Men who come down town to play cards for money can park their cars all-day in the loop without police interference. But there's a difference. For instance Lieut. William E. O'Connor and four police sergeants were attracted to the Ragan Athletic club, 5254 South Halsted street, the other night by a Ford conspicuous for its lack of license number, which was parked in front. When they tried to enter the club the door was slammed in their faces and Ray Cafferty, 5306 Emerald avenue, shouted: "No policeman can enter this club. We've a writ of injunction keeping you out." Five minutes later the door was well splintered by well directed kicks, and Mr. Cafferty and the owners of the raucous voices were escorted to the police station.

Crowds of Christmas shoppers fill T. N. Donnelly & Co.'s popular jewelry store, 20 North Dearborn street, every day. This famous Chicago house, in business for forty-six years, is the favorite of Chicagoans in search of good bargains in fine diamonds, precious stones and beautiful jewelry. The founder of the house, Tom N. Donnelly, is a Chicago pioneer and the business he has built up by square dealing is a credit to Chicago.
