

The Primary Election. The primary election of Conservative nominees for the House of Delegates will take place this day.

The absorbing question, with Richmond especially, is the settlement of the State debt upon the basis of fair dealing and for the "PRESERVATION UNIMPAIRED OF THE TRADITIONAL NAME AND HONOR OF OUR MOTHER STATE."

So we should not think of sending any man to the Legislature who is not ready to support such measures of public economy and such laws for increasing the public resources as may be practicable.

We must now go for marshalling all the power and resources of the Commonwealth, that her honor may be maintained, and that the State pride which has always been our boast shall in no wise be dimmed and subdued.

In the Field. The course of politics during the present year has radically altered party relations and set afoot tendencies that are vexing political hacks fearfully, and that must consign a vast number of irreconcilable soreheads and marplots to the grave from which there can be no resurrection.

The war followed the triumph of what was called the Free-soil party. But that party had attracted to its banner all shades and descriptions of abolitionists, philanthropists, and enthusiasts.

It has long seemed to us that the nuisance of spitting upon the floor in American railways was one that demanded the most positive and rigidly-enforced remedy.

It is not a matter merely for ridicule and satire. The nuisance is a very serious grievance. Society ought to provide a remedy against it, as it might do by visiting upon vulgar tobacco-chewers, who have no more consideration than to offend everybody by their bad habits, the most severe reproof.

When the war was over the crazy radicals rioted in their triumph, and they were ever on hand to stimulate public malice and to urge on the policy of persecution, which proved to be that favored by Republican leaders, as the best for keeping the power in their hands and excluding the South from all participation in the government of the country.

But this condition could not last. President HAYES saw this. The nation must be at peace. There must be equality—there must be State autonomy—or liberty was chronic. That change which was indispensable to the President had the heroism to attempt to bring about.

He succeeded, and we have that order of things which was necessary to prolong the power of the war-party abolished, and in lieu thereof we have State autonomy, State equality, social peace, and sectional harmony.

Thus the Adulterate Cave is emptied. The convention there has broken up, and its component parts have withdrawn to their proper places in the social arena. Abolition is dead and so is free soil. There is no place for a free-soil party, and none for abolitionism. The zealots and madmen find that their occupations are gone, and they wander about in muddled mazes of futile isms.

But the great number of people who learned how to hate and never to forgive, whose passions were so ingrained into their natures that they cannot be eradicated, are doomed to irreconcilable opposition to the pacific policy of the Administration.

In an address to the voters of Rockbridge, Hon. John Letcher says: "Christian principle and Christian education teaches us that honest obligations, fairly assumed, are to be respected and honestly met; and no man so educated and so raised can in justice to himself and to the community, in which he lives seek to evade or escape its binding force."

SENATOR MORTON AND DR. BLISS.—Dr. Bliss, of this city, last night left for Indianapolis in response to a request of Senator Morton and family, who desire his advice and attention, although it is not said that any immediate danger to the Senator is apprehended.

The Norfolk Day-Book supposes that a State can be sued in its own courts, and that the judgment therein obtained could be enforced by the Supreme Court of the United States!

In an address to the voters of Rockbridge, Hon. John Letcher says: "Christian principle and Christian education teaches us that honest obligations, fairly assumed, are to be respected and honestly met; and no man so educated and so raised can in justice to himself and to the community, in which he lives seek to evade or escape its binding force."

It is the pacific policy of President HAYES that has brought about the progressing revolution. It is not the Democratic power—the principles at work belong to mankind, not to party at all.

It was, or should have been, plain to all that when the President inaugurated his policy it would certainly sit firm from the public councils the uncoincidental and over-bearing politicians, who cared not how the Constitution might be violated, and how much liberty was outraged, so that they administered the Government.

A PAINFUL REMOVAL.—It is rumored that private telegrams received here to-night report Mr. Morton in a precarious condition, Washington telegram—Baltimore American.

The new Turkish Ambassador to Paris is to receive instructions as to the terms on which Turkey will make peace if the Powers wish to mediate. All the troops in Constantinople are being sent to Trebizond in consequence of Mukhtar Pasha's defeat.

The Episcopal Convention has altered the composition of the Board of Trustees of the General Theological Seminary so as to allow each diocese a trustee for every eight clergymen. A report was adopted eulogistic of twenty-four members deceased since the last triennial convention.

Accounts received at Washington show that the wheat crop of this year is the largest that has ever been gathered in this country. Miss Alice Blaine, the daughter of Senator Blaine, was wounded on Saturday by the premature discharge of a toy pistol.

A most malignant cattle disease prevails in southern Russia, and in many villages not a single cow or ox remained alive. Bishop Dudley was announced to preach in Boston on Sunday.

themselves, all will be well. Names are nothing new. We want policy and measures. The country must hold to these and leave party and personal interests to follow.

The country never had so much to encourage it—so much to guard and protect from evil and passionate impulses. The best and ablest men should freely confer and combine for the preservation of the public good and the national harmony against all injury and all detriment.

A Fitting, or rather Spitting, Plan. A proposition is started for spitting-cars, and exporating-saloons for leading lines of travel. These are as much needed as smoking-cars. The vulgarity of spitting amber over the floors of railway-cars is monstrous.

We trust it is true that no country but America tolerates anything of this character. The exception is mortifying, but then it is gratifying that there is but one exception. The chief provocation to this excessive flow of saliva is the staple crop which forms so large a part of the export trade of the country.

It is used in all countries and very freely used in the most civilized lands; and yet the people in those lands do not make "beasts of themselves" by polluting the travelling apartments of railways until they almost rival the cattle-trains by their soiled condition.

In these days of trails to ladies dresses it is an abomination to see them dragged in the flood that inundates the ears. The saliva ejected by vulgar and heedless chewers will in a few hours travel spread over the floor numerous pools, whose outlines describe oceans and seas and rivers so wild that any tolerable student of geography can point out the lakes, and the Yellow sea, and the German ocean, and the Zyuder Zee, and the Winnipegsee, while the Mississippi, escorted by Reel-Foot lake, is heading for the door.

"Poor lady, sweet lady, what a sieve you endure in any effort to keep your feet and your skirts out of these liquid nuisances that gradually invade the floor! Neglect for a moment the care of holding those skirts, which should be ever clean, and down they drop into the sea of filth.

Mrs. PARRINGTON'S undertaking to keep out the sea were a light work compared to yours, dear passenger, to keep above and out of the vulgar invasion which persons pretending to be gentlemen often subject you to.

It has long seemed to us that the nuisance of spitting upon the floor in American railways was one that demanded the most positive and rigidly-enforced remedy. It is a matter of sufficient urgency for its offensiveness to justify the passage of a law to help the railway companies to protect their passengers.

In a civilized land every gentleman should put away his quid if he cannot keep it in his mouth without making a beastly circle around him. No man who spits his amber about him should be considered a gentleman, but should be made to change his seat to a car where all are "spitters," and where none would have the right to take offense. Cars for that purpose should be supplied with "scuppers" to drain off the flood to save those from drowning who slip in its "slidery" current.

Falling into the shocking Baltimore basin would be far preferable to a fall into the sea of "tobacco-juice." It is not a matter merely for ridicule and satire. The nuisance is a very serious grievance.

Society ought to provide a remedy against it, as it might do by visiting upon vulgar tobacco-chewers, who have no more consideration than to offend everybody by their bad habits, the most severe reproof. Such a man deserves not respect, and should be excluded from civil conventionality.

Surely there is some way of protecting the travelling public from one of the most shocking of nuisances. A Baseless Calumny. On Monday the 15th of October, at Harrisonburg, Rockingham county, Colonel R. A. RICHARDSON, of Albion, Smyth county, in a speech to the people of Rockingham county, is reported as saying, "The Richmond Dispatch, whose palms were soiled by the funding," &c. In this declaration Colonel RICHARDSON uttered a baseless falsehood.

This paper never supported the funding bill, nor did its editors publicly or privately ever say a word in its behalf. We do not mean to imply that a man who supported it thereby had his hands soiled; but certainly one who never favored it should be clearly exculpated from even suspicion. In these strange times, however, a man who is a lawyer and conceives himself fit to fill a high office in the State government undertakes, with no possible place in a public discourse, in any other days it was hardly possible for any man but a gentleman to expect elevation to such a position, and no man who held a conscientious assurance that he felt the slightest claim to such consideration would venture to utter a calumny such as that we have described.
