THURSDAY MORNING MAY 31, 1860

With the beginning of warm weather, the ide of health and pleasure seekers is setting owards the seaside, preparatory to its sumwhen well kept, more delightful than those upon the seaside. The very first inhalation of the atmosphere of the ocean is exhilarating, and the sight of that majestic exuse, with here and there a white sail stealing along the distant horizon, inspires the mind as the sea air does the body. It is aston-ishing that the votaries of fashion can enact their frivolities upon the margin of that sea which reminds one of eternity; that, in the face of the greatest of nature's works some of tricks" of vanity and fashion find their favorite theatre. But the watering places would be badly off if none but the wise frequented them. Nature delights in contrasts, and therefore let Mr. POTIPHAR prepare for the redown and the polka on the seaside, and Mr. TITMOUSE to smoke his regalia amid the spray he chief places of resort for the aristocracy of the model republic are Newport, Saratoga Old Point and the Virginia Springs. These last, though long thrown in the shade by the older watering places of other sections, are beginning to acquire a national reputation.— The blended grandeur and beauty of the Virginia scenery, the magnificent mountains, the life-giving atmosphere, and the really medi-cinal properties of the waters, are attracting universal attention, and now that railroad facilities for reaching the Springs are increased, and a race of landlords has sprung up who do not kill more by their cookery than are cured by their waters, we may expect greater and greater crowds in the Virginia mountains every year. In regard to summer excursions, a voyage across the Atlantic and a visit to the continent has become the favorite tour of the fashionable world. To those who are content with such entertainment as a new continent can afford, the Falls of Niagara and the great Whilst our own pleasure seekers go to Europe-the Prince of Walks and the Prince DE Join-VILLE come to America. Republicanism patronizes Royalty, and Royalty, Republicanism. Neither of them can find anything in Europe better worth beholding than the lakes, the prairies, the mountains and the rivers of this young America. In regard to rivers, the historic James, and the York, with its broad, deep, bright waters, washing the banks of an eminence on which the destinies of liberty on this continent were decided, present strong attractions. Of all the Northern rivers the most beautiful is the Hudson,-our American Rhine it has been called; but if it does not equal the Rhine in heroic traditions and classic associations, it can scarcely be inferior to it in the grandeur and variety of the scenery, the mountains, hills, valleys and rolling country which are mirrored in its majestic flood .-But to appreciate it the traveller must not dart by the river in railroad cars, nor career over it in a steamboat. If he has any yachting friends in the great city, he cannot spend a week more agreeably than in a leisurely cruise from New York to Albany, or in default of an obliging friend of that kind, let a pleasure party charter a sailing vessel in New York, take their fishing tackle and a volume of Diedrich Knickerbacker, with such creature comforts as are necessary, and we long be a bright spot in their memory. All this, we say, on the presumption that pleasure-seekers must go beyond the boundaries of their own State for enjoyment and recreation. For our own part, Virginia is good enough for us; the Blue Ridge and Allegha-nies high enough, the Natural Bridge, Wyer's Cave and the Hawk's Nest, wonders enough. Whether we get as far as the Agricultural Fair Grounds in the course of our rural excursious the coming year, depends entirely upon the progress of the street railroads. One of the leading journals of New York solemnly declares that hotel-keepers at the fashionable springs of the United States, notwithstanding all the balderdash about "princely proprietors," "gentlemanly clerks," humbags of the first water. It is asserted that they ruin people's digestion with bad dinners, poison them with adulterated liquors, stretch them on Procrustean couches, subject them to fleecing, bruising, beating and maim ing by servants, chinches and mosquitoes, and wind up by picking their pockets and chargthey have had no accommodations whatever If this was ever true of any of our Virginia most of them there has been a great reform, and that some of them are better than the average of hotels in large cities. The remark of the New York journalist is just as true of hotels in general as it is of the hotels at springs in particular. At some of these vast establishments strangers are treated with less consideration than foreigners upon the coast of Spain; imprisoned in miserable little rooms in the attics of high buildings; fed during the day time upon viands so scanty and indiges-tible that it is a relief to leave the table, and consigned at night to the tender mercies of vermin who abstract from them more than they have eaten during the day. We observed lately the letter of a traveller to a journal in one of the great cities, in which, recording the incidents of a journey of fifteen hundred miles, he mentioned with pious gratitude to the gods, one public house at which he got a good cupper and a comfortable bed, and was not charged more than five times what the ac commodations were worth. Let us be thank-Virginia, where, if there be less show and parade, there is at least comfort and cleanliness. and where the charges bear some sort of pro portion to the consideration.

Referring to the late debate in Parliament on the Press, the New York Herald says the Premier gracefully acknowledged the power of the press, and defending the editor of the Times, Mr. DELANE, from some slurs which had been thrown out in the course of Mr. Housman's remarks, Lord Palmerston alluded to Mr. DELANE as his equal, socially, while Mr. Horsman was obliged to confess that Mr. WALTER, as the heaviest proprietor in the Times newspaper, was the most powerful member sitting upon the House of Commons. If we contrast these acknowledgments of British statesmen, who are far superior in education, mental training and practical experience, to our public men, with such sneers as that of the late Mr. SEWARD at "an editor of a newspaper," we shall see that the press of the United States has before it a great work and responsibility. It is a little remarkable that, ut the same time that Lord PALMERSTOP about the same time that Lord PALMERSTON paid his graceful tribute to the press, in Parliament, Rev. Dr. FULLER, one of the most dignified gentlemen and eloquent speakers in this country, at one of the anniversary meetings in New York, delivered that splendid eulogium upon the power of the press, which we have already transferred to our columns, in which he spoke of it as higher, more influential and more permanent than the power of Congress.

The greatest of New York politicians has by this time discovered that the press can not only breathe the breath of life into public men but that it can withdraw that breath from furnish an aristocracy which can withhold with impunity from journalism that deference which the ancient mobility of England is com-pelled to pay. These striking illustrations of the dignity and power of the press, however, instead of leading to the indulgence of puerile conceit and complacency on the part of its con-ductors, should impress them more strongly with a sense of their responsibility at the tri-bunal of conscience and of the public, and cause them to guard with increased vigilance the moral as well as material and political in-terests of the country.

It is a generally received opinion that great ities are huge hotbeds of all sorts of crime and rescality, but, it must be conceded, that and rascality, but, it must be concessed, that if little villages are more virtuous, it is as much from the want of temptation and opportunity, as from any superior virtue. Human nature is the same everywhere. Such cities as New York and New Orleans, which are so often denounced for their abominations, attract by their wealth and splendor, adventurers and reprobates from all other parts of Christen-dom, and these "lewd fellows of the baser sort" give a bad name to communities whose native, resident population is as good as any in the world. Moreover, as it is the business of the press to hunt up and expose villainy. and to publish daily reports of every kind of crime, the public see nothing in general but the bad side of cities, whilst the ten thousand acts of virtue, humanity, charity and liberality, which it is not the vocation of the press to publish, and which would lose half their merit if known, are either never mentioned, or in such a way as not to attract attention. Even if New Orleans, instead of being one of the best communities in Christendom, (we speak of its stable population,) were as vile as is generally represented, one such man as the late Judan Touro would redeem the character of Sodom and Gomorrah, and if New York were one immense sewer of vice, it never yet engendered such a monster of depravity as the We learn from a reliable contemporary that man in a Massachusetts village, who has the nurder, body and soul, of three female victims, laid to his charge. The calendar of crime in America will prove beyond doubt, that, whilst real rural life, the life of the farmer, in the free, open, uncontaminated country, is more favorable than any other human condition to the development of virtue, yet the vil-lages have been as prolific of vice, in propor-tion to population, as the cities. After such specimens as EPHRAIM K. AVERY, Rev. Mr. HARDEN, GEO. C. HERSEY, the apostle MAT-TRIAS, JOE SMITH, BRIGHAM YOUNG, and the founders of Spiritualism, Free Love, and other demoralizing isms of the day, the little localities which produced these monsters appear somewhat absurd when they thank Gop that they are so much better than the publicans of the big towns.

with no view to disparage any other candidate, but to prevent disparagement of Mr. CRANE, the writer of this card alludes to a rumor set abroad, either through ignorance or design, viz: that "Mr. Crane has no charce of election." A meeting of citizens was held at the City Hall last night, to appoint delegates to the Convention of the Lyamburg and Richmond Railroad to be held at Buckingham Court-House, on the 4th of July next.

The meeting organized by calling JOSEPH MAYO, Esq., Mayor of Richmond, to the Chair, and appointing J. W. LEWELLEN as Secretary. The Chairman stated that he had called the

The Chairman stated that he had called the meeting at the request of the Commissioners named in the charter for the road, and the Board of Trade.

Joseph R. Anderson, Esq., briefly stated the action of the Commissioners and the Board of Trade in regard to the road, and that neither of those bodys had attempted or designed to incur any responsibility for the city. He then gave, suscirctly, his views as to the importance of the improvement to Richmond.

Mr. Wm. P. Burwell made a motion that a committee of five be appointed to prepare business for the action of the meeting.

The motion, on being put to vote, was adopted, and the Chairman appointed the following gentlemen as the committee: Messrs. Wm. P. Burwell, Jos. R. Anderson, John Jones, Thos. R. Price and H. W. Fry.

After retirement and consultation, the committee returned, and through their Chairman recorted the following preamble and resoults.

After retirement and consultation, the committee returned, and through their Chairman reported the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, a charter was granted by the late Legislature, to run a Railroad from the city of Richmond to Lynchburg, or from some point on the Richmond and Danville Railroad to that city, through the countres of Powhstan, Chesterfield, Cumberland, Buckingham and Appomattox, we, the citizens of Richmond, have met this evening, to attest our conviction of the interest which this city has in the construction of this Road; and at the same time, to respond to invitations extended to us by the people of Powhatan and Buckingham, to meet their delegates in Convention at Farmville, on the 4th June, and at Buckingham Court-House, on the 4th July, to devise measures for constructing the said Road.

Resolved, Therefore, that it is our opinion that the interest which this city has in the trade and travel of the great and growing Southwest, is too great for us to rely upon two Railro ds, which are in the interest and under the control of rival cities, and competitors with us for that trade and travel.

Resolved, That it is our deliberate conviction that the construction of the Richmond and Lynch burg Railroad will furnish that direct connection with the great Soutawestern system of railways, which alone can ensure to us our just share in the illimitable trade and travel.

Resolved, That we have seen with pleasure the lively interest which the counties along the line have shown. In their meetings, and we recognize in their powerful co-operation with us, the practicability of an early completion of this most important line of road.

Resolved, That we have seen with pleasure the lively interest which the counties along the line have shown. In their meetings, and we recognize in their powerful co-operation with us, the practicability of an early completion of this most important line of road.

Resolved. That we have seen tendered us by the people of Powhatan and Buck point 20 detegates, to be filed at Buckingham Court-House.

Resolved, That, in view of the fact that Lynch burg and some of the counties along the route have not yet appointed their delegates, we recommend to our friends in Powhatan, at their Court, on Monday next, to change the time and place of the Convention, recommended by them, from Farmy He, on the 14th of June, to Buckingham Court House, on the sth of July next.

Resolved, That we express our appreciation of the able co-operation our Delegates and Senator gave to the representatives of the counties in securing the charter for this line of railroad.

The Chairman appointed the following delegates: Wm. P. Burwell, Joseph R. Anderson, Thos. R. Price, H. W. Fry, John Jones, Thos. W. McCance, L. D. Crenshaw, Dr. Ro. Archer, Peter C. Warwick, D.
