Versailles, a French girl whose father is a French general. She is the sister of Roland Garros, who was killed in the war, he was an aviator and a French ace. Her first name is Gilberte, she speaks English quite well and is a delightful girl. Her mother is going to allow her to come to Rheims with me next Sunday, and I feel quite flattered, as in the best French families a girl never goes out, even in the day time without a chaperone.

"The last time I was at Versailles, last week, I walked down 'Boche avenue,' or where the German delegation to the peace conference, are staying. Of course there are guards all around there and the Germans never leave their quarters as they would not be safe.

"Last Saturday afternoon 26 Y girls, including myself, went to Amiens, which is on the Somme river, and where, as you know, many large battles were fought. It was a very interesting, as well as delightful trip. There is an American cavalry officer there who entertains the Y girls by giving a dance on Saturday nights and a trip over the battlefields on Sunday. We went thru Albert, which was completely destroyed, and several other places along the British front. It is very pathetic to see all that devastated country that once was under cultivation, and cultivation in France means not one foot wasted. I took pictures, but just 12 films, but I have not had them developed as yet. It was very much the same as my trip to Chateau Thierry. I think I told you I was over the battlefields there along the Marne. The town of Chateau Thierry is not completely destroyed, but around there it is of course most of the buildings in Chateau Thierry are half destroyed but people live in them just the same. It is pathetic the way the French people go back to their homes even tho there is nothing there but brick dust. It is very beautiful around Chateau Thierry, I mean there is grass and trees, tho most of the trees were destroyed, but I picked so many violets there right on the hills where our boys fought and died. I think I told you we were in Belleau Woods on hill No. 204.

"We were with three American soldiers at Chateau Thierry who had fought in those battles and so it was much more interesting. We were in an old castle that the Germans had for their headquarters when they had Chateau Thierry, and we went thru their underground tunnels, where they kept prisoners, supplies, etc. I assure you they had system. In the tunnel there was a great deep hole which the guide told us was the place they used to throw prisoners they that it advisable to get rid of. It made me shudder just to look down for we could not see the bottom. We also visited the emplacement of the big German Bertha, about 35 kilometers from Paris, and from which point it hit the Saint Gervais church in Paris on Good Friday. I think I told you the Saint Gervais church in Paris is a point of direction, as for instance the opera or Madeleine, and so it made me feel quite at home when I first rode in the metro and found my name all over.

"Since beginning this letter I have gone thru the catacombs of Paris and they certainly are interesting. They are open to members of the A. E. F. only, and the Sunday I went thru there were about 1,000 of us. I am enclosing a picture of a very small section of it. There are many blocks under the ground and the passage way is about three feet broad most of the way, and they 'wind about and in and out,' both sides of which are nothing but bones stacked up so that just the joints show, then the row of skulls on top, and all the way thru forming symmetrical designs. I enclose a clipping from the Red Triangle about our trip thru.

"The same Sunday that I went thru the Catacombs I went to St. Cloud up the Seine in a Y boat trip. There were three large boatloads and we had a delightful trip, it is so beautiful up the Seine.

"I was on the United States Victory loan drive here in Paris and we did very well. There were 16 of us girls selected and in just one house we secured $16,500 just out of our headquarters building. We received a letter from headquarters praising us very highly. That would not seem like much money at home but it seems more difficult to subscribe here than at home, besides so many of the men said their wives at home were taking care of that for them.

"The weather here has been perfectly delightful during the month of May. The flowers are abundant and the strawberries are more than delicious. I am thoroughly enjoying myself and am never homesick, in fact I have never felt better. I think I have gained about 15 pounds, and all the girls I came over with tell me how fine I look.

"I heard last night that civilians were permitted passports to come here now. I knew men could come over on important business but the boys told me last night they were going to permit tourists too. That does not sound probable for I thought they were not going to allow that until all the A. E. F. were home. Of course we are going home rapidly now. There is a large number of Y. people going home every day.

"I do not know when I shall go, it may be in a month, or 2 months, it is a very indefinite matter, but when I do go I want to stop in New York to see Ruth. She says she has a very lovely apartment, with a friend of hers from St. Louis, a Mrs. Bradley who sings very well, so I know we will have a delightful time, besides all the New York men I have met over here say I must stay in N. Y. long enough for them to show it to me. If each one takes a turn I should see N. Y.

"I think I told you I saw the Inter-Allied boat races here the first of this month, or was that in April. I have done so many things since it seems like 3 months ago. I expect to be in Paris when peace is signed (perhaps I shall be gray then, tho), and it surely will be a wonderful sight to see the French army march thru l'Arc de Triomphe. There is a heavy chain around it now and everyone has to drive around it, but the day of the peace fete the French army will march thru it. I wish those poky Germans would hurry up and sign. They are supposed to do so in a few days now."

"Dear Gertrude: I just received a bundle of newspapers from you marked with blue pencil so I would have the interesting news without looking for it. It is very considerate of you to send me such things and you do not know how much I appreciate it, especially when you check off the interesting parts. Your letter was extremely entertaining, or should I (Continued on Page Six)

Minister Thankful

"I had stomach trouble for nearly 20 years, also constipation which filled my system with gas and fever.
