Governor of Ohio Grows in Favor Among Democrats As The Best Candidate for the Presidency

DEMANDS $5000 FOR DAMAGE TO TEETH

ALLEGES THAT APPRENTICE IN OFFICE OF DR. LENTZ BUTCHERED JAW.

PHOENIX, June 20.—For the loss of three teeth and an injured jaw, Sam Barrett filed suit in the district court today against Dr. W. G. Lentz for $5000 damages.

Barrett alleges that on May 1, last, he employed Dr. Lentz to extract a tooth and that an assistant of the doctor, named Ross, performed the work.

Barrett claims that Ross "did not use the proper amount of skill" and in performing the operation bruised and lacerated his jaw in a painful manner.

In the treatment of the injury done in pulling of the tooth, Barrett says, Ross used impure and improper drugs, the jaw swelling and the tissues decaying.

As a result of the affection of the jaw, Barrett says he lost two other teeth, and that in an attempt to have his jaw cured he expended $5000 in doctor fees.

For the loss of the three teeth, the injury to the jaw, the amount of suffering he endured and the money he spent for the services of a doctor, Barrett thinks the court should award him $5000 damages and he prays for that sum.

Ross is designed in the complaint as an assistant, apprentice and servant of Dr. Lentz, and it is alleged all are way through that it was Ross who did the damage, though Dr. Lentz is sought to be held legally responsible because of his employment of Ross.

At Holbrook the Gum Shoe Man in some round about way discovered that when Editor Sapp left for the east he had a marriage license in his inside pocket.

Two more carloads of machinery have arrived for the Tucson Iron Works, and lathes, saws and bolt machines are now being installed at the plant near the old Twin Buttes depot.

The Eagles of Tucson are advancing their arrangements for the Fourth of July celebration at Elysian Grove in fine style. A two days program of field sports, games and other amusements have been outlined.

The city and county jails of Williams have become so congested recently that it is almost impossible to take care of the prisoners who are committed for petty offences in Coconino county.

The rumor is that another fire has broken out not far from Oracle and divided the fire fighters. Residents of Tucson are watching the sky line in the direction of the Santa Catalinas by day and by night.

Since the publication in Tucson of Congressman George P. Meyers' idea of combining the city hall and the court house in a new building to be jointly erected, much favorable comment from business men has been heard on the proposition.

There will be no shooting of firecrackers in Yuma on the Fourth of July. The edict has gone forth, the same as in Tombstone. The city ordinance prohibits it, and Marshal Levy says that he intends to force the law to the letter.

Dolores Lopez, while being hoisted in a bucket from the bottom of a well which he was excavating on a homestead 22 miles west of Tucson, lost his hold on the rope and fell a distance of 70 feet to the bottom. He was instantly killed.

No prize fight in Agua Prieta, was the dictum of the officials of the little town across the border from Douglas, when an attempt was made to arrange for a two round bout to be pulled off July Fourth. Several good scraps would probably have been held there from those to time, but nothing of this kind can be arranged for under the Mexican law.

An occurrence, somewhat out of the ordinary was witnessed near Kingman. A number of dogs were worrying a burro, and the latter was putting up a good fight against them, when two full grown sheep stopped to watch the proceedings. The burro immediately ceased hostilities with his tormentors and attacked the sheep, striking at them with his forefeet, would have killed the inoffensive animals had he not been forcibly driven away.

A concerted effort by Agent A. M. Weaver of San Carlos and Missionary J. F. Harders and Sheriff Thompson of Globe, is being made to stop the sale of liquor to the Indians. A memorial has been addressed to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Valentine, asking that a special officer be detailed and stationed at Globe, to look after the Indians and assist the local officers in stopping the whiskey traffic on or near the reservation.

With a keen knife in his hand, Jas. Milton made a clean sweep of the smoker on the Santa Fe passenger train and when he concluded his bad man performance he had the place all to himself. Not a passenger was left.

CINCINNATI, O., June 20.—Many well informed believe the next president of the United States will come from Ohio. Moreover, he is even now discharging the duties of chief executive in Columbus, O., not in Washington, D. C.

That Harmon will be re-elected governor seems to be as certain as anything can be in politics. The great body of republican voters in this state would not be deeply grieved if he were. They like him; like his administration of affairs, and concede him to be an able and sane executive.

Of course the organization will make a fight; nominate a candidate to oppose Harmon at the polls, though this man is still a dark horse; put up a stiff contest to secure control of the state government, and trust to luck. If the proverbial Harmon luck again triumphs they know there will be no bad government in the state for the next two years.

Conspicuous on National Checker Board.

If the governor's personal following in the state is sufficient to return him to office in a normally republican commonwealth it is conceded he will be the most conspicuous man for the democratic presidential nomination to be found on the national checker board.

His name will be one to conjure with in the democratic national convention. His leadership would again enthuse and inspire the democratic hosts. Occupying a strong strategic position, his record will attract to him a great following. With Taft as his opponent, Harmon would sweep Ohio. Against any other republican nominee, except Roosevelt, the same result would be achieved. Taft is not popular in Ohio. Harmon has a devoted and militant following in every county in the state. Taft lost Hamilton county by 15,000 votes in 1908. Harmon carried it by the same majority, and that was his majority in the state.

NEW BROWNSVILLE PORT.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., June 20.—In order to provide extreme South Texas with a good port, private interests of Brownsville and St. Louis will establish harbor facilities at the mouth of the Rio Grande to be known as Port Brownsville. The bar at Boca Chica will be dredged to the required depth and it is understood that the government will be approached with a view of having it aid the ventures by the building of levees that will tend to confine the river to a narrower channel so that afterwards it may keep the bar down.

Part of the enterprise will be the drainage reclamation of the delta of the river, and the irrigation of some 51,000 acres of land lying above it. The tract will be intersected with irrigation and drainage canals and these will be made deep and broad enough to accommodate barges which will convey the product of the tract directly to the docks.

So far the men interested in the venture have not made public many of their plans. It is known, however, that both the American and the Mexican government favor the establishment of the port at that point and that work will commence in a very short time. The heaviest investors are D. L. Stell of Brownsville and Edwin S. Brondix of St. Louis.

and a candidate against Harmon.

I asked one of the officers of the Ohio state Federation of Labor about the attitude of the labor men. He answered that they were most friendly. This is particularly true of the railway trainmen. They recall that the skill which brought light and cheer to their homes following the desperate days preceding the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton receivership was that of Judson Harmon. He found the money to pay the men their salaries. He has kept always before his eyes the interests of the working man in the questions which came before him.

Not an Extremist.

Neither anathematizing corporations, nor putting them on a planc and saying they can do no wrong Harmon is steering a straight course between the two extremes and insisting that all men are entitled to a fair deal. He is praised by both sides. While the labor organizations have not published any resolutions approving his course, they make their positions known very freely in personal conversation.

To a saloonkeeper in Cincinnati, I put the question:

"What kind of a governor is Judson Harmon?"

"Take it from me, sir, he is all right," he said, running his words together. "If I do say so myself, he is a good governor."

There are more saloons, drinking places, beer gardens and other places where liquid refreshments can be secured in the city of Cincinnati than in any other city in the country of equal size. The saloons close at midnight and open at 6 o'clock. The state law requires Sunday closing.

"Do you close on Sunday?" I asked.

"Just pull down the blinds," said a barkeeper locally. Public sentiment in Cincinnati does not seem to be strong on prohibition law enforcement.

There is much evidence to support the prediction that if Harmon and Taft are rival nominees for the presidency in 1912 Harmon will carry Hamilton county and the state of Ohio. Many persons here do not believe the president would accept another nomination if it meant a contest with the state's popular executive.

Indiana Democratic.

Just across the line from Ohio is Indiana. It has a democratic governor and a good one. It has eleven democratic representatives and one democratic senator, as opposed to two representatives and one United States senator of the republican faith. Indiana would undoubtedly line up behind the democratic band wagon with either Governor Harmon or Governor Marshall driving, but the leaders favor Harmon. He would come nearer carrying New York than Mayor Gaynor would to carry Ohio and Indiana. The outlook is one to revive drooping democratic faith and hope.

So far as his own state is concerned the following of Harmon is aggressive, enthusiastic and hopeful. The supporters of the president's party are apathetic, indifferent, and apparently willing to let things drift.

"Boss" Cox on Harmon.

George B. Cox, the republican boss of Hamilton county, gave me an interview today on the political situation. Cox is president of the Cincinnati Trust company, which has outstanding loans of $9,999,000. On last Wednesday he concluded a little deal which made him a power in the political world of the Middle West. It involved the payment of over $2,000,000 in cash to secure ownership and control of a string of vaudeville houses in Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Louisville.

Twenty-five years ago he was a bartender in a saloon on the corner of Longworth street and Central avenue, Cincinnati. In looks and manner he is the typical ward boss known on the stage. Heavy set, big and coarse in appearance, slow in speech, he talks with a deep growl.

He was seated at a mahogany desk in his luxuriantly appointed office in the rear of the trust company. On the long directors' table was a cut glass vase filled with flowers. The room bore evidence of the old man's taste and some clever decorator's genius.

"In what respect has Harmon failed as governor?" I asked.

The big boss spoke of the veto of the Cincinnati park bill, the Sunday baseball bill and some other local matters. Then he adverted significantly to the row precipitated by Mr. Bryan's attack.

"But in the main has the state administration been a success?" I ventured.

"Harmon's All Right."

"Yes, Harmon's all right. He's making a good governor," assented Cox.

Cox and Taft are not friendly. Cox, moreover, felt miffed at Wade H. Ellis being sent to Ohio as a state boss. These facts must be considered in judging the significance of his words. But those few blunt sentences told volumes. The republicans are in desperate straits for issues
