News Notes.
Henry Villard is on his way to Europe for a brief visit in Germany.

Press and Dakotian: Wahpeton will spend $1,500 on the its streets this season.

E. A. Henderson, an old time newspaper man, now postal clerk between Bismarck and Glendive, spent yesterday in Fargo.

The Manitoba people state that they will have their new branch running from Portland in Trail to Northwood in the west part of Grand Forks county by the last of July.

The town supervisors of Glyndon, Minnesota give notice that they will enforce the penalty, from $5 to $50, upon parties who don't comply with the law in regard to the extermination of wild mustard.

Fargo, June 28.—The North Dakota Baptist association has adopted resolutions establishing a Baptist college at Tower City. A fine building will be erected and a first-class denominational school opened. Measures for construction will be taken at once.

Cincinnati Times: That joke about General Logan's method of handling the English language had become stale four or five years ago. It is nauseating now. As a matter of fact few public men of the day have the advantage of Logan in regard to grammar.

The Dakota exhibit at the New Orleans exposition will be under the personal charge, there and en route, of Aleck McKenzie, of Bismarck. Efforts will be made to secure a string of cereals, grasses, (natural and cultivated), minerals, and other productions of the big territory such as has never before been even attempted.

The effect of the riot on Cincinnati justice is seen in the depleted cells of the jail. Within three months over forty people have been taken to the penitentiary. Two murderers have been sentenced to be hanged, two are awaiting sentence, one is awaiting a life sentence, and three for manslaughter. There are but twenty-three prisoners awaiting trial.

It is reported that a prominent cattle king of Cheyenne has become hopelessly smitten with Mrs. Langtry. He followed her from Cheyenne to Salt Lake, and occupied a prominent proscenium box during her appearance at the theater and, says a local paper, the frequent glances and smiles he received from "Miss Hardcastle" showed she fully understood the situation.

Waverly, Tenn., June 28.—For some time past Wilson Larkins has been annoying W. H. Owens by making insinuations against the latter's wife. To-day Larkins displayed a handkerchief near Owen's store, stating that it had been presented to him by Owen's wife. Owens overheard him and came out of the store with a shotgun. Larkins fled, but returned with a revolver and dared Owens to come out. Owens did so, with his shotgun, firing at Larkins, who died in a few moments. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

A $7,000,000 suit has been opened in the United States circuit court against the city of Duluth. In 1854, through a treaty between the United States and the La Pointe band of Chippewa Indians, a man by the name of Armstrong came in possession of 700 acres of land which is now in the heart of Duluth. An undivided half of this he sold to Fred Prentiss, and the remaining half he sold to Cash & Kelly of Duluth and J. M. Gillman of St. Paul. Prentiss never conveyed his undivided half in the land, and now seeks to recover it. The case is an interesting one, and the result is looked for with considerable interest.

Madison, Wisconsin, 26th ult: Allan Worth, a dissolute man aged thirty years, living at Baraboo, married a pretty but weak-minded girl of seventeen years, named Ableman, about three weeks ago, and immediately started on a wedding trip down the Northwestern road to Howard, prostituting his bride for pay to railway men along the line. Last evening he returned to Baraboo, and at 10 o'clock he was taken from his house by an indignant mob of masked men, making a most desperate resistance, and treated to a cost of tar and feathers, his head and feet alone being spared. He was then hunted from the town like a wild beast, and stark naked, sought refuge in the wild bluffs surrounding Devil's lake, where he is now in hiding. The affair created intense excitement, but the citizens generally of Baraboo justify the act. Both Worth and wife are well connected, the latter being a niece of Col. Ableman, now deceased, for whom Ableman's Station was named.

Helena special 20th ult: John Edwards, brakeman on the Utah & Northern train carrying Cole's college, was shot through the head while the train was leaving Deer Lodge yesterday. Murderer not known. Five of Cole's men arrested here-to-day on suspicion of being implicated in the crime. The railroad men talk of lynching if the murderer is found.

The Lancaster, (Grant Co., Wis.) Teller states that two little boys, aged 4 and 6 years, respectively, sons of John Dobson, of Ellenboro, were attacked by a large tomcat while on their way to school, and would have fared badly, but for the interference of a daughter of Joseph Mathews, who appeared on the grounds with a club and a dog, just as the cat had one of the lads down and was making furious efforts to get at his face and throat.

Verndale, Minnesota, special 27th ult: James Carman's house was burned to the ground last night. Mr. Carman, wife and little girl were sleeping up-stairs. When the parents awoke the house was a burning mass. Both rushed to save the children down stairs, and they forgot to rescue the little girl that was sleeping with them. The oldest boy about ten years of age fell through the ceiling into the pantry and managed to escape. Mr. Carman procured a ladder and endeavored to reach the other two. He succeeded in reaching one, but the other was burned to a crisp, as was the little girl. The child rescued through the window by the father cannot live. The oldest boy will recover. Nothing but the bones of the two remaining in the house could be found.

The New York Banker Style.
From the Merchant Traveler.—A large and pompous man walked into a Philadelphia hotel, and after registering he was given a room.

"Where is it?" he inquired.
"On the fifth floor," responded the clerk politely.
"Thanks," he said, sarcastically, "I don't want to go to heaven, just now."
"There's no danger, sir."
"Don't be too flip, young man; I won't take a room so high up."
"It is a pleasant one, sir, and there is an elevator."
"Well, sir, I'd have you know I want a second-floor front room. I'm President of a New York bank, sir, I'd have you know."
"What?" replied the clerk, starting back.
"I'm President of a New York bank, sir," he repeated loftily, thinking he had knocked his man out.
"Ah, indeed? Here, John," to the porter, "call the police."

The Timber Culture Law.
This amendment, by the Bismarck Tribune will be right if the practice of selling out to parties who will enter in as a pre-emption or homestead is stopped.
"One of the best things congress could do for Dakota would be to provide that a tree claim shall always be a tree claim and not turned into a pre-emption or homestead. As the law now is, the tree claim business is a fraud and does no good. Trees are wanted and can be had by a proper law on the subject.—[St. Paul Globe.]

The timber culture act should not be abolished, as is now contemplated by the bill before congress, but amended, so that to be qualified to hold a tree claim one must be an actual resident of the township in which he has the claim, and comply with the provisions of the law. There certainly ought to be some inducement offered to tree cultivation, and the present law, with slight modification, would be just the thing.—[Bismarck Tribune.]

BLAINE & LOGAN.
A Golden Opportunity for Agents to Make Money.
Mr. H. J. Ramsdell, of Washington, the lifelong friend and confidant of Hon. James G. Blaine, has just issued an ably written and complete biography of the Republican candidate for the presidency. The remarkable career of the plucky soldier, Gen. John A. Logan, has also been written in graphic style by his friend, Ben. Perley Poore. And these two able works have been combined into one huge volume of 650 pages, beautifully bound in silk cloth. The book also contains brief biographical sketches of all former presidents, the constitution of the United States, the voter's Vade Mecum or hand-book, a beautiful steel engraved portrait of Mr. Blaine and Mr. Logan, and pictures of many other historical and prominent men. This entire work is sold for $2.00 and $2.50, according to the style of binding.

Secret of Judge West's Oratory.
Chicago Tribune: "Who is that sickly-looking man over there—the one with the queer-looking eyes?" inquired a passenger on the Pan-handle, the other night. "Don't you know him? Why, that's Judge West, the blind man eloquent, of Ohio. He's on his way to Chicago, where he will second the nomination of Blaine, for the presidency. He looks like a dying man, but when he gets up before an audience he fairly beams with fire and shines with electric points. I'll betcher if he nominates Blaine he'll start a swelling in the hearts of the delegates and spectators that'll crowd up into their throats and force out the awfulest yell you ever heard. The judge keeps up his vigorous style all through a long speech. Even when he's so weak he can hardly stand on his legs his oratory is as stalwart as ever. I often wondered how he did it, but never found out until one night at a meeting I sat on the platform behind him. When he got a little weak, and it looked as if he'd have to give up and sit down, he reached back his hand in which he had his kerchief. His son—that's him there now; he's always with his father—placed on the screw-top of a pint flask with a just good whisky in it. The old man raised it to his lips, and while pretending to wipe his mouth and nose swallowed the tonic. It was done as neat as a pin, and no one in the audience caught on. When ever his father would begin to fail young West would get another swig ready, and it would set the old man going again strong as ever. He always does this when he makes a long speech, even his temperance speeches. Oh, he's a good one, I tell you."

The Cholera in France.
Marseilles, June 30.—Five deaths occurred from cholera last night. Capt. Bellant, of the navy, when his wife was seized with the cholera, committed suicide. M. Rochard, chief of the naval health department, declares that the cholera was not brought to France by any transport with troops from the East. Investigations prove the disease was brought from Tonquin, but the sailors of the fleet are indignant at being charged with the responsibility of bringing it over.

The navy department is scouring and fumigating the troop ships that have arrived at Toulon. The local authorities are doing all that can be done to fight the disease. The city looks as if it was in a state siege. Patrols and guards hurry about the streets; wagons filled with disinfectants are dragged about through the thoroughfares, and nurses wearing hospital badges go from house to house. Each ward in the city has a staff of doctors told off for special attention to its wants, and the authorities are making great efforts to stamp out the disease. Trade is paralyzed and many stores are closed. The air is thick with smoke from the many fires burning. All doubts about the nature of the disease are now at an end, and it is admitted on all sides that it is the Asiatic cholera. It is now feared the epidemic will have to run its course, but it is hoped that it can be prevented from spreading.

Philadelphia Times: "Is it so, Mr. Ashmead, that you once helped take Garibaldi prisoner?" Mr. L. P. Ashmead, who is as quiet looking a gentleman as could be found, removed his eye-glasses, and balancing them for a few moments between his finger and thumb as if to collect his thoughts, remarked: "Oh yes, it was when I was in the navy, on the congress. It was on the Rio de la Plata, off the harbor of Montevideo, on a Sunday in September in the year 1844. Garibaldi was a river pirate then, and he and his men were engaged in the massacre of the sherman who used to come out to get food for the besieged town, which had a Buenos Ayrean squadron in front of it and a large force on the land side. It was a sickening sight to see the bodies of these poor fishermen, as I often have floating by with their throats cut like slaughtered sheep. The Garibaldians showed no quarter, and sent the bodies afloat in this way to intimidate others. Well, about daylight on the Sunday in question the officer on the deck of the Congress noticed a small schooner, with a lot of red-shirted, armed men on deck, chasing some fishing boats. The fishermen were making for a merchant bark, into which the men on the pirate craft fired a volley. Our first lieutenant, Browning, immediately dispatched a boat and found that the bark was the Rosalba of New York, and that the shots from the schooner had struck her. On this information all hands were called on deck, and after some shots and a short chase schooner was captured. This action incidently brought on a sort of general engagement with the Buenos Ayran fleet, but we sailed in and captured all their ships one after another, four in number. The Italians, including Garibaldi, who was a simple adventurer, remaining on board the Congress until Nov. 21, when, by order of Commodore Turner, they were released, along with their schooner, which was the Carlo. Few of us who kept guard over that rough, dirty looking lot of pirates ever supposed that one of them would rise to such heroic fame."
