

General Mahone's Six Millions. In his brief note to us published in yesterday's Dispatch, Colonel Cameron says that the stock surrendered by the State in aid of Southside consolidation had none other than a nominal value except in the sanguine imagination of Governor Walker.

But that was not all the valuable property that was turned over to General Mahone by the Legislature in 1870. The State owned seven-per-cent. bonds of the Southside Railroad Company to the amount of $600,000.

These two items aggregate $6,380,000. Suppose the State had held on to them until now. But the State in 1870 owned $1,399,970 of stock in the Norfolk and Petersburg Railroad Company, and $141,371.82 (with interest) of bonds.

Here, then, we have: State stock in Virginia and Tennessee $2,800,000 Norfolk and Petersburg Railroad Company's stock 1,400,000 Norfolk and Petersburg stock 1,399,970 Add stock of Southside Railroad Company 600,000 Loan to Virginia and Tennessee Railroad Company and interest on same 1,455,000

We only claimed that six millions of dollars of the State's bonds could have been cancelled by a proper use of the above assets. General Mahone's management of the Atlantic, Mississippi and Ohio railroad may not have justified Governor Walker's sanguine expectations as to what could be realized out of the above-named assets of the Commonwealth; but how that line, which, as the reader knows, includes the Virginia and Tennessee, the Southside, and the Norfolk and Petersburg railroads, has prospered under its present management, let the Petersburg Appeal of yesterday tell.

Halstead's Suspicions. MURAT HALSTEAD is out in a long letter in the New York Herald, in which he justifies himself, or attempts to do so, for certain statements which he made some time ago in an interview with a reporter of that famous journal. Mr. HALSTEAD has no right to claim to know aught of the inside workings of the Cincinnati Convention. He is too well known as a bigoted Republican to have been entitled to any special courtesies at the hands of the Democrats.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant, JAMES H. CARBY. (To the colored HANCOCK and ENGLISH Club, Richmond, Va., W. H. BRANCO, president; J. B. T. CLARKE, secretary.)

dreamed of the nomination of HANCOCK on the first ballot of Thursday. On the contrary, it is in the highest degree improbable that they would have thrown their votes away on BARNWELL rather than give them to the successful aspirant, had they known who was to figure in this character. We take it for granted, therefore, that they knew beforehand nothing of the arrangements for the nomination of HANCOCK.

Well, HANCOCK was hardly nominated before he was whispered as to be the nominee of the English of Indiana. And ENGLISH is ENGLISH of Indiana.

However much or however little foundation there may be for Mr. HALSTEAD'S shrewd guessing, he will hardly succeed in causing a coldness in Indiana between the friends of McDONALD and those of HENRICKS. Indiana is reasonably sure for the Democratic ticket—just as sure as Virginia, we are inclined to think. We agree with what HALSTEAD says as to HENRICKS'S dog-in-the-manger spirit; but we don't concur in the opinion that the McDONALD men will desert ENGLISH on that account, nor the opinion that the HENRICKS men have any idea of being guilty of a second act of injustice—this time to WILLIAM H. ENGLISH.

P. S. Since the above was penned, we have come across a report of an interview with Senator McDONALD on the subject of Mr. HALSTEAD'S letter. It reads as to one point as follows: Reporter: It is charged that the defeat of Mr. HENRICKS was due to a Tilden combination against him in retaliation for his alleged plotting against Mr. Tilden. Senator McDONALD: That is foolish; there were no Tilden men in Indiana. We entered the Convention like other men and took our chances, and we are very well satisfied with the result.

Let the reader know that the complexion of this Charlotte-county meeting was quite the following: The Chair appointed the following committee: Captain John R. Bailey, Captain H. G. Franke, A. B. Crawford, Esq., and Calvin Hamner (colored).

Colored Reinforcements. The colored HANCOCK and ENGLISH Club of Richmond have received the following letter from a prominent colored man in Shepherdstown, Jefferson county, West Va. The New York Times and the Tribune, and the Cincinnati Commercial must not swear too hard over the Democratic majority in Alabama until they have read this letter and the address which we published yesterday from the colored HANCOCK and ENGLISH Club of Richmond.

Dear Brethren, I am very glad to hear that you have organized a Hancock and English Club in Richmond, the capital of Virginia. We have organized here, and I have been elected State lecturer for this State, and will be glad to visit you when it is convenient and address your Club and the colored people generally. I find, in conversing with the Republicans, that they don't intend that we shall have a Democratic President if we elect one. I fear we are going to have some trouble next fall, and I think the negroes should take an active part in seeing justice done.

annual message and accompanying documents of the Mayor of Richmond to the City Council for the fiscal year ending January 31, 1880.

The Harrisonburg Convention to nominate a Readjuster candidate for Congress met yesterday, and no doubt nominated JOHN PAUL. That is what the Convention was called to do, and we take it for granted that it has done its appointed work. Our telegraphic columns ought to tell whether it has or not.

Will the Cincinnati Dispatch please bunt up the Richmond Dispatch of August 5th, and read the address of the colored HANCOCK men of Richmond to the men of their race? It will do you good, Mr. Commercial, and may relieve you of a nightmare. The negroes of Virginia are not all in danger of being done to death by the Democrats.

Editors Dispatch: It must be the desire of every Virginian outside the ranks of the Republican party that the electoral vote of his State be secured to General Hancock as the staunch and intelligent candidate for President. To this end every such person must feel an abiding interest in the course of events here at home, and must hope for an early removal of that uncertainty that now shrouds the State with such oppressive gloom.

LOGAN'S BLOOD-COOLING AND ILLINOIS ANSWERED FOR ON THE NATIONAL AND POSSIBLY ON THE STATE TICKET. (New York Times, yesterday.) Mr. Bradley B. Smalley returned from Vermont yesterday, and was busy at the headquarters of the National Democratic Committee assigning speakers to various points and perfecting his list of speakers available.

Mr. Pennington, who had been charged with the duty of looking after the prisoners, was ordered to charge the Federal lines at a point where they held a small redoubt which it was very important for us to capture. The undertaking was a desperate one, but the gallant Confederates charged on at the word, and with a bravado of the face of a conqueror.

FROM TWO DOUBTFUL STATES. More Outlawry in Scott. (Epistol News.) A travelling artist at Osborn's Ford, in Scott county, writes us that on Sunday evening the 25th ultimo, at Blackwell's mill, two large negroes, one of whom was a young fellow named Emery, all very dissipated characters, mobbed Mr. Blackwell's miller, named Stapleton, inflicting on him with rocks and clubs a number of wounds.

It is stated in the London Echo that the writing-table which the Queen commanded to be made out of the timbers of the Resolute has been finished, and will shortly be presented to the President of the United States as a memorial of the courtesy and loving kindness which dictated the offer of the Resolute. The table, it is said, will form a part of the permanent furniture of the White House.
