It is now about time for the Czar to go down to Moscow to pray.

It is pleasant to note that the "Dog law" was killed in the Legislature. Now if that body could only kill the dogs how happy we would be.

Mr. Bryan has been speaking in Kentucky. It is difficult to see how he got over the line, and Mr. Watterson with his blunderbuss constantly on guard.

The Republican convention which met here last Saturday was hardly a representative body. It demonstrated how enthusiastic they can be who gather the spoils. "Verily the ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib."

If Mr. Bryan were really dead his friends would recall that it was the ass that kicked the dead lion, but as Mr. Bryan is not dead, the animals who are kicking at him can probably be classed as a little lower than the ass.

The great Centerville bridge across the river at Pittsburg, which for over two years the Wabash has been working on, was made to meet in the middle last week. The bridge is the longest in the world, the middle span being over 1400 feet. It has been over a year since the superstructure began to be put in place. There was great joy when the ends touched.

An electric car in Germany has been made to travel at the rate of 130 1/2 miles an hour. This is the highest speed ever attained. The distance run was about 14 miles, over a track with the lightest possible curvature. The roadbed was very solid and where a curve was found a guide rail was placed. The possibility of such cars has become very great. Steam cannot work so fast, but those who ride would seem to take remarkable risks in the event of accident.

When Secretary of War Taft reached Washington to be sworn into office last week, a cavalcade of soldiers met his entrance at the railway station and escorted it to the War Department. This is the most convincing evidence we have so far had of our imperial tendencies. There is one thing sure, and that is, that in the event the Democrats get control, this character of imperial flummery will end, and end quickly. If a Democratic Secretary of War, or any other Secretary, should dare do such a thing he would be hissed from one end of the nation to the other.

Mr. Rayner won the U. S. Senatorial fight in Maryland hands down, and when the great demand for him became really known as it has since his election, the wonder is, that there was ever more than one ballot after the Legislature met. It is sweet to see the great "harmony" that now exists in that State, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Carter, and Mr. Jackson, to say nothing of Mr. Gorman, are delighted at the result, and as for the people generally they are so happy they can hardly contain themselves. Even in the midst of the great fire which has just swept Baltimore there were some who did not forget to hullo "Rah for Rayner."

The Pennsylvania Ry. has borrowed 50 millions, and when the fact became known there were all sorts of rumors about buying the N. & W., the Western Maryland and in fact all of the Wabash lines east of the Ohio river. But this danger to trade is not at hand yet. The money is borrowed for betterments of the present lines and not to acquire new. There are many who believe we will in no great while have but one railroad in the United States, they think we have only two now, the Pennsylvania and the Gould system. This is to some extent true, because they are all in a pool and thus the strong roads govern the weak. The only thing which deeply interests the public is the rates—and these are not regulated by competition, but by agreement.

Capt. R. S. Ker our Commonwealth's Attorney, has called our attention to an expression in last week's issue of the SPECTATOR used in an article entitled "How Majestic is the Law," to the effect that he and Judge Chalkley "argued that the hanging go on." Since our talk with Capt. Ker we are satisfied that the word "argued" was too strong, "advocated the execution" might have better expressed it, yet even that might go further than Capt. Ker intended. What Capt. Ker tells us he did with reference to the hanging of John Kennedy was to make to the Governor a statement of the facts, and in reply to the Governor's request for an opinion as to what should be done with the prisoner, said he saw no reason for changing the sentence, or words to that effect. Our article was written in no spirit of criticism of the course of the officials, but in regret and sorrow, that they had not given the Governor some ground whereon he might base a commutation, and on the principle of "he who is not for me is against me," one who "argued" was used, that is if one would said, did not, he was in a sense working against the prisoner. This was the idea only which prompted the word.

TAFT THE IMPERIOUS AND IMPERIAL.

Wm. H. Taft, an Ohioan, acquired the title of governor by being made Governor of the Philippines under an anomalous conduct and government of those islands. In order to find a suitable Secretary of War, on Secretary Root's retirement, Mr. Roosevelt was obliged to send to the Philippines for Gov. Taft. There were only about forty five million men left in the United States from which to choose a suitable person, but among these none suitable could be found, so Taft had to be brought back and vested with the duties of that office. On his arrival in Washington he was not only elsewhere how he paraded from the railway station to the war office surrounded by a military escort. A sight of his imperial splendor was never enjoyed by our people before, when a function of this character arrived in town. We learn that in foreign countries where the military takes precedence over everything else when a little coxcomb of an officer or a foreign consul goes out for an airing, a military detachment precedes him, sword in hand and cleaves the ambient air, that he may pass through. Gov. Taft has had the air cleared for him so long in the Philippines that doubtless he cannot breathe it freely in this country until it has been chopped with swords and stabbed with bayonets. Gov. Taft, if we can believe the evidence of some who have watched his career in the Philippines, has grown to have a very exalted opinion of Gov. Taft, and it is possible he suggested to Mr. Roosevelt or the War Department that the ambient air here would be expected to breathe along Pennsylvania avenue from the depot to the War office should be backed by a cavalry regiment. This is all our cavalry regiments at Washington have to do, so we suppose they might as well play herald to our incoming potentate as to sit.

To show the public what kind of person we are, but the English of Hong Kong, say that cavalry parade guarded to the War office, we will re-publish what the editor of the South China Morning Post, an English paper published in Hong Kong, says of Gov. Taft, and his reign in the Philippines, which we are certain has never before been printed in America:

"The other day Gov. Taft of the Philippines entertained his subjects at a 'banquet' in the Malacanang Palace which surpassed in magnificence even the Louisiana festivals of the dead Governors of Spain. It was a strange manifestation of republican idealism. Gov. Taft in the role of Robespierre! There is little of the sea-green ascetic about Gov. Taft, but much of the demagogue on horseback. If one would taste the bitterness of tyranny, one need only place a republican upon a throne. The Americans and Europeans have felt the hot-headed heel of the Cincinnatian demagogue as crushingly as ever they felt the spurred boot of the royalist from Madrid. 'Gov. Taft has ridden rough shod over the privileges of the people, and has used his power for the same purpose that the Caesars of decaying Rome used their thrones. He has maintained at the expense of the people a vast army of office holders, an innumerable force of converted insurgents whose peace could be more easily bought than compelled. He has stolen from the foreign merchants and importers their private papers, has utilized these to their own disadvantage. He has deciphered the law as suited his measure and purpose. He has wrong a revenue out of British and German tradesmen whose businesses were established before the American flag and whose colonial allegiance he has proclaimed peace when there was war. He has publicly prospered when there was poverty and depression everywhere outside of official circles. He has upheld the nefarious Morgan Shuster in his illegal and unconstitutional despotism. He has gagged the press, has forbidden free speech, has sentenced men of independence for sedition. To crown his glory he has held a triumph in a palace which the cities of his fatherland in all their magnificence had not seen. Verily transplanted republicanism is a curious growth! One prefers the cold simplicity of British imperialism. Gov. Taft, speaking from the carpeted floors of the Malacanang Palace, cannot equal the quiet eloquence of His Excellency, Sir Henry Blake's parting speech in the Crown Colony of Hong Kong."

And here the Post quotes Sir Henry Blake's speech in which the speaker expresses himself as the exponent of "justice pure and unapproachable" and all from the highest to the poorest could be "free to think as they like, speak what they think, and act as they will without let or hindrance so long as they obey the laws made for securing the protection and comfort of the community." Continuing the Post says: "Could such words be written as an epitaph over the official tomb of Gov. Taft? It were better for him, for the people of the Philippines, and for the citizens of the United States now than that his name should be put to posterity as that of the Man who gave the recent entertainment in Manila."

WHITE HORSES—DARK MONARCH. The Sultan of Morocco has sent to President Roosevelt some milk white horses and other presents. There is some rule which has heretofore prevented the President from accepting presents, but it is possible Mr. Roosevelt will so construe this rule as to avoid application of the same to him. This rule applied, we admit, only to presidents, but probably not to the office as it is now administered. Sovereigns would be better now since there seems to be assumed if not vested in the head of this nation a right to do as he pleases, and as he can declare war, and recognize new countries, and build canals, without let or hindrance, why may he not also accept a few milk white horses. It is the source of some surprise, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would accept any favors from a monarch who has recently been accused of burning out the eyes and breaking on the wheel, and otherwise inflicting the most terrible tortures on one of his wives. The story is published that Fatma an occupant of the Sultan's harem on account of her terrible treatment ran away, got over into Spain, was captured and returned by Spanish authority, and when she fell again into this monster's hands was mutilated beyond recognition, and now still lives in a desert attended by persons who never speak to her. Mr. Roosevelt would do well not to touch a present from such a wretch even with a pitch fork.

GREAT FIRE IN BALTIMORE.

Our columns this week contain an account of the great fire in Baltimore which started about 10 o'clock Sunday and raged until noon Monday before a high wind. Such calamities are appalling and demonstrate that there has not yet been erected a building which is habitable that can be called fire-proof. The sympathy of the nation is extended toward that afflicted and devastated city.

A good deal of indignation has been expressed over the fact that our soldiers in the Philippines have been made build roads. The inhabitants of that country have never seen any but coolies do this work, it is looked upon as very menial and the soldier is thereby placed on a footing in their eyes with the coolie, and greatly cheapened. It is the opinion of many that it will take a long time to eradicate this feeling and re-establish in the minds of the native Filipino due respect for our soldiers—a respect indeed which is almost essential to an easy governance of those people.

After the Japs had snuk and captured about six of Russia's best battle-ships, captured a number of prisoners, and killed and wounded a good many, the Czar issued a manifesto beginning: "By the grace of God, We, Nicholas I, Emperor and autocrat of all the Russias, &c., &c., make known to all our loyal subjects that there is war."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Interview With Governor Taft, the New Secretary of War.

(From our Regular Correspondent.) Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Governor Taft returned from the Philippines to be Secretary of War, is a godsend to Washington correspondents. It isn't every public man who is so accessible. It is not always easy to get a frank expression of opinion from Secretary Hitchcock, Attorney-General Knox, or Postmaster-General Payne; from Senators Lodge, Beveridge or Bailey. Some of them are always in too much hurry and some have a standoff manner intimidating to an interviewer. The new Secretary is easily accessible, frankly responsive, and his head has not undergone any material enlargement on account of accumulating honors.

I found him at his desk yesterday and had a good talk with him. "They say you are in favor of independence for the Philippines," said my correspondent.

"Protection—protection; they are not fit for independence at present," he replied. He was reminded that anti-imperialists insist that self-government is a natural right, like personal freedom, and that any people, for instance the Kafirs and Hottentots of South Africa, know their own wants and can govern themselves better than even the wisest nation can govern them.

"Yes, I know, he said, 'the anti-imperialists are all at sea about that. The English and Germans can teach the savages that civilization is both profitable and agreeable.'"

"Then you hold, of course, that Daniel Webster was wrong in opposing the Mexican War, a war of conquest. He was nicknamed 'the Mexican' for it by those who know that California was a valuable asset, and insisted that we had a right to steal it."

"Yes, Webster was mistaken in some things that he said," rejoined the Secretary. Your persevering correspondent produced some memoranda. "Front's declaration that a free country cannot govern subject provinces," "Lincoln's," that "no man was ever good enough to govern another man without that man's consent," any sundry mottoes from the Declaration of Independence. The Secretary said, "I cannot enter upon a polemical discussion concerning the proper basis of government and the principles which should control a nation; even if you and I could settle it," he continued with a laugh, "I have hardly time to go into it."

Your correspondent explained that his reason for bringing up such questions was that Governor Taft had opposed the acquisition of the Philippines in the beginning. "But now," said the Secretary, "we face the status quo, the prevailing conditions, and it is only with them I can deal. I have disengaged myself from many merchants, promoters, and editors in the Philippines, who believed that affairs there should be administered primarily for the profit of Americans, and now I come home and find myself confronted with the anti-imperialists. Is this fair?"

Your correspondent inquired how far the hostility of these promoters went in opposition to his humane shibboleth, "The Philippines for the Filipino." "They delay the triumph of prosperity and justice in the Philippines," he answered. "They want to get rich immediately. Some of them insist that, as the archipelago belongs to the Americans, the feelings, ambitions, and wishes of the natives should not be at all regarded or respected. They despise them, and frequently insult and abuse them. Unless their rancor can be allayed, and the hostility of commercial adventures in the United States diminished, the solution of the problem will be long delayed. The doctrine which we have announced and striven to realize was McKinley's; it involves a high moral principle which this nation is bound to enforce in spite of all obstacles. Every law and every measure must be construed in the light of it. If it will help the Filipinos, it must be adopted and executed; if it tends to the injury of the Filipinos, it must be discarded and defeated, whomsoever else it profits. You have called this a humane policy. It is much more than that. It is a commercially wise policy. We will never get much profit out of those rich dependencies unless we make ourselves the friends of their people and abide by the principles of justice. Avarice without justice will be our ruin, and if we are not just, our administration in those islands will be a failure. But I do not expect this, I expect that, under Governor

DEATHS DURING THE WEEK.

MRS. SAMUEL V. GOODR. Mrs. Sam'l V. Goodr. died at her home in Middlebrook on Tuesday morning the 9th inst., after a protracted illness, aged about 65 years. Deceased was a daughter of Col. Sam'l V. Gatewood, in his day one of the wealthiest and best known men of Bath county. She was born at Mountain Grove in that county, where the Gatewood homestead still stands. William Talliferro, Esq., of Moffatt's Creek, married another sister, and Maj. A. C. L. Gatewood of Big Spring, Poochontas county, W. Va., is a brother of deceased. Her husband, one son and three daughters survive her, one of them, Mrs. Arthur Connell, resides in this city. The burial took place in Thornrose cemetery at 4 p. m. yesterday afternoon.

Deceased was widely connected being related to the Warwicks, Franciscos, Camerons and many others of our most prominent families.

THOMAS CONNOR.

At Sport, on Friday evening, the 8th inst., at 7 o'clock, Mr. Thomas Connor quietly passed away, aged 54 years, 7 months and 2 days. Deceased was in good health up to the morning before he died, so his death was a great shock to the community. While laboring at his trade, that of a blacksmith, on Friday morning, he was suddenly paralyzed. Everything possible was done, but he never rallied. Mr. Connor has been for many years a consistent Christian, a member of the Menonite church. He was a genial, whole souled man, and esteemed by all who knew him. He is survived by his wife, who before her marriage was a Miss Smith. The entire community extend their sympathy to Mrs. Connor in this sad bereavement. A large concourse of friends and relatives attended his funeral Sunday morning, which took place at Springdale church. Rev. A. P. Heatwole, assisted by Rev. Jacob Martin, conducted the services. Interment in Springdale cemetery.

MRS. HANNA HANGER.

Raphine, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Hanna Hanger died at her home on January 23rd of paralysis. She had been in feeble health for some weeks, and retired as usual the previous night, and apparently passed a quiet night. When she awoke she asked her daughter to get her dress as she was ready to get up, but when her daughter reached her side Mrs. Hanger could not speak her tongue having been paralyzed. She only lived a short time after that. Mrs. Hanger was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fallwider of Dutch Hollow. She married Jacob Hanger, who preceded her to the grave many years ago. Those of her immediate family who survive are a son and two daughters—Elijah Hanger, Miss S. E. Hanger and Mrs. M. C. Keesteron, all of Augusta; 28 grand-children, and 27 great grand children, also by one brother, David Fullwider, now at the Soldiers' Home. Deceased was aged 88 years, 8 months and 11 days, and from early girlhood had been a member of the German Reformed church. Her funeral took place the following Sunday from Mt. Mariah church, the services being conducted by Rev. A. H. Hamilton of Mt. Carmel, whose text was from 2nd Corinthians, 5th chapter and 1st verse. The interment was in the old Dutch Hollow cemetery, and the following gentlemen acted as pall-bearers—Messrs. E. Demastus, J. Robertson, C. Hanger, S. Lucas, C. Lotts, and M. McCarr.

A Fine Piece of Dental Work.

On Friday of last week the Baltimore Dental Association completed the finest piece of crown and bridge work that has ever been made in Staunton. It was for a prominent physician of this city, and several well known business men of the city bear witness to its quality.

It was called in to see the work after unanimous pronouncing it the finest and most substantial dental work that they had ever seen. This Association has certainly eclipsed all efforts in this line of work, of which they make a specialty. They have revolutionized dentistry by introducing modern methods and modern prices. They have made it possible to make a first class set of teeth for $5; gold crowns and bridge work at $8 per tooth, and all other work at just half what others charge. adv t

The War in the East.

After many weeks of diplomatic negotiations it looks now as if Japan and Russia would have to fight it out. Monday the Japanese out the Korean cable and rushed troops into that country to meet the Russians, who it is stated had quietly entered northern Korea some days before. The same day the Japanese torpedo flotilla rushed into the mouth of Port Arthur and sunk three of the Russian men of war at that port.

The report is also current that the Japanese have purchased three warships just completed for the government of Chili. Russia has also just contracted a war loan of over $300,000,000. Everything now points to war in earnest.
