Ask your doctor to name the best family medicine for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak throats, and weak lungs. It prevents. It protects. It soothes. It heals. Just the help nature needs.

Seventy years of experience with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral have given us great confidence in it. We strongly recommend it for coughs, colds, bronchitis, weak throats, and weak lungs. It prevents. It protects. It soothes. It heals. Just the help nature needs.

SIMPLE ASSAULT IS EGAN VERDICT

PHOENIX, April 29.—Ed. Egan, one of the quartet who attacked Officer Harry Gaskin of the police force one night several weeks ago while in the discharge of his duties, having in custody a prisoner whom he had arrested in the red light district, went to trial yesterday afternoon on an indictment charging him with aggravated assault. He was convicted of simple assault.

The contention of Egan, which was not sustained by the circumstances, was that he was acting in self defense and that he had not attacked the officer until the latter had struck him with a gun. He said that on the morning following the affair he had a large welt on his head. The only corroborating evidence of the welt was furnished by Frank Riley, the prisoner for whose release the assault was made.

But the plea of self defense was greatly weakened by the statements made by Egan when he was arrested the day following the attack upon the officer. He said nothing about a welt on his head at that time and the officers who arrested him did not see it. Nor could Riley have seen it for on the night of the affair he was in no condition to see anything and after the assault all the persons engaged in it ran away and separated. Riley and Egan had no opportunity that to see each other until they were brought before the court for arraignment.

Inasmuch as the other parties to the affair had elected on Saturday to plead guilty to simple assault, the district attorney's office did not vigorously press for a conviction for aggravated assault in the case of Egan. Sentence will be passed upon the four defendants this morning.

After the disposition of the Egan case the matter of Alfonso Smith, colored, charged with the burglary of Lucas' barbershop was taken up and the evidence for the territory had been put in when court adjourned for the day.

In the case of Henry Lawson, who had pleaded guilty to burglary in the second degree, sentence was suspended.

Frank Shindelower, one of the anti-saloon witnesses, pleaded no guilty to an indictment for perjury and his case was set for trial on day 3. The case of Elmer Sanders charged with assisting in a jail escape, was reset for the same date.

At the morning session of the court the old case of T. E. Parish against George Beebe was tried and was continued for a decision which Judge Kent announced would be rendered on June 4. The court intimated that he would appoint a receiver for the Clenquiffa Coper company of Arizona unless the Nevada corporation should voluntarily come into the case as a defendant.

DOUGLAS DOPE

"All aboard for Bisbee." Let this be the slogan of all fans and bugs either graduate third degree, would or may be. There are no has beans, for once a fan, always a fan. The desire is not alone to help Bisbee out on a big crowd, but to help the Demons pull down that Sunday game for Douglas needs it. Let the players from Smeltville feel that they have a loyal band with them this season and see that band in the grandstand at Warren. Besides if Douglas sends a delegation to Bisbee they will reciprocate and the gate receipts for both clubs will be swelled, and this is necessary in order to support teams of the caliber which the two cities are putting in the field.

The announcement that Cates had agreed to play with the Demons has given great satisfaction to local fandom. A pitcher of the Kane type was wanted, and the fans believe that Cates is the man. His first appearance is therefore awaited with added interest. Whether he will appear against Bisbee has not been definitely settled, but if he arrives here on Friday as is rather expected, it need not surprise the fans if he shall officiate on the Douglas mound on Saturday. Or it may be that he will be reserved for Sunday and Kane go in on Saturday. On these points the Don is at present giving a mighty good imitation of the sphinx. But no matter who pitches on Saturday and who on Sunday it is up to the fans, and all who want to see the Cactus league a success and to see baseball a winner in Douglas to take advantage of the cheap rates to Bisbee and go up and root with and against the Copper City, copper riveted rooters at the ball game.

"What is the hardest game I have ever lost?" recently repeated Captain Denny Ford in answer to the same question which had just been propounded to him. "Well, that's pretty hard to answer, for every game is hard to lose only some are harder than others. Let me see. Well, I

G. W. BRAGG INDICTED IN DYNAMITE CASE

TUCSON, April 29.—George W. Bragg was again indicted by the grand jury today on the charge of placing dynamite at the residence of Superintendent Whalen of the Southern Pacific company, thereby endangering his life.

Bragg was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder, but the case was dismissed by the district attorney at that time for lack of evidence.

The grand jury made a final report at four o'clock this afternoon and was discharged.

The following new indictments were returned: Frank Rosa and Dean Swift, bargaining residence of George T. Gabel; James Rhoades, aggravated assault; Gavino Aguilar, assault deadly weapon; Rafael Ramon, assault deadly weapon; Juan Mendibles, Jose Mendibles, Ramon Mendibles, rape; George L. Hamilton, assault intent to rob; Geo. W. Bragg, felony; Edward Collins, burglary, two counts.

The following cases were ignored: D. C. Witter, George Roberts, W. C. Kluck and Willis Woods, perjury; Henry J. Baer, robbery; Elano Ruez, assault with a deadly weapon; Angel Quirez, rape; Jose Tuentes, aggravated assault.

The case of L. G. Robles for burglary was referred to the next grand jury.

Twenty-two indictments were returned by the grand jury, twelve cases were ignored and one case referred to the next grand jury.

guess the game that hurt most was Albuquerque. It was in 1901 and I was only a kid but I was in the game for all the fun there was in it. Our team went to Albuquerque to the fair. We played good ball and came down to the deciding game with Albuquerque for the money. We played good ball from the start and finished our half of the ninth with the score 12 to 1 in our favor. Then our captain got cocky and sent our pitcher to the bench, saying he would finish the game. He finished it all right and finished us too. Hits followed hits, and before we were through pretty much every player in our line had been in the box, trying to stop the slaughter. Albuquerque made 12 runs and only one out, won the game 13 to 12 and copped the first money. That was sure a hard one to lose.

In answer to the query of what game he had been in was the best up hill fight Dinnyford souted. "We had a lot of 'em last year right here that were great up hill fights. They were as good as any I have ever seen, but probably the best was that one against El Paso with Kane in the box. The Pass city bunch scored six in the first and one in the second but we all got behind Kane and he pitched grand ball. With the help of fast fielding we did not give El Paso another run and by good hitting when hits were needed we led them in the eighth and won out in the tenth."

There is a good one on Ford which occurred when he first went to Sonora and played ball at Guaymas. This happened in his first game down there and before he had become acquainted with the Mexican style of beckoning or waving back. As all who have had any association with the Mexicans know when one wants to beckon a man onward to oneself the motion is the same as the one used to wave a person back in the States. Dinny had not yet had time to learn this when he started in playing ball in Mexico and the result was fatal to one game for his team. He was on the third base coaching line and his side had three men on bases with nobody out and one run to tie the score. Pete Mangravino a clever little Mexican player was on second taking a good lead and the ball was hit right into the third baseman's hands. Dinny waved to Pete to go back but he kept coming. Dinny waded him back more frantically but he came all the harder. The third baseman touched the bag and then tagged Pete and it was a tripple play. The game was lost. Ford wanted to know what in thunder Pete meant by running and Pete wanted to know why Dinny beckoned him on. Finally explanations were made and from then on Dinny has known that when he wants a Mexican to come on he signals him to go away. Experience is a good teacher.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

She Was a Jewel.

"The new maid is a perfect treasure," said Mrs. Gaddington, with undisguised enthusiasm. "She goes right ahead and does things without waiting to be told. It's such a relief to have a girl with intelligence—one who can be depended on to do her work, no matter whether I am here to direct her or not. What do you suppose she did today?"

"Took all the clothes out of the closets and aired them, I'll bet," replied Mr. Gaddington, becoming suddenly optimistic.

"No; she will probably get around to that tomorrow or next day. Without waiting to receive even a hint that your den needed cleaning, she went in there and gave it a thorough going over. You'll not recognize the place when you look into it. She must have brought nearly a wagon load of papers and pamphlets and magazines that you've had piled around in the corners, and your books have all been—Why, William, what's the matter?"

"Nothing, nothing," replied William Gaddington, making a supreme effort to control his feelings. "Where is she—the infernal—where is she now?"

"What in the world has happened? Have things gone wrong at the office today?"

"No, no; I merely want to know where this paragon you have been speaking of is now."

"You'll never guess. Really, she's a wonder. I slipped down into the cellar a few minutes ago to see what she was up to, and what do you think? She's down there humming away to herself as happy as you please and brushing the dust from the wine bottles."—Chicago Record-Herald.

With the Eye of Faith.

"Dr. Fourthly, don't you believe the time is coming when the swords shall be beaten into plowshares and the spears into pruning hooks and men shall learn war no more?"

"Indeed I do, Brother Millan."

"But when?"

"About the time when that prophecy is fulfilled—and then shall the end come."—Chicago Tribune.

WOMAN AND FASHION

Spring Millinery.

The first hat in the drawing is made of fine black straw trimmed with a mass of small blossoms in white, with enough green stems to soften the effect.

FAVORITE SHAPES IN STRAW HATS.

The hat is faced with green. The lower hat has the crown covered with petal shaped pieces of rose colored ribbon tucked at the edge and roses alternating with the strips.

Making Waist Frills.

The girl who only cares for pickup work should start embroidered frills for her summer shirt waists. These may be done in colored lawns or batistes with conventional design in white or in sheer white lawn or nainsook or mull with embroidery in vivid tones.

Allow enough material for gathering the frill when finished. If it is to be knife plaited two and a half times the length is necessary. A circular founce must be stamped along the line of shaping, but do not cut out to work, as it will pull.

The edges of these founces may be hemmed and worked with satin stitch dots, coils or pla in one or two tones or a band of color added to edge of a white strip. This should be cut an inch and a quarter wide to allow for seam. Turn in edges, double and baste to material, which is placed within the hem. Stitch on machine or by hand.

An easier method is to fold the half inch band on outside of ruffle like a facing and stitch down on right side. This is not so artistic, as it shows but one colored edge.

Deep pink, blue or green bands on white are effective, but scarcely so new as the use of colored lawns marked with white or self toned dots. Several sets of such founces may be worked at odd moments and will prove a saving to time and pocketbook when summer sewing begins.

Flower Garden Hats.

The newest importations from across the "pond" are veritable horticultural exhibits. For early spring wear straw hats are faced with velvet, and tulle and are trimmed with marabou or other feathers to give them less of a summer appearance. The big hats are all turned up somewhere to give a glimpse of the face underneath. This is an excellent plan, as it is rather disconcerting to talk to a hat, even though assured that there is a listener underneath. Some have the cavalier sweep on the left side, others the Napoleonic upturned brim at the very front, while the very newest are tipped up in the back, where all the trimming is piled on high.

The centers turn up in an assumption enormous proportions upward, but still fit closely to the head without coming down low on the forehead. In fact, it steps just above the eyebrows. Shot effects are much in vogue in ribbons, feathers and satin crowns. Blue green and green brown are seen a great deal, and with them are worn two shaded quills or plumes. Gold and silver hats are not unusual and are most becoming when set off by white or black trimming.

Making Underwear.

When making up flannel garments it is a good plan to wash the flannel before cutting the garment.

Even the very best makes of flannel have an unpleasant way of shrinking, and it is very annoying to find that the garment has become too tight after it has been washed two or three times. If not washed it is wise to make flannel garments loose to allow for shrinkage.

Braid and Embroidery.

Course cotton embroidery appears intermingled with many of the braided designs upon heavy lines frocks. Any little open space in the braiding may be thus filled in with solid work of a color matching either background or braid, and it will add to the richness of the general effect.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By CARL SCHOFIELD, Special Correspondent.

The hopes of George Washington, Captain William Duncanson and Daniel Carroll that the territory immediately east of the capitol might become a choice residential section are now being fulfilled. A number of residences are being erected in the square bounded by Sixth and Seventh streets and Maryland avenue northeast, and more than a third of them have been sold.

Carroll's Mistake.

Daniel Carroll, a man of culture and refinement and with social standing in keeping with wealthy planters of his period, at one time owned a large area of the land on Capitol hill. He was the brother of the Right Rev. J. Carroll, the first Roman Catholic priest of Baltimore and the founder of the Jesuit college of Georgetown. He was at one time the most lavish entertainer of all the original land-holders of the city.

The mistake of Carroll's life was that of holding on to much of his land and holding it at such enormous prices that instead of the city building east the development was turned toward the west. It is reported that at one time Carroll refused to sell a part of his plantation to Stephen Girard for $200,000.

City of Anticipation.

Daniel Carroll, who was one of the three commissioners of the District in the year 1791; David Burns, Thomas Johnson and David Stewart used to meet often with George Washington at the famous hostelry, Tunnick tavern, on Capitol hill, and discuss the future of the "federal city," as it was always referred to by Washington. At that time the Eastern branch was an important shipping center.

So enthusiastic over the prospects of the rapid development and growth of Capitol hill was Washington that several capitalists of his day were attracted to the site of the "federal city." Among those who came to the "city of anticipation" were Greenleaf, Robert Morris, Thomas Law and Nicholson. Greenleaf, then a young man of thirty, had accumulated about $1,000,000 in mercantile enterprises. Washington's dream for the development of Capitol hill, although delayed for more than a century, has at last come to pass.

Franked a Dog.

All sorts of stories have been told in the capitol about Senator Tillman endeavoring to send a typewriter through the mails under his congressional frank and other members sending articles varying in size and character from a suit case to a gasoline stove, but the secretary to a house member a few days ago was discovered trying to mail a live dog. The canine, inclosed in a heavy wooden box and barking furiously, got as far as the Washington city postoffice when stopped.

An Abused Privilege.

The franking privilege has been abused this year quite as often as common, and the department has been called upon to refuse many different articles. Ordinarily the congressional signature stamp is supposed to be used on letter mail, government publications and literature and seeds only, but a great many members overlap and attempt to send typewriters, stoves, suit cases, trunks, etc.

Treasury Economies.

Many small economies are being introduced in the treasury department which will in the aggregate save the department a great deal of money. For example, in one of the auditing bureaus adding machines are being introduced. It is estimated that through their use something like 200 clerks can be dispensed with, to be used elsewhere or their salaries saved. Another instance of what can be done in little things is in the internal revenue bureau. Collector of Internal Revenue Cabell has decided to cut off a few inches on some of the cigar stamps and slightly narrow the others. By this change he will save $35,000 in paper, ink and printing alone and will standardize the stamps, so that they can be much more easily counted and checked both here and in other offices throughout the country, incidentally saving much clerical labor and avoiding mistakes such as now occur. This seems like chicanery, but the step was not taken until after consultation with cigar manufacturers and others and it was found the change could be effected without injury to any interest concerned.

Selling Liquor to Indians.

The crusade of the bureau of Indian affairs against the selling of whisky to Indians has resulted in more than 1,000 convictions from this cause in the past eighteen months. Most of those rendered received jail sentences as well as fines. The cases included offenses committed on reservations and in other localities where the sale of liquor to the red man is unlawful.

Bureau of Republics.

President Taft will deliver an address at the dedication of the new building of the international bureau of American republics on April 26 and will attend a reception that evening to be given by the representatives in Washington of the Latin American republics in honor of Andrew Carnegie, who contributed three-quarters of a million to the building fund. The invitations were presented by John Barrett, director of the bureau; the Mexican ambassador, the Costa Rican minister, the Chilean minister and the Brazilian charge d'affaires.
