 Cor. Lincoln & Madison Sts.

SEVERAL years' experience with tall office buildings in New York has taught real-estate men that it does not pay to erect these buildings. Lawyers, insurance men, and others who have had their offices in them for a time have moved out, as they find that business is not near so rushing when you are up six or seven stories high as when you are nearer the ground floor. One of these skyscrapers, erected last summer, contains 200 offices, but only thirty-five of them are tenanted. And this is the case with all the high office buildings. It is doubtful if any more of them will go up.
