JAPANESE TENNIS STARS INVADE U. S. FOR MORE HONORS

NEW YORK, June 17.—For the first time in the history of international lawn tennis the Far East will make a bid for premier honors this autumn when the Japanese racquet stars, K. Kumagai and H. Mikami, appear in the American championship tournament at Forest Hills, L. I., into in August. These two leading tennis players of the Orient are already on their way to this country for a three months campaign on the United States courts and their invasion will be awaited with great interest by all followers of tennis.

nis, since their records indicate that both play a game which ranks them with the leading tennis experts of this country.

While the complete itinerary of the Japanese players will not be known until they reach the Pacific Coast, it is certain that they will proceed eastward by easy stages, playing at the leading clubs in exhibition and tournament matches as the occasion offers San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago and Pittsburgh and New York will be given an opportunity to see the Japanese in action on the courts before the National championships and after the titular tournament, Kumagai and Mikami return to the Pacific Coast by another route playing occasional matches prior to embarking for Japan.

As far back as 1912 Kumagai, then a student at Keio University, appeared at the Far Eastern championships and fought his way to the semi-finals where he defeated by Ella Fottrell on a match which was carried over into the second day. Later with a partner he lost to Fottrell and William Johnson, present American champion, in a double match by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

Two years before Kumagai had never seen a tennis racquet or ball and his first game was played with a discarded racquet of an English resident of Japan and a red rubber ball such as small children amuse themselves with by bouncing on the sidewalks. Some idea of his progress within the past three years can be gained from the fact that last January he returned to Manila and won the championship of the Orient from a field which included Clarence Griffin, number seven in the United States ranking for last season, and Ward Dawson, who is ranked in the third ten for the same period. Kumagai and Mikami will play in both the doubles and singles at the Forrest Hills National Championships Dawson and Griffin defeated them in the final round of the Orient doubles by scores of 6-4, 6-4, 10-8 the Japanese being rather weak in the team work so necessary to win in doubles play. Of the two Kumagai is the better player, having a puzzling left hand service and a terrific fore and backhand drive coupled with an uncanny ability to make returns from almost any angle and portion of the court and a master of tennis tactics. Experts are already predicting that one or both of the Japanese players will prove a sensation at the titular tournament and upset many of the American racquet stars before the finals are reached.

NEW YORK FANS BANKING ON WORLD CHAMPION SERIES

NEW YORK, June 17.—Although the major league baseball season is not half completed the fans of Greater New York are already figuring on witnessing at least one half of the World's Series of 1916 and possibly the entire conflict. With the New York and Brooklyn teams fighting for the National League lead and the New York Americans within striking distance of first place in the American, it is hard to convince the average rooter of the big city that one of the three will not be found safely perched at the top when the season closes early in October.

The remarkable dash of the New York Giants from last place to within a few points of the lead in the senior league, during which they won seven straight games, has restored the Giants to their former place in affections of the fans and confidence in their ability to play winning ball from this time on is evident on all sides. Across the big bridges Brooklyn fans are just as certain that the Superbas will be able to maintain the pace that they have set from the beginning of the season.

Condie Mack, the leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, in a recent interview picked the Yankees to win the American League pennant. This taken in conjunction with the brain of ball the reconstructed combination has displayed this spring, has caused the followers of the junior league in Greater New York to figure on the possibility of the Yankees appearing in the title of World's Series contenders next fall. Much will depend upon the result of the New York Americans first trip over the Western circuit. The slants and Superbas have already passed this test in a highly satisfactory manner. If the Yankees can demonstrate that they are equally efficient on the road their chances of holding a place well to the fore in the long pennant race ahead will be considerably augmented.
