

...and the restoration of the national authority throughout all the States in the Union collaterally, and in subordination to the proposition which was then announced.

The anti-slavery policy of the United States was reviewed in all its bearings, and the President announced that he must not be expected to depart from the positions he had heretofore assumed in his proclamation of emancipation and other documents, &c. those positions were reiterated in his annual message.

It was further declared by the President that the complete restoration of the national authority every where was an indispensable condition of any peace on our part to whatever form of peace might be proposed. The President assured the other party that he would adhere to these positions, he would be prepared, so far as power was lodged with the Executive, to exercise liberality. His power, however, is limited by the Constitution, and when peace should be made Congress must necessarily act in regard to appropriation of money and to the admission of representatives from the seceding States.

The Richmond party were then informed that Congress had on the 4th ultimo adopted, by a constitutional majority, a joint resolution submitting to the several States the proposition to abolish slavery throughout the Union, and that there is every reason to expect that it will soon be accepted by three-fourths of the States, so as to become a part of the national organic law.

The conference came to an end by mutual acquiescence, without producing an agreement of views upon the several matters discussed, or any of them. Nevertheless, it is perhaps of some importance that we have been able to submit our opinions and views directly to prominent insurgents, and to hear them in answer, in a courteous and not unfriendly manner. I am, Sir, your obedient servant.

W. M. H. SEWARD.

THE READING OF THE CORRESPONDENCE IN THE YANKEE CONGRESS.

The reading of this message arrested the profound attention of the House and a large audience in the galleries. When the Clerk read that part of Mr. Lincoln's paraphrase in which he uses the words "two countries," "one common country," etc., there were cries from the Republican members of "Good! good!" accompanied by applause.

The instructions to Mr. Seward also elicited evidences of approbation.

Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, said he believed this message would meet with the cordial approbation of the entire people, and in view of its importance he moved that twenty thousand copies of the message be printed.

Mr. Brooks said he did not think the message would meet with the cordial approbation of the people. As he understood the document, and the report which comes to us from the rebel papers, two things are evident: First, that Mr. Lincoln demanded of the rebels unqualified submission; second, that the President would enter into no negotiations with either the rebel Government or any single rebel State.

Mr. Lincoln is silent on this point; but it is positively asserted by Davis and the rebel agents. If the President had desired peace sincerely he should have brushed away the cobwebs, and come at once to the point with Stephens. As the matter now stands, the end must be by resort to the sword. He referred to the cheers of the soldiers when the peace commissioners passed through the lines as showing the spirit of the soldiers and the people in favor of peace.

It required no inconsiderable courage on the part of Mr. Lincoln to throw off the impertunate radicals here and meet the rebel agents; for this the President deserves credit, and he has my thanks for holding the conference. It was what I desired and asked of him in December last, but which was not received on the other side of the House with approbation.

But I regret that in this conference Mr. Lincoln did not act upon his own responsibility, and ask no other terms than submission to the Constitution. He should have availed himself of this opportunity. No Lincoln or Davis could now make peace with the turbulent elements now aroused—a peace-maker now but the sword. May God preserve us from this arbitrament; but it now seems there is no other. North Carolina and Georgia are in a condition to make peace if their sovereignty can be preserved. The elements of peace are also in Alabama. I regret that Mr. Lincoln had closed the door against these States. Mr. Brooks referred to the concessions once made successfully to South Carolina to avert civil war. Such are the precedents that should have governed Mr. Lincoln. The speaker was in favor of an armistice—some day or other this war must end, and prior to that there must be an armistice. He regretted that Mr. Lincoln had not availed himself of the opportunity recently offered, as he (Mr. Brooks) did not doubt that peace would have followed. If again the battle is waged there is no hope of peace short of subjugation of one or the other of the parties.

Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania: I can use no epithets sufficiently expressive of condemnation of such a speech. If the President had agreed upon an armistice upon the basis of a separation of States, he would have deserved to be impeached by this House and convicted by the other. For his (the speaker's) part he believed one or other of two alternatives must come—the rebels must lay down their arms or be exterminated. He did not believe that peace would be restored in six or twelve months—there would be war for a year or two. The conqueror must make terms. The South will be conquered, and slavery will not be allowed hereafter. Three-fourths of the States will ratify the amendment to the Constitution, and no State can then come back with slavery.

Mr. Cox (Democrat) of Ohio expressed his gratification that the negotiation had taken place, because he believed that it was followed up it would end in peace and Union. He was sorry that the gentleman from Pennsylvania should have given emphasis to the remark that the rebels stood up simply upon their independence. General Grant, himself, says the intention of the commissioners was good, and that they had a desire to restore peace and Union. The thanks of the country are due to the President for drawing this out. If peace is not secured on that basis, the fault will be at the door of the radical pressure.

Richmond Dispatch.

TUESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 14, 1865.

The Dispatch Counting-Room has been removed to the Northeast Corner of Thirteenth and Main streets, (Spence's Building,) immediately opposite the Old Stand.

THE NEWS.

FROM THE PETERSBURG LINES. All quiet at Petersburg. There has been no movement of importance since yesterday week. The enemy hold their newly-acquired position on Hatcher's creek, and their pickets are thrown out a short distance to the west of that point. Their new lines take in a very extensive piece of wood land, which will prove a great comfort to them. They are building observatories at several points along their lines. With the Yankees, the observatory seems completely to have superseded Professor Lowe and his balloons.

IMPORTANT FROM NORTH CAROLINA.—A HEAVY YANKEE COLUMN THREATENING AN ADVANCE ON RALEIGH. Unofficial intelligence has been received here that a force of the enemy, estimated at twenty thousand men, have landed at Newbern. It is believed to be their object to advance at once upon Raleigh, or at least upon our lines of railroad in North Carolina. They are said to have brought with them five locomotives and railroad iron sufficient to lay forty or fifty miles of track. Grant visited Newbern some ten days ago, and his visit now appears to have been to plan and arrange this expedition. The force engaged in this movement is, of course, supposed to be part of Thomas's command. We must expect to hear of Thomas in many places, until such time as his whereabouts is definitely ascertained by a battle.

Newbern is near the mouth of the Neuse river, about one hundred and ten miles southeast of Raleigh. FROM EAST TENNESSEE. The report reached us yesterday that Stoneman and Burbridge were preparing to make a raid from Tennessee into North Carolina, in the direction of Raleigh, with the hope of co-operating with the column now said to be on foot to invade the State from the Atlantic coast.—We give this for what it may be worth.

SHERMAN'S MOVEMENTS.—THE SITUATION IN SOUTH CAROLINA.—OFFICIAL DISPATCH FROM GENERAL HARDEE. The military operations now going on in South Carolina are of the first importance to our cause, and, naturally, engross the attention of our people to the exclusion of movements reported to be taking place elsewhere. Sherman has run through Georgia without meeting with any obstruction, and it is expected, if he is to be checked at all, it must be done quickly. It is only within the past week that his movement against Branchville was clearly developed. Previous to that time it was not known certainly that he would not concentrate against Augusta or Charleston. It is now reported by telegraph that he has a column moving on Augusta; but this must be received as an unconfirmed rumor. We cannot contradict it, though, at the same time, we do not know that it is true.

For the present all communication with Augusta is cut off, and we do not know what is going on there, or in that neighborhood. As concerns matters at Charleston and in the direction of Columbia, our information is more definite. The enemy, with a force of three thousand men, landed at Grimball's, on James's island, last Friday, and drove in our pickets. Some skirmishing followed, but there was no general engagement.—Grimball's is on the Stono river, two miles southwest of Charleston, and the Ashley river, a wide stream, lies between it and the city. This demonstration of the enemy is believed to be a feint.

The following dispatch, received late Sunday night, is the official report of this affair. It contains also other interesting intelligence:

"To General S. Cooper, Adjutant and Inspector General: 'The enemy, last evening, drove in our pickets on James's island. The lines have been re-established to-day. The enemy are still in strong force on the island, but the movement is believed to be only a demonstration. There is an increase to-day of eighteen steamers off the bar. A large attack made to-night upon battery Tompkins was repulsed. 'W. J. HARDEE, Lieutenant-General.'

Since the receipt of the above, we are without advices from Charleston. On Saturday, a column of Sherman's infantry and cavalry crossed the Edisto to the west of and above Branchville, and advanced on the Columbia Branch railroad. Our troops at Branchville withdrew towards Columbia. According to the last official accounts, received yesterday, the enemy were at Orangeburg, some twenty miles north of Branchville, and on the road to Columbia. During our retreat there has been continual skirmishing with the enemy, but no general engagement. It was said here yesterday that Beauregard intended to make an attack; but we think, from present indications, it is more likely he will fall back beyond the Santee and defend the line of that river. He is said to have an adequate force for either an offensive or defensive policy, whichever he may find it expedient to adopt. Columbia is on the right bank of the Santee, about fifty miles west of north of Orangeburg.

IMPORTANT TO DESERTERS AND OTHER DELINQUENTS. We would call attention to General Orders Nos. 2 and 3, issued by General Lee from the Headquarters of the Armies of the Confederate States, and addressed to soldiers absent without leave from the field, or who have left their commands to join others in which they find service more agreeable. By Order No. 2, a general amnesty is granted to all who, being improperly absent from their commands, shall return within twenty days, and the exhortation to accept this amnesty is such as to be irresistible to every man worthy of the name of soldier. The terms of this Order do not apply to those who have twice deserted, or have gone over to the enemy. There can be no doubt that those serving in other than their proper commands will hasten to avail themselves of the conditions offered by Order No. 3, and to avoid the penalties of disobedience thereto.

AN EXPLOIT OF SOME OF MOSBY'S MEN. Northern Virginia seems not to afford full occupation for the gallant and adventurous rangers of Colonel Mosby. Within the last week some of them have been stirring up the Yankees on the York peninsula. We are informed that, last Friday night, Captain Richardson, with sixteen men, all of Mosby's command, dashed into the town of Williamsburg, and successfully pretending to be the advance of a cavalry brigade, cleared a regiment of Yankees out of the town, unhorsing upwards of a dozen and killing half that number. None of Captain Richardson's men were struck, though six of their horses were killed under them. They brought off a number of horses and some other plunder.

We are indebted to the courtesy of Mr. A. Welsh, of the Southern Express Company, for Augusta, (Georgia,) papers of the 8th instant. Instead of peace meetings being held, as reported, in Georgia, we find the proceedings of several war meetings published. The Express Company, with its usual energy, is waging over all the railroad gaps made by the enemy.
