

FIRST NIGHT IS A FINE SUCCESS

High School Glee Clubs Put on Operetta Before Appreciative Crowd—Repeated Tonight.

At the high school auditorium last evening haymakers, court ladies and gentlemen, farm lassies and lads frolicked and danced before a delightful audience...

The curtain first went up on a group of haymakers—the girls gay in green dresses and green sunbonnets and the boys attired in the regulation haymaker's costume...

One of the most attractive single numbers in the operetta was the trio, "If You Should Ever Feel in a Peculiar Frame of Mind."

Sylvia's solos were both good and especially her last one, "My Sailor Lad" was very well done indeed.

Herman Wise as the count was good and his solo "Forever, Love, Forever," was well rendered.

The other characters all of whom managed their parts creditably were as follows:

TRAPSHOOTING LOOKS LIKE COMEBACK

Eighty-Eight New Clubs and 54 Others That Were Inactive During the War Have Begun Business Since First of the Year.

By PETER P. CARNEY Editor National Sports Syndicate

That trapshooting has benefited thru the world war is evidenced by the formation of 88 new gun clubs during the months of January, February and March of this year, and the renewal of activities of 54 gun clubs which have been on the inactive list since the United States cast its lot with the Allies to make the world free in the sense that we understand freedom.

A little over a year ago there were about 4000 trapshooting clubs in the United States and Canada. About one-half of this number checked in while the United States was battling with the Huns. There are many reasons for this decline.

In Canada every able-bodied man went to the front—and therefore very few were left to shoot at the traps. In America we were not as hard pressed as the Canucks. More than 2,000,000 men—the cream of the country—joined the colors. In this great number of soldiers were many thousands of trapshooters, the support of many clubs. Some organizations were entirely wiped out. Many others were hit so hard they could not continue.

The business man who shot at the traps for recreation didn't have so much time for recreation during the war, he was too busy; and in quite a number of places it was difficult to get targets, and late in 1918 it was hard to get ammunition. Lead was scarce, and the shortage of lead caused shells to be scarce.

Conditions Are Good Now. But these things are righting themselves now. There is no shortage of shells or targets; the boys are returning home by the thousands; there is more activity in trapshooting circles now than there has been for a number of years, and clubs are being formed at an average of one every day. Men and women are shooting now who never before shot at clay targets, and thousands of the youth who wore the colors are very much interested in continuing the education they learned while in the service. Things are just as brisk in Canada as they are in the United States.

A trapshooting association has been formed—which is something Canada never had before—and prospects are good for an association in the Western district. One of these days it is more than likely there will be a governing body in each province, conducted along the same lines as the state associations in the United States.

Ways to Encourage Shooting. There are a number of ways that the trapshooting organizations may encourage trapshooting—ideas that have been overlooked.

It would be a good scheme to put on every state championship program an event for men who have been in the service. The New York state shoot has put on such an event. Every other state organization should fall in line.

Then, too, it might be well at every important shoot to have a trap set aside for beginners, with a capable set of instructors, and offer a prize for a beginners' event.

And by all means Young America should be encouraged to shoot. Don't forget the boys. The boy of today is the man of tomorrow.

Butte Men to Build Mill to Work Ores From Ripple Mine

Butte, May 1.—J. C. E. Barker of Neihart and Great Falls who has been in Butte on a short business visit reports much activity in silver mining to be in the immediate prospective for the silver camps of Cascade county.

The Barker brothers have long been actively identified with the mining operations of the Neihart district and are at this time large owners of silver claims in the camp. The old town of Barker, an outlying portion of the Neihart camp, is named from the Barker holdings, and many of the large properties in the heart of the Neihart camp were opened by the family. Mr. Barker says that the Cascade company has a wonderful property in the Broadwater group, which is just now being reopened, and the mill which the Cascade company is now enlarging to 200 tons per day will have material from the Broadwater and Moulton groups sufficient to operate at capacity upon for 10 years without going a foot deeper on the ground.

On the Ripple ground option to W. C. McBaron and associates of Butte, the first payment on the property was made to the Barker brothers, who are owners, last Saturday, and it is said funds soon will be available for the construction of a concentrating mill to work the ores from this group, which lies some distance from the town of Neihart. It is reported that a strong operating syndicate, composed of Butte mining men, has been brot together thru the efforts of Mr. McBaron to handle this property, and that the work will be put under way actively in the near future.

A spring provides the pressure for a new cross cut saw the inventor of which claims will enable one man to do as much work as two men with the usual type of saw.
