MR. CHAS. E. NEWTON'S

Magnificent New Up-Town Hat Store.

Elegant Latest Styles and Where They Will Be Sold-Hats for Men of Fashion.

MR. CHARLES E. NEWTON.
Late of the firm of Hennegen & Newton. Mr.
Newton has just opened a first-class hat store at No. 143 Dearborn street, where he will carry a complete new and elegant stock in all the leading spring and summer styles for 1894, in dress, silk, opera (crush), and derby hata, that cannot be excelled as regards the excellence of material. superiority of workmanship, and elegance of finish and design; and as the stock is all new throthyhout, there are no old styles to work off on unsuspecting customers. As every one knows, the crowning glory of a man's attire is a new and fashionable hat. The coat may be a trifle "off," the pants may not be all they should be, and "virtue may flourish in an old cravat, but man and nature scorn the shocking hat," and so your correspondent thought as he watched the opening of this new and elegant establishment, where can be found— MR. CHARLES E. NEWTON,

For Charles E. Acwess.

Is at Dearhorn street, one forty-five,
And he will rig you out in the height of style,
With the best there is in the shape of a tile.

Mr. Newton is too well and favorably known to need further comment here. We wish him great success in his new undertaking.

Fire Saved Him.

The young adventurer had his doubts whether the book would pay for itself, and when good-natured friends—whose good nature, we may be sure, stopped on the wrong side of buying—said. "y.u'll be half ruined," he was rather inclined to agree with them.

At last, in lear and trembling, he wrote to the publisher to know the worst—which he himself had calculated a about £20.

"Le me know how many have gone off." I e wrote it all modesty, "and what is the ba ance I dwe you."

The publisher wrote back:
"DEAR SIR—Your whole edition has gore off, leaving a balance of £20 in your favor; check inclosed."

The poet was in his seventh heaven, and yet not satisfied. He rushed to the tublisher's to inquire who had bought the book—friends, Mudie, or "My dear sir." said the publisher. "I bought the book—friends, Mudie, or who?

"My dear sir," said the publisher, "I think you had better not ask."
"Not ask? Why not? You wrote to say that the edition was all sold; it must have been sold to somebody,"
"rardon me. I wrote that it had 'gone off; so it had, the whole of it. There was a fi e in the warehouse, and the contents were insured." the contents were insured."

The Name. It is an old story of the Scotch Pres-byterian who said: 'That the devil is bad. you can tell by his very name; for, if you take away the d it is evil, and take away the de it is vile, and take away the dev it is ill, so that he is an ill, vile, evil devil."
