them, and him. We had a large army almost in touch with China and a large navy ready to enter her ports. Had the administration ordered 25,000 soldiers from the Philippines to China and sent them thundering on the gates of Peking and saved the lives of our own minister and those of the Europeans there, the world would have shouted in amazement. We would not have been accused of wanting any piece of China, and the international jealousy would not have been visited on us. What an opportunity this nation has lost. Why was it not seized?

THE TICKET AND PLATFORM.

The Democratic ticket and platform are this week presented to our readers. The nomination of Mr. Bryan was a foregone conclusion, but the nomination of the Vice Presidential candidate was a subject of interest, and was long in doubt.

The ticket is as strong as it could have been made. Mr. Bryan is the embodiment of the Democracy of to-day, and any man who cannot vote for him had as well renounce, like Gen. Kossler, his further allegiance to the party and desert to the camp of the enemy. Mr. Stevenson is too well known to Democrats to need an introduction. He served with Cleveland as Vice President and is every way acceptable to Democrats of all shades of opinion. There are some persons who have affiliated heretofore with the Democratic party who do not like either Mr. Bryan or the platform, but it is safe to say that no platform written by the Kansas City convention would have suited them, no platform but a platform more resonant of the gold standard than the Philadelphia platform would have attracted their notice much less enlisted their admiration. To such there is no possibility of playing, nor is there any possibility that they could be appeased or drawn loyally into Democratic ranks. Their ways and ours have parted and without bitterness, without animosity, without any feeling save respect, we bid them adieu, because we can no longer be political friends. It is far better that we be separated, that each shall show his true colors, than that there be a holding with the hare, and running with the hounds.

But who conceived the idea that an issue which was the ISSUE of the last campaign would be wholly ignored in this. To have thought so would have been to characterize all Democrats who had loyally supported the silver issue, and there were millions of them, as fools, and the gold element of the party and the Republicans as possessing all wisdom. We for one are not yet ready to concede this, though we are willing to subordinate silver under existing circumstances to other issues which have sprung up since the last presidential battle, and are threatening the life of the Nation. With the vast volume of money the national banks have given us, and the tons upon tons of gold and silver certificates which the government has issued we can subsist, but we cannot much longer endure other things the present administration is heaping on us. Imperialism, and trusts, and war taxation, are each in themselves enough to damn any party that has foisted them on the people. When we see Congress and the President assuming to rule colonies, appoint vassals, levy taxes, and dictate policies, without authority, and in violation of law, we behold an approach to the same kingly power and tyranny which caused the revolution of 1776. When we see trusts formed under partisan Republican laws, which in return for their creation pour millions into the campaign fund to perpetuate the power which created them, when we behold ourselves taxed beyond the limit of human endurance, not to carry on a war, but that there may be money to squander in the reelection of Wm. McKinley, we realize that something must be done, or we will be reduced to a serfdom, equal to that of any eastern country. Do the people not realize that the expenses of our government independent of the war expenses are Two Hundred Million Dollars more than under Cleveland; that they were three hundred and sixty million, now they are five hundred and sixty million? Soon all the money in the country will be passed by taxation into the treasury. Some of these matters need immediate attention, and the Democratic party will strive to correct them. The courageousness of Mr. Bryan, his honesty of purpose, and his sworn loyalty to the people inspire the hope that in him they have a leader who will lead them out of their present bondage. If he does not then the people must prefer slavery to freedom.

JUDGE QUARLES WITHDRAWS.

The card of Judge J. M. Quarles, present Representative in Congress from this district, appears elsewhere in this issue of THE SPECTATOR. Judge Quarles has nothing in his official career to regret growing out of any personal act. It is to be regretted that Judge Quarles did not find it possible to draw a little closer to those who opposed what is in Virginia known as the "May Convention" this movement has grown more and more distasteful to those who fight the Democratic battles in Virginia, and especially so since it is believed that it was a secret effort on the part of some of the Richmond Times for instance, then as now a Republican ally, to disrupt the Democratic party. Many good men were led into the movement without being fully aware of its real purpose, and have suffered accordingly. Others entered it better enlightened and still advocate the movement it purported to voice, but they form a faction of the party and admittedly the weaker faction. Had Judge Quarles seen his way clearly to have allied himself with the stalwart wing of the party, there is probably no man in the district who could have, in the face of his clean Congressional record, stood before him. This and the fact that he came from Augusta, which the other parts of the district claim has received the lion's share of this honor, are responsible for his defeat. There has been some little talk of fraud, but such claims come with every election, and those who enter politics expect them, and are prepared, so that branch of the subject may as well be dismissed. We regret that the scepter has departed from our Israel, but are forced to acknowledge that Augusta has been peculiarly favored, both by the Democrats and the Republicans as to this office, and we bow to the will of the majority.

Mrs. Edgar Hall, of Rockbridge, who gathering cherries last week had the misfortune to be struck in the eye by a stick which fell from the tree. It inflicted a wound which caused the loss of sight of one eye and the other was also affected.

DANIEL AND SILVER.

We have had our attention called to the remarkable change in Senator Daniel's views on silver, and it has been stated to us that this change in the Senator is as radical as that of Gen. Kossler. We are not prepared to admit this latter charge. No change can be so radical as to drop from the Democratic into the Republican party. It is like the fall of Lucifer. But to change from an advocate of silver to a non-advocate is radical, when the change takes place in one who was an advocate of greenbacks and talked silver and voted silver ever since the power of talking and voting became his. That may, however, be explained. Yet why should any one carp at and fuss with Senator Daniel, when the illustrious, the great, the good, the almost worshipped Wm. McKinley has been guilty of girations and summersaults as compared with which the tumble of Senator Daniel is as a quiet rolling over, to a tripple turn in the air, off a springboard entirely over the backs of many elephants. Mr. McKinley only a few years ago was an ardent free silver advocate himself. HE VOTED FOR FREE COINAGE when the Bland idea was in the ascendancy. He snote the Democrats hip and thigh because to his mind they were not doing what they should for silver. He was afraid of the world gold so late as the convention of 1896. Now behold him—his chief supporter and friend. This may not be remarkable as we must admit in a man who is a little while ago was a civil service reformer, but who when he had an opportunity to reform it, took the first backward step taken since the days of President Arthur. Nor is it remarkable in a man who one day declared it to be OUR PLAIN DUTY to give the starving Porto Ricans free access to our markets, such citizens of this country ought to have, and then the next day at the demand of the Tobacco and Sugar Trusts retracted it all, and advocated a tariff at least sufficient to enable those trusts to give something to the campaign fund. Changes of this character have been so frequent with this great personage that we ought not to criticize too harshly the changes in persons who are not apothecized, but remain of mortals mortal. We are not the keeper of the Senator's conscience. He may have found his teachings all wrong, his ideas and thoughts dangerous to our financial well being, and thus rightly retracted and retracted them, on the principle of "better late than never." Yet it is funny, seriously funny, that with just as much light before him five years ago as now when talking silver in season and out of season, on the senate floor and off the senate floor, he had so much to say for it. Now has no word of commendation, not even faint praise. Was the SPECTATOR wrong when some time ago it spoke of the peculiarly neat and workmanlike job of sewing up of certain months done by President McKinley, and intimated that a few stitches had been taken in that of Senator Daniel? If not, then maybe this accounts for the reef in the Senator's silver sail.

Should Wm. J. Bryan be elected a large contingent from Maryland and Kentucky, and many former Democrats who voted for McKinley or Palmer and Buckner, will be among the first to present themselves before him, with a list of the mighty deeds done by him, and ask to be placed on the pension list.

Col. Charles O'B. Cowardin, editor of the Richard Dispatch, died at his home in that city on Thursday evening, after an illness of two weeks with typhoid fever. He was one of the best known writers in the South.

Mr. James A. Buckner, who has been residing in Washington, was found dead Wednesday night at his home. He was a cousin of Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky.

A. B. Overstreet, deputy collector of the Outer District, Bedford county, has disappeared and a warrant for his arrest has been issued. It is not known where he has gone, but it is thought probably to North Carolina. His shortage reaches $2,100.

Gov. Atkinson, of West Va., has issued a pardon to Alex. Armstrong, and Frank Cumberland, two negroes sent from Pocahontas county in June, 1895, for 15 and 15 years, respectively, for robbery, the published report of the reason for the pardon was: "The Circuit Court tried the men, but notwithstanding they proved that they were not the persons wanted, by establishing the fact that they were in Marietta, Ohio, when the theft was committed the jury found them guilty and the court sentenced them."

This is not true. There was some evidence of very doubtful character tending to prove an alibi, but there was overwhelming evidence of Pocahontas people to show they were in the county at the time of the robbery, and on this they were convicted. The feeling in Pocahontas county is so strong against them that should either ever appear in that county again they would be shot.

John T. McGraw and Charles B. Durbin, of Grafton, W. Va., are interested in the Simpson, Frantztown & Fairmont Railroad Co., recently chartered to build a line between the towns mentioned, a distance of twenty miles. The company is capitalized at $1,000,000.

The Rosser of Old.

The criticisms of Gen. Rosser touching his recent political bobbing may irritate that gentleman. We say this because it is not fair to him to become irritated on a previous occasion, when criticized by the Academy of Music in Baltimore, on February 22, 1899, in which he took occasion to extol the Confed- erate soldier, and his words gave offense to many northern men and to the northern press, and he wrote the following letter of explanation to the Baltimore Sun. For vigor, if not for elegance of expression Gen. Rosser can be commended as the letter will show. Last week we printed a literary effort of the new Rosser, now we present this one to show the Rosser of Old:

"The address that I delivered before my comrades in Baltimore on the 22d of February, 1899, has been read and garbled by the northern papers that only such isolated expressions as are calculated to irritate and offend, have been put before the public, and I feel that I am continually being and feeling that I demonstrated its truth that the southern soldier as man to man was superior to the northern soldier, and that our general were far sber men than theirs, and on these facts alone can I rely for the reason of our triumphs over them while they were being armed by the Confederacy. This fact was stated by me, not for the purpose or with the view of insulting the manhood, courage, patriotism and devotion of the southern soldier to the cause to which he devoted his life, his fortune and his sacred honor as a true, brave, patriotic citizen, and soldier. Those of the North who are conscious of the truth of my declaration are expected to win a little and show more or less generous, but I do not expect me to see here in the South a few cowardly, cringing, time-serving, polly-ann and politicians, who while in their hearts feeling and believing as I do, are so afraid of the word 'Confederate' that they are afraid to speak the truth and to defend the victor and condemning the vanquished." To such parasites as these, which are clinging to such power, I will say that I despise them, good morals and discipline, I shun them, for they are men and more despicable than the vile carcasses on which they feed. The brave Confederates are to die as loyal and true to the restored United States as he was to the Confederate States, and he patiently and heroically performs his duties in the midst of his poverty now as he did then, and he must have no personal reward now, nor did he expect one then and the entire eighty million of dollars which goes annually out of the treasury of the United States to feed and stimulate the patriotism of the Grand Army of the Republic could not increase the pulsations of his patriotic heart, one eighth million of a differential, I thank the Sun for the fairness and justice which it has shown me."

Respectfully, THOS. L. ROSSER, Ragby Hall, Albemarle county, Va., Feb. 28th, 1899.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by the use of my method. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, it swells and is closed, and the perfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
