RICHMOND, VA. Wednesday Morning, June 30, 1853.

DEATH OF MR. CLAY.

This long expected event has occurred at last. About a quarter past twelve o'clock, on yesterday, Mr. Clay left the scene on which for more than forty years he had been so conspicuous an actor. He fell full of honors and of years, like a noble oak of the forest, which having flourished its allotted time, bows its head to the earth, without difficulty and without effort. The public mind has long been prepared for the event; yet was he so wrapped up with all the public transactions of his day, that it hardly seemed possible. Even now we can, with difficulty, realize the fact that he is no more; that his voice will never more be heard in the Senate; that his wisdom will never more be the soul of the council.

In many respects Mr. Clay was one of the most remarkable men that this country ever produced. His greatness seems to have depended, not so much on the predominance of any one distinct power, as upon a combination of many. Others have been as eloquent, others have reasoned as powerfully, others have counselled as wisely, others have possessed as much energy and as much perseverance, others were naturally as brave as he, others could lay as just a claim to that talent for commanding, which he was so eminently gifted with; but we doubt whether any one man in this country, was so eloquent, so argumentative, so sagacious, so energetic, so courageous, so like a man born to rule. The influence which he possessed over his followers, to the last moment of his life, is a proof of his wonderfully commanding abilities. There has never been but one example like it in our day, and that was the example of his great antagonist, Gen. Jackson. As Mr. Clay had nothing to bestow, while the other had the whole patronage of the government at his command, it may be inferred that his influence was less dependent on circumstances and more on character.

Mr. Clay is one of the few characters of our time, who will stand better with posterity than he stood with the men of his own day. No man ever had such warm friends, but at the same time no man ever had more deadly enemies. For many years, indeed, the nation was divided into the friends of Mr. Clay and his enemies. Now that contemporary feeling is beginning to subside, he will be judged on his own merits. His friends have no reason to fear the verdict. He was a statesman of magnificent proportions, an orator of vast power, and a patriot of the sternest and most unbending sect—one who would not have hesitated, at any moment of his splendid career, to lay down his life for the good of his country.

DANIEL WEBSTER AND THE FARMERS.

During the session of the National Agricultural Convention, in Washington, last week, the delegates called upon the Hon. Daniel Webster, who received them very cordially in his dining hall, and after cracking some capital jokes, made the address which we copy below. The Dispatch thinks it first rate. Emanating from such a distinguished source, it will be read with interest.

General Wilder, and gentlemen of the United States Agricultural Society—I am happy to see you one and all. Brother farmers, you do me no more than justice when you call me the "Farmer of Marshfield." My father was a farmer, and I am a farmer. When a boy, among my native hills of New Hampshire, no cock crew so early that I did not hear him; and no Loy ran with more avidity to do errands, at the bidding of the workmen than I did. You are engaged in a noble enterprise. The prosperity and glory of the Union are based on the achievements of agriculture. Gentlemen, I will say to you what I have never before said—that when forty-five years ago I was called to Dartmouth College to pass my second graduation, I attempted, in my humble manner, to speak of the agricultural resources of the country, and to recommend for their more full development, organized action, and the formation of agricultural societies; and if memory does not betray me, it was at about this period of time that the first agricultural societies of this country were formed in old Berkshire and Philadelphia; (loud cheers by the delegates from Pennsylvania and Massachusetts); and though I have never seen that important production since that day, the partiality of any man for his own country (bowing and laughing) may be gratified by exploring among the slumbering archives of Marshfield. When some thirty years ago, I went to Marshfield, some of my kind neighbors would call to inquire the state of politics in the South, and others to know a bit of law from "the squire." I told them, "I have come to reside among you as a farmer, and here I talk neither politics nor law." Gentlemen I am naturally a farmer; I am most ardently attached to agricultural pursuits; and though I cultivate my lands with some little care, yet from the sterility of the soil, or from neglected husbandry on my part, in consequence of my public engagements, they afford no subsistence to myself and family. To you, farmers, of the Western and Southern, the soil of Marshfield may look barren and unfruitful. Sometimes the breezes of the broad Atlantic fan it; sometimes, indeed, unkindly suns smite it. But I love its quiet shades, and there love to commune with you upon the ennobling pursuits in which we are so happily engaged.—Gentlemen, I thank you for this visit with which you have honored me. My interests and my sympathies are identified with yours. I shall remember you and this occasion, which has called you together. I invoke for you a safe return to your homes. I invoke for you an abundant harvest; and if we meet not again in time, I trust that hereafter we shall meet in a more congenial clime, and under a kinder sun. Brother farmers, I bid you good morning.

THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

The British National Standard announces the intention of the Hudson's Bay Company to continue, and if possible complete, the discoveries in the Arctic regions. Sir John Rae will be immediately dispatched to the Northern coasts of America on a voyage of exploration. He will proceed by way of Chesterfield Inlet to Cape Nicolai, Sir James Ross's furthest in 1831; thence to survey as far north as Cape Bird, Sir James Ross's furthest in 1850—to complete the northwest passage. Dr. Rae will also search various other portions of those inhospitable shores to set at rest the conflicting statements with regard to them, and give to the world fresh knowledge of the country. But a paramount object with Dr. Rae will be the search for Sir John Franklin. We have already expressed our opinion that such an object will be fruitless, yet there may be ground for hope that the long lost navigator is still alive. At all events great credit cannot be given to the Hudson's Bay Company for their enterprising conduct on behalf of science and for the sake of humanity.

The persons accused of land warrant forgeries in New York (noticed in our telegraphic dispatch yesterday) were taken before a justice and detained in custody for further examination. Their names are William Merrihue, Thomas Lawson, Wm. H. Griswold, Hamilton R. Boone, Edmund F. Nexsen, and Horace B. Pike. The government appears determined to prosecute the matter to the fullest extent.

The Roanoke Beacon states that the house of Mrs. Brubaker, on Peter's Creek, was broken into recently, while the family were at church, and $200 in money, together with bonds amounting to upwards of $1000, were stolen therefrom.

LOCAL MATTERS.

Heavy Robbery.—The recent difficulty between Marcellus M. Archer and Edward Bloomer with respect to a sum of $1500 entrusted to the care of and lost by Bloomer recently, and which loss was investigated before the Mayor on a charge of embezzlement against Bloomer, preferred by Archer, of which charge Bloomer was fully acquitted on Saturday last, is doubtless fresh in the minds of our readers. Bloomer's servant, Lucinda Hill, ran away from her employer last Wednesday, and Bloomer believing that she had stolen the money, offered a reward for her capture. On Wednesday she was seen at Mr. Quarles' store, on Broad street, and on expressing her design of going out on the Fredericksburg railroad with an improperly written pass, excited suspicion as to the correctness of her conduct. She was not then arrested however. As soon as her right was fully made known, word was sent up the road to watch for her, and on Thursday, T. R. Jones, jailor of Caroline county, succeeded in arresting her in the county. She was immediately brought to the city and confined in Tait's jail. A warrant was, on yesterday, issued by the Mayor requiring Lucinda's appearance before him to answer the charge of stealing the money, and also that of Betsy Hill, a free negro, charged with aiding Lucinda in stealing the $1570 from Bloomer. Lucinda Hill belongs to Mr. Tabb. We give the testimony in the case taken before the Mayor yesterday in full, as it is a matter in which our citizens generally have taken considerable interest.

Edward Bloomer was first called to the stand and deposed nearly as follows: I received, for safe keeping, some weeks ago, the sum of $3000 from M. M. Archer. The Saturday before the day on which I lost the money, Archer came to me and obtained $500, with which to purchase a negro. I went up stairs and took the amount from the $3000, where it was secreted over my bed. I gave him the $500; the remainder I rolled up and put in my pocket along with some 45 or 50 dollars. On Saturday evening and Sunday morning I received some more money which increased the amount that belonged to me to about $70. In the course of Sunday evening I changed a $10 note for Archer and placed his money, which had been lying in my pocket book, by itself on the top of my desk, and my $70 I placed in the drawer underneath. Saw the money several times before 9 o'clock on Sunday evening. At 9 o'clock, Mr. Tickle, overseer of the hog pens at Stearns & Brummell's, came in and opened a conversation with me. I chanced some money lying in its usual place. I then went in the back room to get some milk for a customer, where I found Lucinda sitting, and told her to go to bed. She started and went into the kitchen where she slept, and I went back to Mr. Tickle and continued our conversation. I was sitting, while conversing with Tickle, with my back to the door, and T. was in front of me. We were smoking. Went up to bed about 10 o'clock, and thought that I would not disturb the money, and that it would be as safe in the store as up stairs. The door was fastened so that Lucinda could not get into the store, and the windows were secured. The next morning on coming down stairs, as was my custom, I looked to see if the money was safe and found it missing.—The doors and windows were just as I had left them the night before. For some two weeks after this loss of course I felt very bad about it—was at my usual work, but during this time Lucinda was very unruly; and one evening when I was sitting in a very melancholy humor, she commenced singing, and for some insolent reply which she made when I told her to hush, I chastised her. I heard that she, soon after, at the well, told one of the neighboring servants, that she knew where the money was. I heard that she was in the habit of visiting Archer's about this time during my absence in the day. As soon as Lucinda was taken up, I informed Mr. Tabb of the fact, and he told me that I had better put her in Tait's jail. Yesterday morning Mr. Tabb and I went to Lucinda to see if she knew anything about the money. At first she hesitated to answer our questions. Finally she acknowledged that she took the money on Sunday night at the time when I was talking with Mr. Tickle. She said that she took off her shoes, went behind the counter, and took the money out of my bill or desk and took Mr. A.'s money. She deposited the money in my room. She then took it out of my room, soon after for fear she said, that my wife would come across it when she came home. I asked her if she was told to do it, and she replied that she first took the money to Mr. Archer, but felt afraid to give it to him for fear that she might get in trouble.

Mr. Shelton here objected to receiving hearsay testimony of a negro which might affect the character of a white man, and Mr. Bloomer left the stand.

Mr. Tabb was next called. His statement was the same in regard to Lucinda's acknowledgment of the theft and the manner of committing it. Mr. T. went on to say "We used no threat to force the confession from her. I told her that she would be sold at any rate, and that she would gain nothing by silence or denial. She then said that Archer promised to give her (Lucinda) $10 if she would get the money from Bloomer and give it to him—but that he had only given her $5. Betsy the free negro, Archer's wife, had also promised her some articles of clothing if she would take the money—and did give her a pair of shoes, a bonnet and one or two dresses. She did take the money and handed it to Betsy, but Betsy said that she had better give it to Archer, and Archer being in the lot she called him and gave him the money. This was about the middle of the day. Betsy told her not to go back to Bloomer's any more, but to go up to Stafford county. Lucinda said that she did not know the way, and Betsy told her to stay with her during the day and she would put her in the right path in the evening. Betsy also promised to give Lucinda a pass. Lucinda accordingly staid in Betsy's room all the afternoon. In the evening she was given a pass, the $5 and articles of clothing, and told to follow out the track of the Fredericksburg Rail Road and that would carry her near to her owner's, in Falmouth, Stafford county. She then proceeded up the road and was taken as heretofore noted.

John Graham, a slave in the service of Stearns & Brummell, said that he met Betsy Archer's wife, and was talking with her about Lucinda's running away and of the money lost by Archer, when Betsy stated that Archer had the money.

The testimony here closed and the accused were remanded to jail to await trial before the Hustings Court on the first day of the next regular term, the 12th day of July next.

ASSAULT.—On Sunday morning last, at the lower market, Moses Gould fell out with a butcher named George White, concerning some chickens, and called White some very ugly names. On Monday morning White met Gould, and as a punishment for the abuse he had received, struck Gould twice in the face. Yesterday the matter came up before his Honor, who bound White over in the sum of $100 to keep the peace.

New Locomotive.—Yesterday, by means of an artificial wooden track laid in Cary street, a new and splendid locomotive, called "Henri-co," was conveyed from the Iron foundry and manufactory of Messrs. Barr & Edging, to the Petersburg depot. It will ply on the Petersburg railroad. It was a noble and gratifying specimen of Southern manufacturing skill.

MOONLIGHT EXCURSION.

On Monday evening last, that stalwart company of our citizen soldiery, the "Eagles," took a short excursion to the city. Their fifth annual excursion in the steam-boat "Curtis Peck," down the James river. It was one of the most delightful excursions acknowledged by all who participated in it, that ever was made from the city. Having by special invitation enjoyed personally the joyous-felicity of the evening, we speak with pride and feeling of the occasion. Between 7 and 8 o'clock, the "Eagles" marched to the boat at Rocketts, followed by a regular procession of carriages and carriages loaded down with the bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked belles of Richmond, and their many beaux. By 8 o'clock the boat was freighted to overflowing with the beauty and chivalry of the city. Amid the loud huzzas of the spectators, the gallant steamer shoved off—the band poured forth the sweeping chorus of "Wait for the Wagon," and a sensation of thrilling happiness was diffused throughout the whole party. Soon after in obedience to the wishes of the lovers of music, and the fascinating dance, the military band set some twenty-four happy couples in the full tide of collision motion on the quarter deck. "And away she went," and away they all went like wild deer, in the quick moving response of tiny slippers and sharp-heeled boots. But this was not all. A band of blooming damsels backed up by a lively squad of the "boys," made a descent upon the forward main deck, and in a trice, to the jumping music of Kuffin's violins and drums, twelve more couples floated in their merry. With short intervals for the purpose of partaking of some of Pizzini's choice eatables—the music called to the floor fresh sets of glowing joyous dancers—the gallant boat sped along the foaming river as if the mirth of her precious freight had become infused into her steam valves, and the scene was one of general mirth and unalloyed happiness.

As we are always loath to part with the ladies any way, we cannot close this brief notice without stating that, as usual, they were the magicians of the scene—the suns around whom the "masculines" revolved, and that shed a sweet radiance of cheerfulness and social love over the whole party. If we might particularize, there was, for instance, the twins of the "pink roses" on the quarter deck—perfect dancing angels. Then, too, like a queen of night, the dignified Miss H. moved through the mazy dance with peerless grace. Others there were—and certainly we must beg of cupid at least sixteen hours—who swam the waltz and the polka, in a style absolutely bewitching—casting from their roguish sparkling eyes, rays of love and temptation that would have set fire to the strong heart of an anchorite. We expect, any how, that they settled the matrimonial fate of at least two score of old "backs."

Quartermaster Sadler was in all his glory, and Lt. Richards and his worthy coadjutors, Messrs. Barnes, Williams, and Bell, vanquished an astonishing number of single men in the toe-and-heel performance. At 12 o'clock the party returned in the bet of humor to the city. There had been no drunkenness, no excess or difficulty to mar or disturb the general harmony. And now with the music of laughing and lively like voices, hornpipes and waltzes, still ringing in our ears, with a dim mist of beauteous forms flitting in all their native loveliness before the sight, we chronicle the finish of the excursion simply remarking that we shall look forward to "having hands across," with our terpsichorean friends at some future time, with no little impatience and hope.

BAPTIST UNION CELEBRATION.—As we have already stated, the Sunday Schools of the First and Second Baptist Churches next having a grand union celebration on Monday next at Slash Cottage. Extensive and appropriate arrangements have been made to render the commemoration of our National Anniversary of the most patriotic and pleasurable character. The schools will assemble at their respective churches on Monday morning, at 7 o'clock. Headed by the Independent Brass Band, they will then proceed to the depot on Broad street, and leave for the Cottage at 8 o'clock. Mr. James C. Craze will act as Chief Marshal of the day; and the public exercises at the Cottage will be under the direction of H. K. Ellyson. The exercises on the ground will commence with prayer and the singing of patriotic hymns by the united schools. Rev. R. D. Ward will then deliver the opening address, and read the declaration of Independence. Address, singing, swinging, instrumental music, carousing and promenades will occupy the time of the excursionists during the afternoon. The price of the tickets for the round trip, including dinner and refreshments during the day, will be only one dollar and fifty cents. It is computed that the party will embrace upwards of 1000 persons. May they have a pleasant season.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The argument of counsel in favor of the application to bail G. Blankenship, was adjourned over until to-day.

BOUND OVER.—Yesterday and Rebecca Page, free negro, were on yesterday required to give security in the sum of $20 for telling Daniel Ryan, a white man, that his word was no better than their if as good.

THREATENING.—Warner Banks, who belongs to W. F. Watson, threatened the life of Lucy Matthews some days since, and on yesterday was ordered 20 lashes.

CONTINUED.—Olliver Yarrington brought before his Honor yesterday, a Negro named Lemuel Johnson, whom he arrested Monday evening for beating his wife. The case was continued until to day, for the purpose of securing the testimony of his master, Mr. P. Robin son.

The case of John A. Mosby, charged by David A. Brown with beating William, a slave hired by Mr. Brown, will come up this morning. H. B. was not present yesterday.

GENERAL COURT.—Attorney General Beocock and R. G. Scott, Esq., continued the argument on the motion to grant a new trial to Wormley yesterday, before the General Court. Its decision will probably be given to-day.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—We have received from J. W. Randolph, Main street, the July number of this Magazine. Its merits are too well known to need comment.

INCENDIARISM.—We learn that a negro girl named Lucy, in the employ of James Pae, Esq., living on Church Hill, undertook to set fire to the House occupied by Festus Malone, on Thursday evening. The flames were fortunately discovered in season to prevent a conflagration. The daring incendiary has not yet been arrested.

FALSE.—The alarm of fire at half past nine o'clock last night.

We continue the insertion of the test imonia of the late Daguerrtypes issued from Pratt's gallery, at No. 145 Main street, under the Gothic window. The Magnolia says of it—"We were quite astonished at the beautiful manner in which it is lit up, the richness of all its appointments, and the elegant appliances of comfort and luxury with which it abounds. We looked over a large number of the distinguished men of Virginia, and well known private citizens, and did not see one inferior in his dress amongst them. M. P. is a master of his profession, and such seems to be the general opinion, if we judge from the army of witnesses of the skill which he looks down from the walls." "The best daguerotypes I have ever had taken," says Dr. R. W. Wood, of Fredericksburg, Va. Price 10c.

GROUPS, GROUPS, FAMILY GROUPS, & C.

Groups of schools, clubs, &c. of any number from 2 to 25, or more, taken at all sizes, varying from 2 1/2 by 3 1/2 to 7 by 9 inches.—Teachers of schools should improve this opportunity as it is a rare one seldom offered, having no other facilities, either for the students to the families, schools, clubs, &c. Call and examine specimens.—M. P. BIMONS, 151 Eagle Square. je 17

We cannot forbear calling the attention of the public to the numerous testimonials of skill and artistic talent which are constantly volunteered from the press and from private individuals to the new old establishment, at No. 145, Main street, Richmond. We shall insert them in the order in which they are received, commencing with our own journal. Mr. Pratt has fitted up his credit upon his taste and liberality.—Daily Dispatch.

Keep your Blood Pure.—In order to enjoy health during the approaching summer, we would remind our readers that the "one thing needful" is to keep the blood pure; and to accomplish this we know of no greater purifier of the blood to recommend than the celebrated Dr. Hays' Vegetable Tincture, which by its wonderful cures has established for itself a reputation far surpassing any medicine known. We would respectfully call the attention of individuals to another certain and the strongest character, which may be found in another column of our paper, and would also remind them that this medicine is kept in our city by O. A. STRECKER, Main Street, who is supplying the trade at proprietor's prices. Call and get a pamphlet gratis. my 26

We seldom recommend a manufactured medicine, believing that, in most cases, nature herself perfects a cure more rapidly and effectually than can be accomplished by the vegetable and mineral medicines of science. But in the matter of dyspepsia, there are chronic features about it, which, very often, defy all the efforts of nature to create a healthy action of the digestive organs, and it not unfrequently happens that those who are afflicted with this disease, find in mind from indignation and its kindred ills to such, Hood's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, are truly a most valuable preparation. It is a tonic medicine, giving a healthy action to the stomach, and will be found highly serviceable in all seasons, but especially during the spring. Dyspepsia can only be cured by a patient perseverance in one course of treatment; and to all those suffering under this sad malady we would recommend an application to the depot of Hood's German Bitters, 120 Arch street, Philadelphia. Pennsylvania Inquirer. je 28-31

Competition is the Life of Trade.—The real Northern prices are at MOULSON'S GALLERY, 110 Main street, where, to the astonishment of my customers and the public, I will show my beautiful style of Daguerotypes for a dollar only, and want entire satisfaction or no sale.

The public should further understand for their own interest the reason why I am enabled to take pictures so cheap, is owing to my new and great discovery, just patented, Sept. 23, 1851, by which I can picture in any style, and in any part of the world. I have, also, for the choice of our customers, the French Ivory, Pearl or Bronze back grounds, which are unequalled in the country; and my charge for any of them is only $1.

Don't forget—satisfaction or no sale, at MOULSON'S Patent Process Daguerrotype Gallery, No. 110 Main st., 1st door above Mitchell & Tyler's Jewellery Store. je 25

The Greatest Spring Medicine! Carter's Spanish Mixture.—The only Purifier of the Blood.—This wonderful and valuable medicine has been tried by a great number of our citizens, and has performed more cures (some most astonishing) than all the balance of the articles so extensively advertised put together. It is the only certain and safe remedy for MERCURIAL DISEASES. It will cure Syphilis in the primary and secondary stages, as can be testified to by hundreds of grateful patients who delicately forbids naming in public. For diseases of the LIVER, it has never failed. It positively cures Scrofula and Eruptions of all kinds. Blisters on the face, and roughness of the Cuticle are in a short time entirely removed. Numbers of certificates from gentlemen of the first respectability will be found, but as the article is made in the county of Henrico, any one not acquainted with the medicine can see the maker in person. It contains no noxious or hurtful articles, can be given with impunity in any weather, and will be found the best medicine for the Spring which can be used, or has ever been tried.

Call and see the directions, with a description and history of the medicine and a number of wonderful certificates from persons who know BENNETT & BEERS, Druggists, 135 Main street, are the sole Agents for the sale of it in Richmond, who will supply Druggists and others to sell again, and to whom all orders must be addressed, as it must pass through their hands. je 30

COW.—For sale by NASH & WOODHOUSE, Eagle Square. The Cow Husbandry and Cattle Breeding by M. M. Millburn, author of Prize Essays of the Royal Agricultural Society of England. Edited by Edmonstone Stevens, editor of Youatt and Martin on Cattle. This little book contains much valuable matter, in a compact form, and at a low price, that is nowhere else so accessible and so reasonable. The American Editor has adapted it to the American farmer and breeder, preserving the views and opinions of the author, correcting obvious errors, and rendering this edition of more value to the American reader than the English one. Price 25 cents. The Rose—Being a practical treatise on the propagation and management of the Rose in all seasons; with a list of choice and approved varieties, adapted to the climate of the United States; to which is added full directions for the treatment of the Rose. Illustrated by Engravings. Cloth 50 cents. je 30
