

The Conspiracy—still moves along as ruthlessly as the car of Juggernaut, and daily grows more and more formidable. We need be surprised at nothing. The peril of the republic—by a stretch of construction, we may so call it—was never before so great. Now is the time for some true-hearted patriot—some great statesman—some proud and noble citizen, who can think more of his country than his own personal interests—more of that country than the party with which he associated—now is the time for such a man to rise above all meaner considerations and act the part of a hero and patriot. A man who could do that would win more renown than any other living man. He would endear himself to the whole country. No honor it could confer would be considered too good for him. He would be enshrined in every heart, and his memory would survive fresh and pure for long ages to come.

By Mr. JOHNSON: Bill concerning a Board of Railroad Commissioners, and to define their duties. By Mr. FINNEY: Bill to amend and reenact sections 5 and 9 of chapter 202 of the Code of 1873, as amended by acts approved January 15, 1876, and March 27th. By Mr. LEAS: Bill to amend and reenact an act passed December 30, 1853, incorporating the Virginia Agricultural Fair. By Mr. JOHNSON: Bill to regulate elections in cities and towns of not more than 5,000 inhabitants. By same: Bill to repeal sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

Could there not be found one such man in this vast country? Could there not be found two more companions to take the field and stand by his side? It would be an honor to the country and the age, and do oceans of good to the nation, for such men to appear. It would be beneficial to an immeasurable degree; and coming in the midst of public distress and apprehension, it would be regarded, in view of the condition of things, as amongst the greatest of national blessings that ever came to a people. The peril is great and the future clouded. We feel that apprehended outrages are so abortive that they cannot succeed—may be, we should say, should not succeed—in this country. Public opinion is slow, and such a grand act as that we speak of would be at once a relief to the country, and bring peace, prosperity, security, and contentment where now are trouble, apprehension, and agony.

The great anxiety of all is the just fear that a President now sent by force proclaims the power of the party of force, which will perpetuate itself by force, and possibly put an end to the civil character of our republican system as it was handed down by our fathers. We suspect that the American people are not fully aware of the danger that hovers over them. An insensate and ruthless usurper is treading under his feet every obstacle in Constitution, law, and custom which may stand in the way of the accomplishment of his purpose to stifle the national voice and seat himself or HAYES by force of arms.

Mr. Justice Miller. A publication has been made purporting to be an interview with Judge MILLER, of the Federal Supreme Court. We find the truth of this publication contradicted by the Washington Union. The Union's notice contains Mr. BLAIR's opinion of the Judge; and since the so-called interview may have prejudiced him in the eyes of some we copy the Union's paragraph: We have authority for saying that the remarks attributed to Mr. Justice Miller in what purports to be an interview with him by a reporter of the Chicago Times, published in yesterday morning's Republican, are as wide a departure from the truth as the publication is unwarranted by any rule of propriety which should govern the intercourse of gentlemen. To any such one on the street, by reference to private matters in which the parties are mutually interested, turn the conversation into the channel of public affairs, and make a casual remark the foundation of a newspaper report of much that was not said, and an exaggerated coloring of what was said, is the fault of the reporter, not of the gentleman. It is creditable must be left to each man's sense of honor. Those who know Judge Miller as well as we do will be slow to believe that he has used the harsh expressions attributed to him in regard to the Democratic party or to Mr. Tilden. He is not in the habit of using such language of any one, much less applying it to a large political body, among whom he numbers many of his most valued personal friends.

President of the Senate. We are gratified to see that Senator FERRY denies having claimed the right to count the vote for President and Vice-President or that the Senate would depart from its custom of attending in the hall of the House of Representatives to participate in the count. If there is to be any violent expedient employed through the President of the Senate we suppose that some other person will have to be appointed in Senator FERRY's place. We have the above contradiction on the authority of the Washington Union.

Too Early, but is it Prophectical? A Washington correspondent says that at the Democratic caucus of Tuesday the speakers were not aggressive but firm. The orators were determined to maintain their rights, to which the correspondent added—"if they had any." A hideous addendum. It is too easy to indulge any such doubt; but is it prophetic? We trust not.

The United States Senate Committee of Privileges and Elections, it is said, will inquire into the facts relating to alleged ineligible electors in North Carolina, Missouri, and New Jersey—all Tilden States. These Republicans are very ready to look into alleged frauds upon the honest side of the contest. They, however, feel uneasy about murdered Tilden States captured by military force and compelled to vote for HAYES. The murderers are not certain that the victims are dead, or that their work was faithfully performed. So they have been quite eager for their investigations of South Carolina, Florida, and Louisiana. Murderers are always troubled by fears that the dead will rise and plague them. They have their hands full with their many outrages.
