

Women's Corner

GIRL RESERVES MEET AT 'Y.' Corps No. 1 of the girl reserves of the Franklin school met Friday afternoon in the club room of the Y. W. C. A. and did Christmas sewing for children less fortunate than themselves.

GLOVES AN ACCEPTABLE GIFT FOR WOMEN.

No woman's wardrobe is complete without gloves and more gloves. She would really like a pair for every costume she has and a few extras for wear when others are soiled.

In Many Shades.

They can be secured at almost all of the new shades to match the winter suits, too, which is a great recommendation in these days when the object in costuming is to match everything from hat to boots.

Handbags Are Next.

A well gloved hand cannot carry a shabby handbag, so one's mind goes easily from gloves to handbags.

Some New Ideas.

The miniature suitcase is one of the new ideas in bags, and these are usually fitted up with the novel and standard toilet accessories that are found in bags of the sort.

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase of Revelations of a Wife

WHAT ARTHUR WALTERS BROUGHT TO MADGE

Despite the assiduous interest in my convalescence which Maj. Grantland displayed, an interest which never permitted me any room to lack fresh roses, he was not the first grown-up masculine caller I had when my fractured rib had healed sufficiently to permit of my walking around downstairs and into the garden.

An Insistent Caller.

"Joost tired sweeping dot bunch of soup greens off front porch," she said pertly. "I come every day for two, three days, say he want see you."

"Katie! Katie!" I reproved, repressing a smile with difficulty, for my little mid's adventures in American slang and mild profanity are inescapably funny sometimes. "You must not say such things."

ARTHUR WALTERS Walters, Hines & Gibson. Attorneys-at-Law 79 Front Street Bayview, L. I.

One of the most lovable girls in my class in the Bayview high school bore the name of Esther Walters, and I knew from her girlish comments that this

IRRIGATORS PLAN TO ERASE ALL ARID SPOTS IN ALBERTA

Farmers and Business Interests Join in Projects to Bring Vast Areas Under Ditch Water; Automobile Dealer of Lethbridge, Visiting Here, Tells How Land Values Have Been Multiplied So Far.

Farmers and business interests of Alberta are working vigorously and in great harmony to bring about the reclamation fully 150,000 of irrigable acres to the amount already under the water ditches.

Means Agricultural Oasis.

The foregoing paragraph summarizes the situation as to irrigation in the province of Alberta, according to A. G. Baalim, of Lethbridge, who is in Great Falls on a business mission.

"Take Mr. Walters into the living room, Katie," I said with quiet sobriety, the manner which always best suited my little maid, "and say that I will be there directly."

"All right, I feel," she acquiesced, and in another moment I heard her assuring my caller that "Mrs. Graham, she come in double quick."

My first impression of Mr. Walters as he sprang to his feet at my entrance was of extreme boyishness, but a second look told me that he was much older than he seemed, that in fact the early thirties were not far away from him if he had not already entered them.

"Mr. Walters, I believe," I said cordially. "I am Mrs. Graham. I have a lot of you for my sister, Esther."

"Not more often than I have heard of you from the same source," he countered promptly. "I only hope her accounts of me are as enthusiastic as those she gives of you."

"They are the last word in enthusiasm," I smiled, and then as we sat down in chairs facing each other, I saw that the young attorney's face grew grave.

"I must only detain you a moment, Mrs. Graham, for I find that because of my friendship for Kenneth Stockbridge, I am constantly shadowed. But I could trust to no one else, and which he insisted that I must deliver only into your own hands. I know nothing of its contents, but I know that you are from Kenneth Stockbridge you must deny it positively. Say that my business with you was a purely personal one, and give me any excuse you please, but give me no inkling that my friend has ever sent you a message of any sort. You will promise this?"

"Of course," I said simply, but I felt again the intolerable mystery and crime enwrapping me as I spoke.

BIG CHICKEN FEED FOR LOCAL ORPHANS

Pie Dumplings and Giblets Make Thanksgiving Spread at St. Thomas Home.

Chicken pie, chicken dumplings and chicken giblets in plentiful amount, so that not one of the more than 100 children of St. Thomas Orphans' home had to be deprived of a single bite he wanted for Thanksgiving dinner and then a suggestion of chicken in palatable patties and hash to keep fresh for a day or two some of the things they had to be thankful for, tells briefly the story of the dinner at the home on Thursday.

Of course, there were other things besides chicken and chicken suggestions. There was plenty of celery, a lot of good delicious apples and other things, and the Sisters of the home are exceedingly grateful for the remembrance of friends which made the dinner possible. A list of contributors to the dinner supply issued by the home shows that Bishop M. C. Lenihan gave $100 in cash, Dan Tracy and P. R. Van de Putte sent 257 pounds of chicken, J. P. Trainor contributed one dozen chickens on the hoof, J. B. Mullen sent in a side of veal, Nick Poncelet gave a box of crisp celery and Joe Matteucci sent a box of fancy apples.

HOME SERVICE SECTION BUSY

Red Cross Here Receives Requests for Help and Advice From Many Soldiers.

In the mind of the ordinary citizen the work of the Red Cross as far as soldiers and sailors are concerned is over. But a visit any afternoon to the home service section of the local chapter will convince anyone that this idea is an error in the mind of those who holds it.

Requests for help of this kind come in daily, according to Mrs. H. E. Carrier, secretary of the home service section. On Wednesday, for instance, Mrs. Carrier said she received letters from Mississippi, Texas, Idaho and Wyoming asking that she transact business of one kind and another with the government on the behalf of boys who enlisted here and who since their discharge have drifted to these other states.

DECREE AND OLD NAME GIVEN WIFE

A decree of divorce and the privilege of resuming her former name of Ida M. Livingston was granted to Ida M. Clark in the district court Friday by Judge J. B. Leslie.

The court found that the charges were substantiated by competent and trustworthy evidence, permitting the plaintiff to resume her former name because she holds real estate as Ida Livingston.

The court's decree relates that at Sunburst, on September 1, 1917, Clark threatened to kill his wife and that he frequently repeated the threat and misled her in other ways. The parties had not resided together for over a year at the time Mrs. Clark's suit was initiated. Clark made no appearance in his own behalf.

South African natives regarded Oom Paul as being absolutely bullet-proof.

"From time to time I have occasion to visit Great Falls," said Mr. Baalim, "and it has become a pleasure to visit here, for I find so many genial and capable business men and such a splendidly-built city. We have a busy city, but there are some things we sadly need. One of the greatest needs of Lethbridge is a hotel or two that will give the traveler willing to pay for it a service such as your best hotels here can so ably render. We are extending an invitation to any investor who wants something that is sure to prove worth while to come to Lethbridge and look over the situation, for we believe that he will want to invest his money in a first-class hotel."
