Annual Banquet Delightful Affair.

At a large square table brightly decorated with roses for England, lilacs for France and Peonies for the United States forty members of the local Women's club enjoyed their annual banquet last Tuesday—a banquet which possibly was more novel and gave more genuine enjoyment to the members than any similar affair given by the club.

At each place was a neat little card of pretty design painted by Ellen Cummins a junior at Central high school and Peggy Baum who enters high school as a freshman next fall.

The affair was in honor of the newly elected officers. All the toasts were poems taken from the book by Charlotte Perkins Gilman who was so popular during her visit to Great Falls several years ago.

ACADEMY CAMPUS PROVES POPULAR

Sisters and Pupils at Mt. Angela Grateful to All Who Helped Improve Grounds.

"Something like field day this year?" was the verdict of the visitors to Mount Angela yesterday as they watched the program on the newly-equipped campus, covering half a block south of the academy.

The little ones, under the able direction of Miss Gray, gave an exhibition of folk dancing and singing games, while the older girls showed good work in gymnastic exercises and military tactics.

Perhaps the most successful social event of the year at Mount Angela academy was given on Tuesday night, by the juniors for the graduating class. The entire junior class acting as a reception committee welcomed their guests and accompanied them to the French reception room, where the banquet was to be served.

CHILD BADLY BURNED

John W. Cox Jr., 15-month old of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cox, was badly burned about the right hand today when he fell against a hot stove at the family home, 412 Eighth st. south.

The youngster's hand caught against the stove as he was attempting to steady himself while walking, the tire pump being burned to a blister is not that that the member will permanently disfigure.
