RATIFICATION MEETINGS.

An immense meeting of the Democracy, to ratify the nomination of the Baltimore Convention, took place in New York, at Tammany Hall and in the Park, on the 9th.

As the speech of Mr. Van Buren, from his position as a free-soil leader, will attract more interest than any other, we take portions of it from the report of the Herald:

He knew Franklin Pierce from his boyhood to be an upright, bold, unflinching democrat, and, above all, he knew him to be what was above all praise—an honest man.

The performance went on for some time, and the audience were in ecstasies, when Mr. Brooke suddenly appeared, and threw this tub of cold water upon their enthusiasm:

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "I am sorry to say that in obedience to the injunction I am compelled to break off the entertainment. It is not for me to set the law at defiance, but when the injunction shall be removed, as I trust it will be on Wednesday, the public will have an opportunity of judging more fully of the merits of this interesting company."

From the above remarks we judge that the union between the two wings of the democracy will be complete, at least so far as Mr. Van Buren can effect it. Mr. Van B. made an appeal to the "young men," in the course of his remarks, as follows:

The convention at Baltimore had passed over the great, distinguished, tried leaders of the party, for the safety of the party and of the Union, and presented as their standard-bearer a man of forty-six years of age—a young man, new to the public sense, distinguished only by purity of heart, depth of patriotism and disinterestedness of purpose.

On the same evening there was a ratification meeting in Washington. Gens. Cass, Houston and Lane, and Judge Douglass all made speeches endorsing the nominee.

Mr. Ritchie was called for, and expressed his hearty concurrence at the nominations of the convention, speaking in high terms of the candidates. He caused a letter from General Pierce to be read, dated Fremont House, Boston, May 27, 1852, addressed to Major Lally.

first night. In the meantime, the proprietors, being much scandalized at the usage to which their establishment was destined, got out an injunction, and served it, during the day, upon Mr. Brooke. In spite of every thing, however, there was an immense audience, and the play was ordered to proceed.

Ladies and Gentlemen—I regret to be forced to announce to you that the proprietors of this establishment, of which I am the sole lessee, have, since six o'clock this evening, placed an injunction on my desires to gratify the public, with a view to restrain me, and thereby to deprive you of witnessing this novel exhibition.

The performance went on for some time, and the audience were in ecstasies, when Mr. Brooke suddenly appeared, and threw this tub of cold water upon their enthusiasm:

"Ladies and gentlemen," said he, "I am sorry to say that in obedience to the injunction I am compelled to break off the entertainment. It is not for me to set the law at defiance, but when the injunction shall be removed, as I trust it will be on Wednesday, the public will have an opportunity of judging more fully of the merits of this interesting company."

The Examiner says these great vocalists were mezzo sopranos, and not contraltos, as we stated. It may be so, for we never heard either of them. A gentleman of this city, however, who stands very high in the musical world, and in whose judgment the editor of the Examiner, very justly, places great confidence, says that Malibran was a contralto.

THE LARGEST SHIP IN THE WORLD.—The Boston Atlas notes the launch there of the clipper ship Enoch Train, (claimed to be the largest in the world,) and says:

She floats on an even keel, and only draws 10 feet 3 inches water, and this, including 3 feet 6 inches depth of keel. No freight vessel, almost flat on the floor, is more buoyant. Such is the beautiful symmetry of her proportions, that, viewed as she lies, from the opposite side of the harbor, she does not appear larger than a common freight ship of 600 tons.

THE COMPROMISE MEASURES are not to be substantially and firmly maintained, the plain rights guaranteed by the constitution will be trampled in the dust. What difference can it make to you or me whether the outrage shall seem to fall on South Carolina, or Maine, or New Hampshire? Are not the rights of each clearly due to us all? I will never yield to a craze which endangers the Union.

MEXICAN GARDENS.—The gardeners of Japan display the most astonishing art. The plum tree which is a great favorite, is so trained and cultivated that the blossoms are as big as those of dahlias. Their great triumph, however, is to bring both plants and trees into the compass of the little garden attached to the houses in the cities.

MONKIES VS. MEN.—The proprietors of the Astor Place Opera House leased the establishment to Mr. A. V. Brooke. They are greatly desirous not being able, in the general way, to make both ends meet, determined to engage the services of Donetti's Comedienne and her troupe of performers.

THE GREAT SPRING MEDICINE.—The only reliable medicine has been tried by a great number of our citizens, and has performed more cures (some most astonishing) than all the balance of the articles so extensively advertised put together.

LOW PRICES.—We call attention to the advertisement of L. Hyneman, No. 98 Main street.
