MOORETON MENTION

A. Hodel, who has been working at some heating and plumbing jobs at Mooreton says the citizens of that place held two secret meetings and decided to order one of the big German Krupp siege guns and bombard our new courthouse if they don't get some kind of a state institution after the legislature meets in Bismarck. M. Chernick, who served as Austrian soldier, ordered an aeroplane and will lead the attack when Stephen Rudawick, who marched with Napoleon against Moscow in 1812 as artilleryman and Gabriel Hingler and others will attend to the big canon. They will telephone to A. Hodel the day before they make the attack, so he will have time to get down in the cellar and to order a case, so he won't need to suffer from thirst, as he is well liked in this part of the country.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Senior class held a meeting last Wednesday at which senior rings were chosen. A Halloween party was given Saturday night by the "Kantagree Club" at the Peterson home on 8th street, in honor of the Junior and Senior boys. The rooms were artistically decorated with Halloween suggestions as hats, witches, black cats, etc. All agree that the evening was an enjoyable one. The Psychology class is doing duty in the grade building this week. The new Chemistry apparatus has arrived and the class is anxious to learn how to compound "instantaneous combustion." Election day brings us a holiday. W—stands for work which is hard to do. But in case of necessity we will for you. A—is for Austford, who is stiff with the marks: Some have decided they are for sharks. H—is for Harriet, who sits on the throne. One glance from her eye makes each Freshie groan. P—is for patience, the teachers have that. Just make a noise and you'll soon hear a rap. E—is for English, which I love so well. That I study it, till long after twelve. T—is for trouble, it's easy to find if you wish to avoid it the teachers you mind.

O—is for orchestra, fiddle-dee-dee. They played last Friday at half past three. N—is for newspapers, which tell us no lies. And after we've read them, to kill flies. H—is for high marks, we all like to get. But that is a stage I haven't reached yet. I—is for Ida, whose work is no joke. She teaches us English as she can be spoke. G—is for greatness, our class does possess. And it is necessary, we all must confess. H—is for honor roll, this school has won. And the number on it increased one by one. S—is for Snyder, the mathematician. She juggles with figures just like a magician. C—is for courage, which each must obtain. In order to appear once and be called again. H—is for History, a senior subject this season. Invented to puzzle our minds beyond reason. O—is for order, we have in the hall. When sometimes disturbed, you'll hear a voice call. O—Stands for Ole, our algebra shark. And occasionally evenings she goes for a lark. L—is for Lillian, the cooking teacher. She has a mass of golden brown hair.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Mastoiditis.
Mastoiditis is a dangerous disease, and the importance of detecting it in its earliest stages must never be overlooked. Delay means a fearful operation or death. Mastoiditis is recognized by pressing the hard, ridge-like bone behind the ear. Tenderness there, especially if combined with a running ear, is an almost certain proof of mastoiditis. It is always wise to consult a physician when trouble starts in the ear.

INDIRECT LIGHTING.

The New System Which Uses the Ceiling as a Diffuser.
The "indirect" system of lighting was invented about five years ago by an illuminating engineer in Chicago, who, while experimenting to find something that would diffuse light and yet keep it away from the eyes, tried turning the shades on his fixtures upside down. The effect led him to see the possibilities of using the ceiling as a diffuser of light and resulted in his working out the indirect method. In this fixture of a cup or bowl like shape are used, hung from the ceiling by chains or rods. The container is entirely opaque, either of metal or some metalized substance that prevents any light from coming through and forces it against the ceiling by means of powerful reflectors with which the container is lined. In some types the container has a highly glazed

WHEN THE PUNKIN'S IN THE PIE

(With apologies to J. Whitcomb Riley)
Written for the Times
When the frost is on the punkin and the punkin's in the pie,
An' the ponds is black with mallards an' the geese is flyin' high,
Then I takes my good old shotgun an' go down along the pass,
Where I hide among the willows an' among the prairie grass,
Till I zits 'em home an' dress 'em—O my goodness sakes alive,
What a dinner I'm expectin' when the ducks begin to fry.
When the frost is on the punkin and the punkin's in the pie,
There is somethin' appetizin' in the crispy atmosphere,
When the harvest days is over an' the ducks an' geese appear,
When the smoke begins its curlin' from the kitchen chimney tops,
An' the farmers are a-countin' up the profits on their crops,
An' the winter days a-comin', with his months of leisure time,
Then it makes a feller wanter put his thols in rustic rhyme,
An' he feels like living always an' to never want to die.
When the frost is on the punkin and the punkin's in the pie,
When the wood's all in the woodshed an' the cabbage in the cave,
An' all snugly in the cellar are the apples that we save,
Fillin' up the barr'ls an' baskets, an' a lot more on the floor,
An' the haystack an' pertators, an' no tellin' how much more,
An' the haybarn jist a bulkin' an' the coal all in the bin,
An' a heap o' beets an' turnips an' termaters comin' in,
There's a lot o' satisfaction the you know as well as I.
When the frost is on the punkin and the punkin's in the pie,
When the leaves around are fallin' an' the air is full of haze,
Like it used to be so often in the good old airy days,
When the pastor's gittin' shorter an' the grass is turnin' brown,
When the woods is losin' color an' then we want to come to town,
An' to haul out all the fuel an' to sit it in the bin,
An' to git a little lumber jist to fence the cattle in—
O, it's then us country fellers feel so happy we could fly.
When the frost is on the punkin an' the punkin's in the pie.

enamel lining which acts as a reflector. By this method the light is diffused evenly over an entire room, lighting up the corners and enabling every one in the room to see equally well. The effect of this kind of lighting is interesting to watch. There are no puckered brows, no strained look on the faces of people who are reading or working in a room so illuminated. The eyes and nerves have involuntarily relaxed, and a feeling of well being and repose that must be experienced to be appreciated takes the place of the high strung, overwrought, nervous state induced by glaring, unshaded "direct" lights.—World's Work.

OLD TIME BASEBALL.

When the Athletics Averaged Thirty-eight Runs a Game.
The present Athletics are supposed to be the strongest attacking machine ever sent to the field. Before awarding them the laurel suppose we turn to the Athletics of 1900-1971. In excavating into the dope George Moreland has discovered that this old machine in its 405 match games averaged 38.30 runs to the bat—that it averaged fifty runs to the game no less than eighty-nine times; that it piled up more than 100 runs on ten occasions—and that in its 405 championship games it scored 15,353 to 5,349 for its opponents. The record of that club was 351 victories and 54 defeats. What we can't quite understand is the fifty-four defeat part of it. But, judging from these statistics, hitting the baseball is something of a Philadelphia institution. The habit seems to have become fixed. Small wonder with such a buoyant and elastic start.—Grantland Rice in Collier's Weekly.

TRAPPING ELEPHANTS.

In India Tame Animals Aid in Capturing the Wild Ones.
In view of the vast strength possessed by full grown elephants, it seems at first sight almost incredible that they can be captured in herds and quickly subdued to the will of their masters. At the present time, in Mysore, the regular method of capturing wild elephants is for a large number of natives to go into the jungle, some mounted on tamed elephants and many on foot, and to make a great noise and bullabalo, which results in driving herds of the wild elephants into stockades, or often into ponds of water, which have previously been surrounded on all sides, except at the approaches, by immensely strong palisades. As soon as the herd is cornered the passages that had been left open are securely closed, and then the trained elephants are brought into play to cajole and subdue the perplexed prisoners.

In India elephants are no longer captured, as they still are in Africa, by means of huge pitfalls in the ground. In these traps they are often seriously injured or killed. The Indian elephant is somewhat smaller than the African and differs from it in other ways—as, for instance, in the fact that tusks are possessed only by the males, while both sexes are provided with them in Africa. In general, also, the tusks of African elephants are nearly twice as large as those of their Indian relatives, a single pair sometimes weighing as much as 250 or 300 pounds.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

METHODIST CHURCH
Elmer Duden, Pastor
The congregation last Sunday was favored with a very beautiful anthem by the choir and a solo by Prof. Kraft. The special numbers rendered by the choir both morning and evening are aiding greatly in making the services more instructional and devotional. In the evening the pastor preached at Fairmount, and the Rev. W. C. Sage, of Fairmount, preached in Wahpeton. Next Sunday morning the subject of the sermon will be: "The Call of the Christian Life." The prayer meeting will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p. m., to which all are invited.
