TRAVEL CLUB ENDS SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

After a luncheon in the palm room of Hotel Rainbow at 1 yesterday the Travel Club held a business session to elect new officers and otherwise close a successful season. The program committee for the past year has chosen a number of valuable topics for discussion which have been much appreciated by the members of the club.

At the business meeting Thursday Mrs. J. W. Agnew was elected president. The other new officers are Mrs. S. D. Largent, vice president; Mrs. J. R. Hobbins, secretary; Mrs. C. Louis Davies, treasurer. On the program committee are Mrs. R. M. Leslie, as chairman and Miss Hazel Bower and Mrs. H. A. Templeton. Mrs. J. C. E. Barker is chairman of the membership committee and will be assisted on her committee by Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. B. J. Boorman.

The club voted to send Mrs. J. W. Agnew to the state federation meeting at Glendive the first week in June and instructed her to vote in favor of a loan instead of a gift scholarship fund. The Travel club also discussed the question of the new building at the state tuberculosis hospital at Galen and instructed the delegate to vote in favor of the building at the state meeting as the Travel club is in favor of bearing their portion of the necessary expense.

FIRST AID CLASS TO HEAR LECTURE

The senior girls at Central high school who are taking the course in "First Aid and Home Care of the Sick" are to be given a lecture on bandaging this afternoon at the high school gymnasium at 2:45. Last week the class was given an excellent lecture on "Tonsillitis and Abscessed Teeth" by Dr. Thos. F. Walker.

DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION TO ORGANIZE HERE.

The Daughters of the American Revolution will meet at 3 tomorrow afternoon in the club rooms for the purpose of organizing a society in this city. In order to organize such a society it is necessary to have at least 12 charter members and the women of the city who are anxious that such an organization be established in the fraternal circles of Great Falls and who are members of the Society of the Daughters of American Revolution at some other city, town or state, or any women in the city who are daughters of the patriots who fought in the American revolution are eligible to become a member of this society.

KENTUCKY WOMAN IS LICENSED PILOT

There is an interesting woman living down in Bowling Green, Kentucky. She has taken up an occupation which heretofore has been a clear field for men. She contradicts the statements made by many reactionaries that the home is the place for women and that the family must suffer if the woman works in the business world. Mrs. William Eicher is the woman and she has four small children. Mrs. Eicher claims that her family would suffer more if she did not work at her new profession. Mr. Eicher died a few months ago and left his wife with four small children, a small farm, a smaller steamer and a river bank coal mine. Mrs. Eicher felt that she could not afford to hire a skilled pilot to operate her steamer which hauled tons of coal from the mine to Bowling Green on Green river. But this did not worry her long, because armed with the knowledge gained in working side by side with her husband on the river, she applied for a pilot's license and won it.

Thus she became the first licensed pilot in Kentucky. Her little farm is not large enough to support a family of five, but together with the mine properties under her judicious management are on a paying basis, despite the high price of materials and labor.

WOMEN'S WAR DRESS.

Sacrifices of Fair Sex Were Real, Including Vanity.

Speaking generally, one may say that women gained more and lost less from our experiences of war than men. I do not refer now to losses on the field of battle, but to what was happening in this country among non-combatants. Women were happy to find how keenly they are needed. Not only did they take upon themselves jobs that had always been considered "man-size," but they founded many activities of their own, and had begun to look upon themselves as being in a sense the saviors of our plies without whose labor or hand and brain the armies in France might go down to defeat. Working women respected themselves for being workers—a sentiment that as a class they had not entertained before.

They began to dress more suitable in order to work better. Undoubtedly the fascination of uniforms had something to do with it, and in some cases the Sam-Brown-ness was excessive, but the underlying intention was sane. To make the group of women who were employed to clean locomotives in railroad yards. They did it well, and undrafted males were impressed with their thoroughness, but what most impressed them was the fact that the women appeared each day for ten days in white boots, and each day the boots were passably clean.

Then the phenomenon vanished. The laborers had become penetrated with the

BLACK FROCKS ARE EVER FASHIONABLE

By ELOISE.

Dainty, indeed, is the frock which can boast of a bit of lace or net this season. Chantilly lace, black and white, and embroidered net are two very popular trappings for the afternoon and summer dinner gowns. Black is a very fashionable color for the late spring and early summer this year, ranking almost first. The colors which are a bit more popular are henna and some of the French blues. The reason for this is that black is a bit hard to wear and unless one is very careful of the style and material the effect is apt to be either depressing or decidedly old-womanish.

This afternoon or restaurant frock is far from producing either of these effects. It is one of the smartest and most youthful models which has been developed in black. A three-tiered skirt and long bloused waist which is belted at the hips is fashioned of accordion plaited chiffon. The yoke and sleeves are of black Chantilly lace, the sleeves being very short and full. The black silk moire sash which forms the hip girde and is tied in the back is one of the most youthful features of the entire costume. The rough straw hat trimmed in wheat is of a rich shade of Victory red and is worn with telling effect to complete the outfit.

notion that the cleaning of locomotives in order to buy white boots to soil in cleaning more locomotives to earn new white boots, and so on in endless cycles, was ineffectual heroism. They had tried for ten days to combine the boots with the locomotives, but the chemistry of the combinations proving unsatisfactory, they gave up the boots. Two years ago they would almost certainly have given up the locomotives. Later these same women wore overalls during the working day. Overalls are lank and graceless garments, for which the most radical feminists feel no enthusiasm, yet they were part of the hard logic of locomotive cleaning, and one may admire the spirit that accepted them.

WOMEN DOING MEN'S WORK.

It was a busy corner and an officer had just taken a young chap in charge for begging. The lad protested that he was a returned soldier, had discarded his uniform and in a suit of cheap "cits" had looked for a job until he was too hungry and could look no more.

"Not a chance for us fellows," he protested. "All the jobs have been filled since we went away. Why, just look at that!"

"That" was the sight of two very pretty girls meeting a few feet away, and rapturously kissing each other.

"Well, what about it?" rasped the officer.

"Oh, just another case of a woman doing a man's work," sighed the lad who had been "over there."
