News Notes.

Alaska is to have a territorial government, including a governor and courts, and ambitious politicians who will expect to go to congress some day.

The remains of the artist named J. W. Atterback who went over Sioux Falls rapids last week, as mentioned by us, has been found, his head and face much mutilated from contact with signs. The remains have been taken to Iowa, his home, for burial.

Fargo Sun: James Welch, foreman of a granite quarry in Sioux Falls, has been held in $500 bonds for beating his wife, Sunday afternoon. She is in a precarious condition and may die. She had been ill, and Welch hammered her because she was recovering. He attempted to hang her, but her screams brought assistance.

Washington, 16: Henry W. Oliver, Jr., of Pittsburg, who was a member of the tariff commission, has written a letter to Morrison, chairman of the ways and means, criticizing Hewitt's tariff bill. He says it leans so favorably toward Trenton, N. J., so far as the metal schedule is concerned, that it might be entitled a bill for the benefit of Cooper, Hewitt & Co.

Columbia, Ill. 16: A double tragedy occurred at Smith's Landing, a few miles from Columbia, this morning. Monroe Gray rented a farm near Smith's landing from William Ditch of Columbia. This morning Ditch visited Gray on business, and after some conversation Gray went out to look after stock. Returning shortly after, he found his wife and Ditch in bed together. He immediately drew a pistol and shot and killed both. Gray surrendered to the authorities and was taken to Waterloo, the county seat.

Minneapolis is to have one of the greatest, if not the greatest musical treats, that has ever been had in the northwest. In speaking of the affair, the St. Paul Dispatch says: The managers of the State Musical Festival to be held at the University Coliseum in Minneapolis on the 10th, 11th and 12th of June, appear to have left nothing undone to render the event a perfect success in every way. In the first place they have secured the entire outfit, seven artists and orchestra, which are creating such a furor in the east at Mr. Thompson's festival, including the peerless Nilsson and the greatest trio of German artists, Materna, Ninkelmann and Scaria, whom Wagner pronounced the greatest delineator of his exacting works.

Col. Fred Grant said in an interview with a reporter: "When I first came to this city from Chicago I had about $75,000 in cash. I was introduced to Mr. Ward, and after a short acquaintance, he asked me to join in a speculative venture, which turned out successful. After that he proposed partnership, and eventually my brother and myself entered into a partnership agreement. It was represented that Ward and Fish were worth $250,000 each. Ward had charge of the books and sale of the firm, and in fact everything was entrusted to him by other members of the firm." Col. Grant closed with this remark: "I admit that I have been a fool, as also has my father, the general, and my brother, and there is nothing too strong to say against Ward at this moment."

Waterloo, 13.—A sensational divorce suit is on the docket of circuit court now in session here. M. J. Reed formerly a prominent stock dealer in this city, sued for a divorce from his wife, charging her with unfaithfulness. Last Friday night Mrs. Reed and a strange man went to Waverly and stopped at the Waverly house. Soon afterward they retired to the same room, and about 10 o'clock at night the city marshal appeared on the scene and arrested Mrs. Reed, and in order to get released she made a full written confession over her signature. It then transpired that the man who was with her, a Cedar Rapids detective, was employed to get up evidence for the prosecution, and he had arranged with the marshal to make the arrest at the proper time. Mrs. Reed's statement will probably be used in evidence when the case comes up, if it is not settled by agreement.

One evening while Gen. Grant was entertaining some friends at home Ward called, and, being introduced to the general's guests, made himself very agreeable. Just before the young speculator took his departure, he called Gen. Grant to one side and said: "General, I took a little flyer on the street this afternoon, outside of the regular business, and cleared $16,000. Of course I did it for the firm, but it is not necessary that it should go on the books. It would only cumber them up, and really is not enough of importance. It was a cash transaction, and I brought up your share," handing the general something over $3,000. Mr. Ward, it is said, was in the habit of taking occasional "flyers" of that kind just by way of amusement, and his unbusinesslike partners took his word for it that his transactions were not of sufficient importance to "go on the books."

Special from Charlestown, West Virginia, 17th instant, has this to say of the disaster that followed an attempt at elopement: Thursday night Miss Ellen Ferrier, a great belle in the Green Briar country, eloped with John Briggs, a handsome, but worthless fellow. The father and brother of the young lady pursued and reached the river just as Briggs pushed his boat over. Leaping into another boat, the father and son rapidly overtook the other. Miss Ferrier in attempting to get into the bow overturned the boat, and she and Briggs went into the water. Briggs was no swimmer, and could not aid her, but her brother leaped in, and in so doing overturned the boat he was in and cast the father into the torrent.

The shrieks of the girl never reached the ears of her lover, who sank and rose no more. The brother succeeded in saving his sister, but Mr. Ferrier was drowned as well as Briggs.

Pioneer Press, 16: Between 8 and 9 o'clock last evening Dr. Oscar Clark, living on Chicago avenue in West St. Paul, committed suicide. He told his wife to lie down with their two little children and try to go to sleep. Shortly after she had got into bed he woke her up and told her he was bleeding to death, and by the time she arose and turned up the light he was gasping his last.

While lying on a lounge, with a pair of shears he cut a gash on the inside of his left leg, just below the groin, about three inches cross-wise, severing a large artery. Dr. Clark was a graduate of Ann Arbor, Mich., and was about forty-three years of age. He came to St. Paul last November, and removed to the West side in December. He was very poor, and out of health, suffering from some disorder of the stomach, to relieve the pain of which he has been compelled to take opium for some time past. He was unsuccessful in building up a practice during his residence here, and was compelled to earn a livelihood by sawing wood, while his wife took washing. They were living in a room about 8x10 feet, and everything about it indicated poverty. He was the son of a successful physician, and was himself well educated and used to comfort, luxury and refined surroundings. The deed was undoubtedly the result of despair. An inquest will be held on his remains to-day at 12 o'clock.

A Valley City special of the 18th instant, makes public a rather large defalcation, on the part of Treasurer A. M. Pease of Barnes county: Two or three months ago the Valley City Times charged that a shortage of $14,000 existed in the Barnes county treasury, and that the funds had been misappropriated or misapplied by Treasurer A. M. Pease. The treasurer's friends and adherents claimed that this was a political dodge to influence the fall election. To substantiate its position the Times published facts and figures specific and explicit, and public feeling veered about, culminating in an investigation ordered by the county commissioners. In January last they called for a settlement. The treasury presented a statement showing a balance due the county of about $11,000, to cover which official produced $2,000 and a certificate of deposit for about $9,000. It was suspected then and now known that such certificate was fraudulent, and probably obtained by misrepresentation. Last evening the commissioners completed another investigation, aided by a committee composed of Messrs. J. H. Holmes and D. McDonald, the latter city treasurer. This committee examined the treasurer's books and reported a shortage of $24,376.86, and a rigid search discloses but $228 in bank to the credit of the treasurer. Mr. Pease is not at his home in Sanborn, nor in the county, so far as can be learned, but is supposed to be absent in Iowa his former home, making endeavors to raise money to make good the shortage. On finding the shortage this evening the county board adjourned, but notified the deputy treasurer that the deficiency must be made good by Monday morning at 10 o'clock, or papers will be asked for ordering the treasurer's arrest on the charge of embezzlement of public funds. Treasurer Pease's bond is $60,000, on which Messrs. E. Russell and Parky House of Valley City, the Barnes county bank, Lenham & Kiser, Lenham & Co., and several others of Sanborn's substantial men, and the county will lose nothing whether or not it be a defalcation. The shortage exists in the school fund to the amount of $16,000, and is about evenly divided in the other funds. Mr. Pease's reputation for honesty has always been good, but it is thought that through the influence of false friends, gambling and speculation, he has been led into embarrassment if not ruin.

Dispatch: Gen. Grant looms up as the greatest soldier and the poorest financier of the nineteenth century. His immediate presidential successor could give him points in the great art of saving.

The Hope Pioneer says: "It is not a startling surprise to learn that Miss Ella Wheeler has at last married a man." We agree with you in that respect, Mr. Pioneer. Now if Miss Ella had married a woman it might have been worth remarking.—[Clipper.]

Roller skates are dangerous things among young folks. Read this from Rockford, Illinois: "Miss Maggie, daughter of J. A. Cotton, agent of the Milwaukee road, left home Saturday on the Chicago and Iowa train for the purpose of meeting and marrying H. S. Hume, a professional roller skater, formerly of Rockford, now of Maquoketa, Iowa. Friends learned of her intentions and informed her father, who followed on the next train. Some Rockford parties notified the couple by telegraph, and as the father has not returned, it is thought he has failed to find them. The young lady is a popular member of society. Her father has threatened to shoot Hume if he ever comes near his daughter, and when he left in pursuit he made similar threats.

Red Wing Advance: The marriage of Miss Ella Wheeler, the Wisconsin poetess, has given the writings something to write about, and we may expect to see a good deal of course humor printed about an event which seems to us should be treated with that delicacy with which respectable persons are in the habit of discussing affairs to which a lady is a party. The fact that Miss Wheeler is the author of considerable lurid poetry affords no excuse for the indecent ridicule to which she has been subjected, and which has broken out afresh since the announcement of her marriage with Mr. Wilcox, a very estimable young gentleman from New England. It is quite likely that some who have basely misconstrued the sentiment of Miss Wheeler's verse imagine that she is devoid of that refinement, purity and delicacy of feeling which constitute the highest beauty of intellectual womanhood; these persons are grievously at fault. None but a woman of the severest purity and delicacy of feeling could write such poems as Miss Wheeler has given us; none else would dare do so. We regret the rude jests which are emitted at this gentle lady's expense, but we feel that she is too far above them to be pestered by their stings, or to suffer their evil doers to interrupt the flow of her vivid but graceful muse.

Milwaukee Special: This morning a young woman not more than seventeen or eighteen years old, attired in a Mother Hubbard black silk dress, appeared in the court house and inquired for the mayor. She was prepossessing in appearance, and was apparently in great trouble. A police officer escorted her into the mayor's office, and she related to him a story of sorrow and shame. She stated that she arrived in the city from Brooklyn, N. Y., where her parents, who, according to her, are wealthy and respectable people, reside. About seven months ago she was betrayed by a young man, whose name she would not disclose, and, anxious to hide her shame, she fled from her home and finally reached this city, being anxious to get as far away from her parents as possible. She expected to be ill in a short time, and desired to obtain admission into the county hospital. She absolutely refused to give her name. An arrangement was made to have her taken into the hospital, but she suddenly changed her mind and wanted to know if she could not enter some private institute where care could be taken of her during her sickness. The officers believed her story, and are temporarily caring for her. The young woman is of gentle birth, and there is every indication that she has been reared in luxury.

A correspondent of Carrington, Foster county, writing to the Jamestown Alert, says: Another angel has fallen from grace. Rumor has it that one of our apparently most happily married women has left with a "handsome man." The story goes that she married her present husband against her will her heart being in the keeping of another. That ever since, the other has followed her from place to place and finally persuaded her to elope. You correspondents saw her board the train the other morning as from anxiety as any other one we ever saw. What a curse to society such mortals are! Where was her heart? Where was her feelings, where the vengeance of an avenging justice that she could in broad daylight leave home, husband and prettily light baby to go with a libidinous home destroyer to gratify the salient propensity of his frail and wicked nature. For months they have met and cooed and cried together at various places and now they have taken the fatal step. The dishonored husband came to town to meet his wife on Saturday evening, but she came not. Instead, he received a note telling him she was coming back no more, and for him to send her trunk. He busted the trunk open and found scores of Dakota Religious Items.

A Congregational church will be erected in Pukwana this summer.

A Lutheran church is being built in the Mound district, Clay county.

New Rockford Baptists are moving in the matter of church organization.

The unfinished Catholic church at Aurora was blown down one night last week.

Religious services were held in Windsor, Stutsman county, last Sunday for the first time.

Rev. Father Sheehan, of Walshtown, has gone to Boston to bring sixty orphan children to Dakota.

Services were held in the new Methodist church at Flandreau for the first time last Sunday.

The Congregationalists of Carrington will soon begin the erection of a church building to cost about $1,200.

An M. E. church society was organized in Harrod, Hyde county, recently, with a membership of ten.

Rev. Mr. Stephens, of Rochester, New York, will be invited to take pastoral charge of the Fargo Baptist church.

Rev. S. G. Appleby has resigned his position as pastor of the Baptist church at Pomina, and is now at Carrington, in Foster county.

Rev. Henry Todd, of Pierre, is preparing a series of discourses on Congregationalism—its principles, its history, and what it is doing.

A Presbyterian church was organized at Alexandria the 14th with fourteen members. A house of worship will be built this summer.

A new Methodist church at Minot, Wah county, is nearly completed. It will cost $2,000. A new

Catholic church is also going up at Minot.

While E. P. Webb was worshipping in the Methodist church at Huron a few days ago, a thief drove away his team, worth $300.

Rev. Davis has accepted the call of the Baptists of Hamilton and Bathgate, in Pembina county, and will officiate at both places during the summer.

Lisbon, Ransom county, has four resident clergymen—Baptist, Catholic, Presbyterian and Methodist, also three churches and a fourth in contemplation.

The Huron Presbyterian church numbers one hundred and ten members. It is the largest and only self-sustaining church of that denomination in southern Dakota.

The Forestburg Presbyterians hold services in a vacant saloon building. Quite a large sum has been subscribed for a house of worship and it will probably soon be under way.

The ladies of Trinity (Episcopal) church guild, at Watertown, gave a fancy dress carnival in the roller skating rink recently, which was a very unique and enjoyable affair, as well as profitable.

Rev. G. W. Huntly, general missionary of the Baptist church for northern Dakota, has been in New Rockford, Foster county, with a view of at once establishing a church of his denomination.

Rev. Geo. B. Stevens, of Watertown, N. Y., once Presbyterian minister at Bismarck, and son of the late Rev. Stevens, at Fargo, has been called to be president of the Presbyterian university of North Dakota.

Columbia Dispatch: The union of the churches—Congregational and Presbyterian—was finally consummated on Saturday last, the new organization to be known as the Congregational church. The new organization is composed of nearly sixty members, who are determined to work in unison for the propagation of gospel truths and the building up of a flourishing and influential Christian church in our community.
